Excellent and reasonable accomodations are available in Laramie, Wyoming, elevation 7,000 feet.

From here we drove north on U.S. 30 and state 34 east over our last mountain pass, the ninth on our trip. It was with heavy hearts that we left those lovely mountains we had traveled in for close to 2,000 miles. They have a dramatic beauty we have always enjoyed.

We went north on Interstate 25 to U.S. 26, then east to Geurnsey, Wyoming. To save distance we went north on state 270 and want to warn you not to do this. Ten miles are not state highway and in terrible condition. U.S. 85 then took us north to the Black Hills. It is a beautiful road.

Townships Offer Second Proposal To Fire Plan

A counter proposal was offered at a special session during the regular city council meeting last evening by various township members who opposed some of the specifications outlined in the Northern Region Firefighters association's contract for 1980.

Townships' share of the operating cost was set at $20,286 for 1980 which includes operating costs for 1979, plus depreciated expenses for 1980, and the five townships' (North, Rocksbury, Smiley, Norden and Silverton) share of assessed value, population and fire calls. Fifty per cent of this amount would be subtracted due to the reduction given to allow for the decreased service because of the distance factor and the townships owning their own fire truck.

The counter-proposal asked for no charge for fire calls, no charge for maintenance on fire trucks, and a five-year instead of the present three-year contract, according to Henry Panck, representing the township of Silverton.

"All five townships feel this is a fair proposal," he said.

Concessions to the townships' proposal were offered by alderman Bill Penning, who stated that the city could assume maintenance costs for the rural trucks, and that the charge for fire calls could be eliminated.

"We can't get away from the fact that one-fourth of the fire calls come from the townships," he said. "And we can't justify going lower than $20,000." (Counterproposal offered called for an amount of $16,726 for operating costs).

"Because of our uncertain economic situation," he said, "it would not be wise to have a five-year plan. We believe we have a mutually agreeable formula and we don't want to have to set up two separate fire associations if we don't have to."

Session concluded with council members requesting a response to the situation from the townships within 30 days, if possible.

Council members resumed with regular business following the special session, beginning with a discussion on bids opened April 3 on airport land. Bid was accepted from Wally Reierson for the rental of 130 acres at the airport (land which is owned by the city) with prices set at $27.50 for 1980, $32 for 1981, and $35 for 1982.

Council members deliberated over the possibility of multiple publicly assisted housing complexes in the nature of townhouses for the city of Thief River Falls.

"Five firms are presently interested in the idea of townhouses," stated Jerry Wigness, city clerk. "A request for a letter to be sent to the Minnesota housing and finance agency has been made. The only council action that is needed is to determine if council members think the concept is suitable."

No action was needed on the agenda item, according to alderman Ambrose Wysoski.

Four File For Positions On School Board

Four filings have been received for the three positions open on the Thief River Falls board of education as of press time today, according to the office of Supt. William Corliss and school board clerk Kenneth Murphy.

Board chairman Larry McDowell fulfilled his announced intention to file for reelection by placing his name on the ballot Tuesday. Also filing Tuesday were Mrs. Milan (Elaine) Borsheim and Roger Shaffer. Today a fourth filing was received when Gary Erickson added his name to the list.

Mrs. Borsheim, whose husband is a member of the Thief River Falls city council, has been an x-ray technologist at Northwestern hospital and the Falls clinic for about 10 years until last October when she became a fulltime homemaker. Shaffer is a partner in Westside Motors and Erickson is director of the Pennington county social services department.

Filings for the three positions remain open until Tuesday, April 29. The school election will be held May 20 and board members elected will begin three-year terms on July 1.

Arbitration Hearing Set For April 21

Arbitration hearing on the contract between School District 564 and the Thief River Falls Education association has been set for Monday, April 21, with Richard J. Miller of New Hope as arbitrator.

Miller was selected by representatives of the TRFEA and school district from a list of seven potential arbitrators provided by the state public employment relations board.

The arbitrator selected to replace John W. Boyer of Duluth, who resigned due to ill health, has worked exclusively in the area of arbitration matters, including the researching and writing of arbitration awards, since 1975. He holds a BA degree from Winona state university and has completed graduate work in industrial relations and law.

Boyer withdrew from hearing the local final positions on the advice of his doctor and informed both sides in the dispute of his reasons for doing so. He said the singular basis for the decision is the cumulative effect of a serious illness and fatigue in February, a subsequent extermely demanding workload and the increasingly severe impact of a recurring thyroid problem that may require surgery.

Paper Drive Set Saturday

Paper collection drive will be conducted by students of St. Bernard's Catholic school again Saturday in Thief River Falls, beginning at 10 a.m. Papers are to be bundled or boxed and left at the curb for collection.

Mrs. Donna Olson, who has been supervising the drives, said that collections during the two years the school has been involved have averaged about 15 tons of paper per drive.

Food Stamp Fund Near Depletion

There is growing concern among food stamp recipients that their food assistance will end May 31. Unless Congress adopts legislation to provide additional funding for the program by May 15, funds will be depleted and welfare departments will not be authorized to issue the stamps.

In Pennington county the program provides assistance for about 600 people in approximately 200 households each month and totals about $125,000 a year. The assistance historically has fluctuated from $100,000 to $200,000 but has somewhat stabilized around the $125,000 figure.

Pennington county social services director Gary Erickson recognizes the concern being expressed by various organizations, but notes that this isn't the first time it will have been necessary for Congress to come up with a supplemental appropriation for the program. It has been done before. He expects that action to be taken, despite the gloomy outlook presented by such groups as the Minnesota food action coalition (MFAC).

"It is never safe to predict what the Congress will do," Erickson said, "but the food stamp program has been a popular one with national law makers and has been supported in the past when initial funding hasn't been sufficient. With 20 million recipients in the program, it is unlikely to be dropped in the middle of an election year."

The Minnesota food action coalition, headquartered in Minneapolis, issued a news release recently which suggested that "the prospects don't look good". It points out that by May 15 the Congress must act on a budget resolution needed to keep all government programs functioning during the remaining months of this fiscal year; change the food stamp law to raise the "cap" it put on food stamp spending last year before food prices went so high; and then make supplemental appropriations available to put the necessary funds in the food stamp program.

Congress is scheduled to take a spring vacation in April, the coalition notes, and politicians have a reluctance to spend money in an election year. It adds that there are 146,000 food stamp recipients in Minnesota — 22,000 of them elderly people on fixed incomes — and that food stamp households average income of approximately $320 per month.

Judy Skogerboe Chairs Cancer Crusade Here

Judy Skogerboe of Thief River Falls has been named chairman of the American Cancer society Pennington county unit's 1980 educational and fund-rising crusade, according to the unit president, Jerry Wedul.

Mrs. Skoberboe will lead local volunteers in a community-wide effort to help "wipe out cancer in our lifetime," through research and education. More than 70,000 American Cancer society volunteers in Minnesota will be conducting crusades throughout the state during the month of April.

"We know that people really want to do something about cancer," Mrs. Skogerboe said. "This is why we go door-to-door, neighbor-to-neighbor, distributing educational material which reminds people of the seven warning signals of cancer, and stresses the importance of early detection and regular check-ups.

"We will also be informing people of a self-help aid to quitting smoking, available free of charge from the Minnesota division of the American Cancer society. The donations we will be requesting will be used for cancer research, for professional and public education programs and for services for Minnesota cancer patients and their families."

Teachers Tell Story, But Few Listen

Approximately 75 people attended the public meeting sponsored by the Thief River Falls Education association Monday evening in the Franklin middle school cafeteria but almost all of them were TRFEA members or spouses. Less than a dozen, including news media representatives and one school board member, were non-faculty members of the public.

Joe Forberg, president of the TRFEA, presided at the meeting which lasted about half an hour. Edith Etter, teacher at Mark Twain school and chief negotiator for the TRFEA in contract discussions with the school district, summarized the current status of negotiations.

Mrs. Etter explained that the school board had requested a declaration of impasse in negotiations and that an arbitration hearing had been ordered for April 18. The arbitrator selected to hear the final positions, John W. Boyer Jr. of Duluth, had resigned that position due to ill health and Richard Miller of New Hope had been selected in his place. Hearing date has been changed from April 18 to April 21.

Ken Johnson, member of the TRFEA action committee speaking for committee chairman Bob Michalicek, reviewed activity of the action committee including shop-ins and advertising intended to attract public attention.

Charlie Cornell, president of the local school district's coaches association, expressed the association's concern over high school athletic programs due to cutbacks, severely restricted budgets and complete loss of programs. He mentioned funding available for athletic programs in area districts and expressed the opinion that the Thief River Falls district should be able to provide comparable support.

Few questions were asked during the session. In response to one question on differences in negotiations, Cal Lindberg of the negotiating team gave a review of items submitted for arbitration and the faculty's contentions regarding those points.

Forberg also mentioned state legislation amending the public employees labor relations act, stating that it had "almost 100 per cent chance" of reaching the governor's desk for signature. The amendments to the act would allow public employees, including teachers, to strike if arbitration settlements are unacceptable. He emphasized that teachers do not want a strike.

Speaking for the organization and its members, Forberg expressed disappointment at the small turnout for the meeting and the apparent lack of interest.

LISTENING TO INFORMATION on negotiations being presented by Cal Lindberg of the faculty negotiating team are people attending the public meeting held Monday evening at Franklin middle school. The meeting was called by the Thief River Falls Education association to present information and answer questions regarding contract differences. Less than a dozen non-faculty members, including the news media [illegible] school board member, attended the meeting. Few questions were asked and the meeting lasted about 30 minutes.

EXPLAINING DIFFERENCES in position between the faculty and board of education regarding the general contract for 1979-80 and 1980-81 during a public meeting Monday evening at Franklin middle school was Cal Lindberg of the faculty negotiating team. The meeting had been called by the Thief River Falls Education association to answer questions from the public about negotiations.

This session, led by home gardeners Sue Eckes and Betty and Bud Johnson of Roseau, will deal with wide-row planting, composting, mulching, companion planting and natural methods of plant protection.

This minicourse is one in the series "Raise Your Own — and Like It" being held in area communities. Other sessions are scheduled at Roseau on April 12, Thief River Falls on April 26 and Crookston on April 28.

In a session at the Roseau museum assembly room Saturday from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., the subject will be "The 'Whole' Story on Whole Foods", led by Doris Lawson of Harmony food coop in Bemidji. Practical information on whole food cooking, stocking and nutrition will be stressed. Techniques for making yogurt, growing sprouts and setting up a food coop will be included.

Saturday, April 26, in the Pennington county courthouse basement meeting room in Thief River Falls from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m., "Techniques for Drying and Using Home-Dried Foods" will be the topic. Food drying, storage and nutritional preparation will be included in this session led by Marilyn Larson of North Country eco-agriculture center, Minneapolis.

In Crookston Monday, April 28, from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Dowell hall, room 212, a repeat of the drying minicourse is planned.

Pertinent printed materials from county agricultural extension service, public libraries and personal collections will be displayed. Refreshments will be available.

The Agassiz environmental education council is sponsoring these public minicourses. There is no admission charge. For more information locally call John Steidl at 681-5593 or Betty M. Johnson at Roseau, 463-2181.

Corrected Information

Corrected information has been received regarding the Deer Park garden club article published in Monday's edition of the Times. At the April meeting, the club submitted her name to the state society as a candidate for that award, which is given later in the year. Blood Pressure Clinic Slated At Newfolden

A free blood pressure clinic will be held in Newfolden on April 17, from 3 to 6 p.m. in the community center. This clinic is sponsored by the Marshall county nursing service and registered nurses will be checking blood pressures.

High blood pressure can kill and cripple, the nursing service reminds the public. Those who have it and do not take medication to keep it under control may have several things happen. First of all, it will force the heart to strain against the increased pressure and this can lead to heart failure.

High blood pressure can weaken kidneys so they are unable to handle body wastes properly. It can also cause damage to blood vessels in the brain, resulting in a stroke. High blood pressure is one of the greatest causes of death in the country.

How will it affect you? There is probably no way to tell, the nursing service says. Doctors still are not sure of what causes high blood pressure or how it works. It is a complex and mysterious disease.

What can you do about it? Everything! Usually blood pressure can be reduced to within normal limits and kept under control. Follow the doctor's orders; take the medication he prescribes. Do not take chances! Be sure to have your blood pressure checked. There is no charge April 17, just your time.

KRISTI GERARDY, a piano student for nine years, will present a solo piano and flute recital at the Northland community college auditorium Tuesday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m. Kristi, who initiated the idea of the solo recital, is performing simply because she "wants to," she said.

Kristi Gerardy In Solo Piano Recital Tuesday

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

For a nine-year piano student, a music recital will be nothing totally new, although it will be different, according to Kristi Gerardy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ron Gerardy of Thief River Falls, and a student at Northland community college.

Kristi is presenting the solo sophomore piano (and flute) recital because she "wanted to," she said. She initiated the idea of a recital while her music instructors, Barb Geer and Phyllis Dalager, instructors at the college, and Sister Placid, Kristi's piano instructor for the first seven years of her musical career, selected the musical numbers.

The piano recital will be presented Tuesday, April 15 at 7:30 p.m. in the Northland community college auditorium with selections to include: "Invention in F.", by J. S. Bach; "Sonate — Pathetique — Op. 13," "Grave — Allegro," "Adagio" and "Rondo," all selections by L. Van Beethoven; "Prelude in G Minor — Op. 23, No. 5," by Sergei Rachmaninoff," Concerto (flute), Allegro, Adagio, Allegro," by C. F. Abel; "Romance in D-flat — Op. 24, No. 9," by Jean Sibelius; and "Toccata," by Khachaturian. Accompanist is Phyllis Dalager.

Kristi began playing the piano when she was in fifth grade. And, the repetition of practice sessions that accompanies all piano students if they are eager to learn, did not hinder her determination to pursue her musical interest. For this recital, she has been practicing at least three or four hours a day (or more), she said.

"Whenever I'm free, I come down here (college) and play," she added.

Two years ago, Kristi decided she wanted to learn to play an instrument other than the piano, so she began playing the flute. The instrument was not a difficult one to learn to play, she said. This she attributes to her musical background, and to the instruction of Barb Geer, who taught her to play the instrument.

Kristi believes that musical ability is something that is "just in you," she said. She has enjoyed the idea of playing the piano as well as practicing on the piano ever since she first began taking lessons as a fifth grade student, and she is still taking lessons from Sister Placid.

She obtained a small amount of experience performing before crowds while attending Northland college, she said, as each music student is expected to take part in a music recital at the end of each quarter. In high school, Kristi was a piano accompanist in some of the school's musicals, as well as doing solos before small groups. She also plays the piano and organ for weddings.

With the spring recital only five days away, Kristi continues to prepare for her performance. Is there a tinge of nervousness that precedes such a performance?

"I get nervous sometimes," she admitted. "But I don't think its normal not be nervous."

Saint Benedict's college in St. Joseph is Kristi's choice for next year to further her education as a piano major. She is not yet sure of her plans beyond school, she said. But her future lies ahead of her, and included within that awaits a whole new world of musical experiences and memories.

Self Esteem Of Child Topic At Parents' Class

Dr. Scott Bentson, clinical psychologist at the day-night psychiatric unit at Northwestern hospital, will continue the series on self-esteem by discussing "Self-Esteem and the Young Child" on Monday, April 14 at Knox elementary library at 7 p.m.

Topics Dr. Bentson will cover include: What is the notion of self-esteem? How does self-esteem develop in our children? What can parents do to enhance this development?

This is an excellent opportunity for parents to receive information, suggestions, and to share questions and concerns.

Persons may pre-register by calling the AVTI, Adult Education, 681-5424. Drop-ins are welcome too. There is a $1 class fee.

Slow down and live.

Credit and the Farmer

Everyone if faced with the destructive forces of inflation, but perhaps no one is as heavily impacted as the farmer and the agricultural communities.

The economy, with 18 per cent inflation and 19½ per cent prime rate of interest, has not been as gloomy since the depression and, as a result, the outlook for the farmer is dismal. Inflation has driven up the cost of production drastically and it will be difficult for many Minnesota farmers to continue farming because of depressed prices. The Duluth-Superior strike and President Carter's decision to embargo grain shipments to the Soviet Union have severely reduced farm prices and income.

The credit crunch, created by the Federal Reserve Board and the current Administration, is also devastating the farmer, as well as other businesses and individuals. The goal of the FRB was to lower inflation by raising interest rates, but this policy change, approved by the Carter Administration, did not take into account capital intensive businesses. The cost of bank credit farmers need to operate has soared by more than 50 per cent and interest rates exceed 18 per cent.

Solving the credit crunch will not be easy. We must curb inflation by reducing Federal spending and balancing the budget. Only then will we be able to stabilize the economy and move toward a healthy farm and rural economy.

In the meantime, Congress must deal with the credit situation. I have proposed a resolution to establish that it is the sense of Congress that the Federal Reserve Board reexamine its monetary supply, particularly how this affects the prime interest rate available to small businesses, including farmers and individuals such as home buyers. In addition, this resolution seeks a rollback of interest rates to reasonable levels. I am also cosponsoring a bill to establish a national usury law whereby interest rates may not be assessed at more than 10 per cent per year on loans in excess of $300.

Congress has also approved the Economic Emergency Loan Program which increases from $4 billion to $6 billion the amount of loans the Farmers Home Administration may have outstanding for farmers who cannot get credit from normal commercial or cooperative sources. Last week the House also approved a Farmer Owned Grain Reserve Bill which gives the Secretary of Agriculture authority to grant price support loans and entry into existing farmer-owned reserve program for 1979 produced by farmers who are ineligible for such benefits because they did not comply with last year's acreage set-aside program. The bill also allows farmers to borrow up to $100,000 to build storage facilities on the farm.

In addition, the House Agriculture Committee has approved three bills which should help the farmer deal with the credit crunch. Hopefully, the Congress will move rapidly to pass these bills as well.

H.R. 6245 — provides that, if export embargos are announced for national security or foreign policy reasons, the support loan rate for the affected commodity must be raised to not less than the average open-market price during the 15 marketing days before the embargo.

H.R. 6877 — is a grain price support loan bill which would set 1980 and 1981 loan rate minimums, in the absence of export embargoes.

H.R. 6815 — is a price support increase and grain reserve bill which would set minimum price support loans in 1980 and 1981 at not less than 65 per cent of parity for grains and some other crops.

All of these bills, approved and pending, are aids but certainly do not go far enough. Credit is necessary but we need a farm policy that will generate farm income adequate to retire farm debts and allow our farmers a potential for profit. I intend to continue working toward that goal.

The Office of the Inspector General (OIG) in the U.S. Department of Labor was established in October 1978 to prevent and detect fraud and abuse in departmental programs and operations.

Preschool Testing Free For Children

Every Minnesota child is elgible for free screening to detect health problems and determine school rediness before entering kindergarten, according to Tom Lombard, supervisor of the state preschool screening program. Most children are screened when they are three and one-half to four and one-half years of age.

"Two-thirds of the 42,036 children screened during the 1978-79 school year were found to have at least one condition for which they were referred to a health care provider for further evaluation or treatment," Lombard said. This is a noticeable increase from the previous year, when half of those screened had referrable conditions. Lombard attributes the increase to the fact that several additional procedures have been added to the screening program.

"Some of the conditions discovered are minor or are already being treated at the time of screening, but some serious conditions have been identified for the first time as a result of the program," said Wanda Miller, health specialist with the program. "For example, we've found hearing impairment, mental retardation and heart defects requiring surgery."

"Minnesota's preschool screening program is unique because it is not limited to children from low-income families," Lombard said. "We believe that in this state, health care programs available only to the poor are working well, but some middle-income families are skipping preventive health care because of the expense. Minnesota is the only state with a comprehensive preschool screening program that serves the general population, not just targeted groups of children."

The program, which was established by the legislature in 1977, is administered by the Minnesota department of education with assistance from the departments of health and welfare. Local school districts conduct the screening program and are reimbursed for the costs, which averaged $20.93 per child last year. Health and developmental areas covered in the two-hour screening are vision; hearing; speech and language, motor, intellectual and social-emotional development; health history and immunization review; nutrition assessment; laboratory tests for anemia, blood lead levels and sickle cell traits; and a summary interview for parents.

Some districts voluntarily provide health education, counseling about needed health care and free or low-cost immunizations.

School districts contract with health care providers such as county health agencies, physicians, clinics, and laboratory technicians to conduct the screening programs. There is extensive assistance by community volunteers and, in many cases, by other school district staff.

Early detection of conditions needing diagnosis and treatment eliminates problems which could interfere with a child's ability to learn, according to Lombard and Miller. "The high participation rate in the program clearly indicates that the public places a high value on such screening and counseling services," Lombard said.

MFU Requests Spring Planting Credit Relief

Federal government and the state of Minnesota should provide immediate credit relief to help cover the costly spring planting expenses of farmers now squeezed by high interest rates and the tight money supply, Minnesota Farmers Union president Cy Carpenter declared today.

In messages writed to President Cy Carpenter declared today.

In messages wired to President Carter and Governor Albert Quie, Carpenter urged three temporary steps be taken to assist farmers in the current economic crisis.

Carpenter requested:

(1) That both the federal and state governments recognize and identify that an economic emergency now exists for the nation's farmers:

(2) That the federal and state governments "declare a moratorium on all obligations due the government by all farmers with a demonstrated need until October 1, 1980. By so doing, farmers could lessen their borrowing needs by keeping those funds for current operating expenses";

(3) That the U.S. department of agriculture's commodity credit corporation (CCC) provide qualified farmers with advance loans of up to 50 per cent of the value on their 1980 normal crop yields. As a protection to the government, Federal Crop Insurance could be required to cover this loan and the CCC could place a $50,000 limitation on the amount of assistance any one farmer could receive. Farmers would then be able to get necessary operating funds in time for spring planting at prevailing CCC loan rates.

MEMBERS of the Lutheran youth encounter team "Con Amor" (meaning "with love" in Spanish) from Moorhead state university will be guests of the Redeemer-Black River Lutheran parish April 12-13. Team members will meet with the Black River CCY youth at 3 p.m. Saturday and join the Redeemer youth for 5:30 supper and other activities including preparation for leading worship Sunday at Black River and Redeemer Lutheran churches. On Sunday the team will join the Black River congregation for a pot-luck dinner following the morning worship schedule. Among team members pictured is Laurie Sylvester, member of Black River Lutheran parish, in the front row at left.

Carpenter noted that because farmers normally must engage in short and long term borrowing to finance their operations, agriculture is a credit intensive industry with unique cash flow problems. Coupled with severely depressed grain and hog prices and a pressing need for cash to put this year's crops in the ground, farmers have become the hardest hit by the current high interest rate- tight money policy, he explained. "The current credit crisis is not a condition being suffered by a minority of farmers or by those who have made bad management decisions. The credit crunch is affecting the most stable farm operations," he said.

"It clearly must be understood that the actions sought would only provide temporary relief and the only real, viable solution to the current economic problems of farmers is long-range price improvement. A number of proposals now before Congress could help in that regard," he said.

"The public should also understand that it is in their best interest, as well as farmers', to see that this year's food production be started on strong footing. They should also realize that all of the temporary relief measures being sought are in the form of loans that must be repaid with interest," he concluded.

Saving Fuel Is Object Of State Program

"Helping America stay on the move is the responsibility of all Americans, and that's why we're asking everyone's help in accomplishing this goal," said Edward M. Pierce, president of the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA). His request came as part of a new gas-saving campaign called "Helping America Stay on the Move."

Appeals to conserve gasoline have been around for some time, but the message is needed now more than ever. Even though gasoline supplies are adequate right now, the energy shortage is far from over, and prices are climbing higher every week," Pierce said.

"Conserving gasoline doesn't have to be painful; it doesn't have to mean a drastic change in our lifestyles or giving up vacations. Mostly, it means changing the way we think," Pierce said. "And when we help America, we also help ourselves. With the price of unleaded gas at $1.27 a gallon, conserving fuel can mean saving hundreds of dollars a year," he stressed.

For example, keeping your car tuned-up can increase mileage by nine to 15 per cent. For a car that gets 20 mpg and is driven an average of 15,000 miles per year, a tune-up can save 67 to 113 gallons of gasoline a year. At $1.27 a gallon, that translates into approximately $85 to $144 a year. When gas prices reach $1.50 a gallon — as they soon will — the savings will be even greater, Pierce noted.

Another simple way to save gasoline is by making sure your tires are properly inflated; an underinflated tire can reduce mileage by one mile per gallon because your car's engine has to work harder. The difference between 19 mpg and 20 mpg could add up to $50 a year for the above car, said Minnesota AAA.

For those who do a lot of highway and freeway driving, staying within the 55 mph speed limit not only saves lives, but also gasoline. Driving at 70 mph can burn up to 40 per cent more fuel than driving at 55 mph.

Pre-planning trips to take the shortest possible route, eliminating unnecessary errands or combining errands, avoiding use of the vehicle's air conditioner in city driving and car-pooling are just a few of the many ways Minnesotans can help in "Keeping America on the Move," said Minnesota AAA.

These and other tips are outlined in AAA's free brochures titled "Gas Watchers Guide" and "24 Ways to Save Gas." Both are available at local AAA offices or by writing: Traffic Safety Department, Minnesota AAA, 7 Travelers Trail, Burnsville, MN 55337.

Children With Asthma Enjoy Summer Camp

Lung Associations of Minnesota encourage applications for scholarships to Camp Superkids, the camp for youngsters (ages 8-14) with asthma.

Superkids '80 will happen July 7-18 at YMCA Camp Ihduhapi on the shores of Lake Independence at Loretto, about 45 minutes west of the Twin Cities. The camp is approved by the American camping association. For first time campers (ages 7-9), there are two six-day camps (July 7-13 and July 13-18).

All the traditional camp activities are offered — swimming, canoeing, sailing, fishing, horseback riding, arts and crafts, nature walks, volleyball, campfires and sing-alongs. The YMCA staff will supervise activities and help boys and girls improve their skills.

Ten nurses and a rotating team of six physicians and two clinical pharmacists are on hand to provide health care. "Living with Asthma" is a camp program which presents information about breathing exercises, medications and other asthma treatments. Kids have an opportunity to learn from each other about how to cope with their asthma.

Through financial support from the Minnesota Lung-Christmas Seal associations, the per child six-day camp costs $100 and the 12-day camp $185. Financial aid is available on a limited basis. Ancient Skull Is Link To Early Man

by Jeanne Hanson
'U' M News Service

In 1960, two shepherd boys playing in the hills of northern Greece made an astonishing discovery in an abandoned cave — a human skull that was remarkably intact.

The boys had no idea how old it was and at first, neither did the anthropologists who studied it. It was first classified as a Neanderthal skull, from one of the cave people who lived 50,000 to 150,000 years ago. Neanderthal man disappeared as Homo sapiens emerged.

But the skull has now been identified as being much older, and therefore much more significant. According to Rupert Murril, a University of Minnesota anthropologist, the skull is between 300,000 and 700,000 years old and is the "missing link" between the Neanderthals and the earlier Homo Erectus people.

Murrill is now completing a book about the skull, which he has analyzed exhaustively. Ari Poulianos, a Greek anthropologist, has analyzed the cave where the skull was found. The study has involved more than a hundred measurements of the skull, comparisons to other skulls, digs in the cave and several years of hair-raising Greek politics.

Because of this find, we now know that people evolved in more than one place, Murrill. Homo erectus forms have now been found in Asia, Africa and Europe. Peking man and Java man and comparable forms from the Olduvai Gorge in East Africa are commonly known forms of Homo erectus, who lived from nearly two million years ago until the Neanderthals emerged about 150,000 years ago. Now, the European fragments have been supplemented by this excellent example, Merril said.

Dubbed Petralona man, the Greek skull comes from a stage of culture that had fire, very simple tools and some spoken language. The people were hunters and gathers who lived in groups of up to 50, wore animal skins, and ate vegetables, game, lizards and turtles.

They had very large jaws with teeth suitable for ripping into raw meat and roots. The Greek skull is that of a male who lived to be about 40, an advances age for those day,s Murrill said.

To derive that information from a single skull, archaeologists must use everything from painstaking dirt removal to futuristic technology. Study of a skull this ancient requires a sophisticated dating method. In this case, placontologists used electron spin resonance and fission track dating — in other words, they looked at the tracks of electrons to see where natural radiation had caused microscopic defects.

The technique was used on the stalactites and stalagmites found growing on the skull and established its age as at least 200,000 years old.

Next, digs in the cave turned up well-separated layers of animal bones and teeth. Carnivorous animals at this stage of evolution had been found in other caves, so their dates were known. This "yardstick" established a tentative age of 300,000 to 700,000 years for the skull.

The skull was then compared with other skulls, Murrill said. More than a hundred measurements were made, including the length of the brow ridges, the shape of the large upper jaw, and the roundness of the back of the head.

Face and palate measurements were especially important because they showed that the skull is similar to both Peking man and the Neanderthals. "It's almost a perfect connecting link," Murrill said.

Gathering all this information took years, partly because of byzantine Greek politics, he said. Poulianos was sidetracked for awhile when he was exiled by the Greek colonels who were in power. They may have been persuaded to order exile, Murrill said, by Poulianos' own university department chairman, who was a political follower of the colonels.

Since then, Poulianos has focused on the cave analysis because, even now, this colleague will not allow him to study or see the skull. On Murrill's trips to Greece to study the skull, he's been careful not to annoy this department chairman, he said. Now he has his own pictures and models of the skull to work from.

Finding this link between the Neanderthals and Homo erectus completes the picture of early man in Europe, Murrill said. The main stages —man-ape (which merged at least three to five million years ago), Homo erectus, Neanderthal, and Homo sapiens — occurred in all parts of the Old Worls. (North and South America were not populated until 20,000 and 40,000 years ago.

Important as it is, this early link does not answer the question of man's ultimate origins, Murrill said. People may have begun in one of these areas and migrated to the others, or may have begun in each of them indepdentntly in response to similar conditions.

"We really don't know how many cradles of mankind there were," Murrill said.

THIS ANCIENT SKULL, found in a cave by two Greek shepherd boys 20 years ago, has been determined to be between 300,000 and 700,000 years old. It belonged to a male who lived to be about 40 years old — considered unusually old for that time period. The skull is regarded as the "missing link" between the Neanderthal period and the earliest Homo erectus people.

There will be very few changes made on the Lincoln high school basketball and hockey schedules for 1980-81, it was reported this week.

Only change on the boys basketball schedule will find the Prowlers playing just a single game against Roseau while adding defending North Half Region 8AA champion Moorhead to the slate.

The Lincoln girls basketball team has added Karlstad to complete an 18-game schedule the Prowlers did not fill this winter.

Greenway-Coleraine will be missing from the Prowlers' 1980-81 hockey schedule. A second game with Moorhead is mentioned as a possibility to fill out the schedule.

The 1980-81 boys basketball schedule will feature home games with Grafton, Crookston, Climax, Roseau, Bagley, Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Warren and Detroit Lakes, with road games at Moorhead, Kennedy, Bemidji, Mahnomen, East Grand Forks, Crookston, International Falls, Fergus Falls and Park Rapids.

Girls basketball team will host Karlstad, Park Rapids, Warren, Roseau, Moorhead, Bemidji, East Grand Forks, Fergus Falls and Crookston while traveling to Fisher, McIntosh-Winger, Crookston, Greenbush, Fertile-Beltrami, Bemidji, Fosston, Detroit Lakes and East Grand Forks.

Hockey schedule is expected to include home games against Fergus Falls, Bemidji, Fargo South, Lake of the Woods, Roseau, East Grand Forks, Crookston, Detroit Lakes, Warroad and maybe Moorhead. Road games will be played at Mount St. Benedict, Grand Forks Red River, East Grand Forks, Grand Forks Central, Warroad, Bemidji, Moorhead, Roseau, Hallock and Fergus Falls.

Region 8A-8AA Meetings Planned

Site of the 1981 Section 8 high school hockey tournament and winner of the 1979-80 Region 8AA Sportsmanship Award contest are expected to be announced during a Region 8A-8AA committee meeting Wed., April 23, at Detroit Lakes.

Thief River Falls hosted the 1980 Section 8 hockey tournament and won the first-ever Region 8AA Sportsmanship Award in 1978-79. Thief River Falls and East Grand Forks have been invited to make a presentation April 23 bidding for the 1981 Section 8 tournament, and Lincoln high school athletic director Russ Smith said Thief River Falls will definitely try to land the event.

Finalists announced earlier for the 1979-80 Region 8AA Sportsmanship Award include Thief River Falls, Detroit Lakes, St. Cloud Apollo and Cold Spring-Rocori.

Miscellaneous

+Two Detroit Lakes seniors moved into the top five all-time hockey scorers for the Lakers during the 1979-80 season when Bob Landry scored 26 points and finished his prep career with 93 points, good for third place on the Lakers' charts, and Bill Ries collected 31 points for a career total of 76 and a fifth place tie with Curt Howe, a 1965 Detroit Lakes graduate now living in Thief River Falls and a hockey official. Mike Neitzke, a member of this year's NCAA champion University of North Dakota hockey team, is the No. 1 all-time Detroit Lakes hockey scorer with 100 goals, 104 assists and 204 points. Tom Evans is No. 2 with 97 goals, 86 assists and 183 points. New Northland community college hockey coach Tom Goddard has contacted both Landry and Ries about playing with the Northmen next winter.

+A four-year lease was signed Friday turning over operation of the Mount St. Benedict school from the Sisters of St. Benedict to the Crookston Diocese. Among the proposed operational changes, said newly named headmaster Rev. Robert Bester, includes cooperation with the Crookston public schools athletic programs. Tennis and golf were mentioned immediately. "And I'm not ruling out looking into the chances of a mutual hockey program," said Bester.

FIRST CORNER in the 1600-meter run showed Bemidji's Ron Wolfe and Thief River Falls' Bruce Johnson running 1-2 and that's how they finished the race — the metric equivalent of a mile run — during Tuesday's 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet at the Winter Shows building in Crookston. Wolfe was an easy winner in 4:32.98, which was converted into a building record 4:34.58 mile. Johnson was clocked in 4:59.56. Wolfe also ran legs on two winning relay teams to help lead the Lumberjacks to their third straight NWAC indoor title.

Bemidji Wins Third Straight NWAC Indoor Championship

Bemidji used the track portion of the 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference track and field meet Tuesday to run away with its third straight NWAC indoor title in the Winter Shows building at Crookston.

The Lumberjacks ran up 83 points, followed by Fergus Falls with 65, East Grand Forks 51, Crookston 30 and Thief River Falls 8.

Fergus Falls challenged Bemidji most of the way, scoring heavily in the field events to trail the Lumberjacks just 58-54 with four events remaining. But after a 1-2-4 finish in the pole vault where Scott Mesker was a winner at 11-6, the Otters failed to score in the 1400-meter sprint medley relay won by the Lumberjacks in 3:22.11 to give them a 64-54 edge.

Bemidji then pulled away with a 3-4 finish by Nelson Rotto and Duane Fisher in the 200-meter dash; a victory by Steve Lumbar with a 10:47.73 in the 3200-meter (two-mile) run; and a meet-ending triumph in the 1400-meter relay in 3:11.89.

"We're weak in the field events," admitted Bemidji coach Ray Farwell whose team had just three-place finishers in four field events. "But we've got a lot of good runners. Once we got on the track it made a big difference. I knew if the guys ran the way they're capable of running we'd do all right."

Best of the Bemidji runners is senior Ron Wolfe, a classy distance ace who won the 1600-meter (mile) run in 4:32.98 and ran legs on both of the Lumberjacks' winning relay teams.

"He's a super runner; a great kid," said Farwell of Wolfe.

Bemidji sophomore Mike Hoven was the meet's only individual double winner with two victories in the hurdles, winning the 60-meter highs in 9.16 and taking the 60-meter intermediates in 8.86. He also ran a leg on the 1400-meter relay.

Duane Fisher was a winner in the 400-meter dash in 54.65 and Tom Campbell took the high jump at six feet to complete Bemidji's list of winners.

And Bemidji's victory margin could conceivably been larger, but the Lumberjacks lost the services of high jumper Rob Egersdorf and distance runner Brian Kraft. Egersdorf, a third place finisher in last year's Class AA state meet with a 6-7 jump, quit the team. Kraft, rated by Farwell as being in the same class with Wolfe, was dispatched from the team for a rules violation.

"We've got some problems," admitted Farwell. "You can't lose two kids like that (Egersdorf and Kraft) and not feel it."

In addition to Mesker, Fergus Falls had winners in Brian Bruns with a 19-10½ long jump and Darwin Boe with a 7.29 in the 60-meter dash.

East Grand Forks, without the services of point-producer Kevin Tack because of a rules violation, had winners in Ted Sundin with a 2:15.83 in the 800-meter run, Steve Driscoll with a 24.19 in the 200-meter dash and the 700-meter relay in 1:27.79.

Crookston's Keith Johnson rounded out the winner's circle with a 49-10 shot put.

Using the metric system for the first time, all of Tuesday's running events go into the books as NWAC indoor records. And Wolfe, who nearly lapped the field in the 1600-meter run, was given the building record for a mile run when his 4:32.98 was corrected on a conversion table to the equivalent of a 4:34.58 mile run. Steve Richardson of Fergus Falls held the Winter Shows building record with a 4:39.8 mile in 1973.

Thief River Falls' top finish was a second place 1600-meter run by sophomore Bruce Johnson in 4:55.63. Only other Thief River Falls points came from fourth place sprint medley and 700-meter relays.

The victory extends Bemidji's NWAC track domination that now includes nine conference titles in the past six years. The Lumberjacks have won four of the past five NWAC indoor meets (losing to Fergus Falls by one-half point in 1977) and will be looking for sixth straight NWAC outdoor title when they host the May 6 event. And Farwell warns, "I think we'll be better outdoors."

Thief River Falls will be back at Crookston Tuesday to compete in the Pirate Jaycees Relays at 4 p.m.

All parents with children involved in basketball in grades 3-11 in Thief River Falls are urged to attend.

Freshman Title Goes To Bemidji At NWAC Meet

Bemidji, an easy winner in the varsity competition, was also a winner, but by a closer margin, in the freshman portion of the 1980 Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet Tuesday at the Winter Shows building in Crookston.

Point totals in the freshman meet, run simultaneously with the varsity event, showed Bemidji with 61, East Grand Forks 57 and one-third, Fergus Falls 34, Thief River Falls 33 and Crookston 25 and one-third.

It was a surprisingly solid performance by the untested Thief River Falls freshmen, said Lincoln high school head track coach Bill McGann.

"I was really surprised with some of the younger kids," noted McGann when talking about the NWAC results. "They really did well. It looks like we're going to definitely count on some of the younger kids this spring."

Thief River Falls picked up two wins in the freshman competition as Chuck Lowell ran a 5:23.79 in the 1600-meter run and Steve Kruta went 2:19.23 in the 800-meter run.

Jerry Kertz had a pair of second place finishes in the hurdles, going 11:37 in the 60-meter highs and 11:07 in the 60-meter intermediates.

Prowlers Open April 17 . . .

Baseball Team Needs Offense

Charlie Cornell

Offense, the missing ingredient the past two years for the Lincoln high school baseball team, is once again the question mark one week before the 1980 season opener for the Prowers who will be at Red Lake Falls Thurs., April 17, to start things. They'll host Bagley the following day in their home opener. Both games have 4:30 p.m. starting times.

"Hitting. That's got to be the key," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "The pitching will be okay and our defense will be pretty decent. But we've got to find some kids who can hit the ball."

The Prowlers haven't done much in the way of hitting in recent years, finished with an anemic .209 team batting average in 1978 and improving only slightly to .216 in 1979.

Dave Odegaard, a versatile senior infielder who may find himself playing third base, shortstop of second base during the course of an afternoon, was the only Thief River Falls hitter to finish above .300 last spring, going 10-for-30 for a .333 batting average. Only three other Prowlers even hit above .200. One of them was senior Paul Drees, expected to anchor this year's outfield, who hit .269.

Because of their hitting problems, the Prowlers finished 4-10 in 1979, the worst record in the 28-year history of the sport at the school. a 5-7 finish in 1970 was the only other losing season the Prowlers have experienced since they first fielded a baseball team in 1952.

"We're going to take a lot of batting practice, and pray," offered Cornell. His line-up isn't set yet, said Cornell, "but whoever can hit the ball will play — someplace."

Thief River Falls' pitching staff lacks Scott Sabo, the superb lefthander who had a 1.89 earned-run-average and 71 strike-outs in 37 innings last year, but does include five very capable hurlers and two others who could be surprises. Cornell says the pitching staff is "adequate."

The pitchers include seniors Kelly Gutterud, Jeff Ulrich and Wayne Huseth, junior Greg Harder and sophomore Mark Harder. Gutterud pitched both high school and American Legion baseball in 1979 and is the group's most experienced hurler. Greg and Mark Harder both enjoyed success in the younger Elks program last summer.

Sophomores Eric Bondy, a transfer student, and Kevin Sanders, a newcomer to the sport, could find themselves on the mound, too.

Huseth, Bondy, Sanders and Greg Harder are all lefthanders.

When not pitching Gutterud will probably be at second base, Ulrich at shortstop, Huseth or Greg Harder at first base and Mark Harder at third base, with Odegaard playing wherever an opening occurs.

Senior Jim Nyland will be back for a third year behind the plate, but he might be sharing the catching duties with Jim Hallamek, an impressive freshman transfer.

Rest of the 42-member squad — one of the largest groups in recent memory reporting for Lincoln baseball, includes seniors Tom Drury, Rick Stimac, Mark Schmitke, Dan Cullen, Jon Pinkerton and Dan Thorstad; juniors Jeff Mongoven, Dave Kays, Dale Dobias and John Stimac; sophomores Rob Blankenfeld, John Dunphy, Bill Kron, Rick Langlie, Dan Odegaard, Rob Peterson and John Helm; freshmen Tim Bergland, Scott Sheridan and Kerry Wollin; and eighth graders Ryan Bakke, Bill Benedict, Tim Bottem, Brian Kemnitz, Scott Johnston, Gary Cornell, Alan Ness, Doug Odegaard, Jeff Rosetta, Rick Spong, Dave Stimac and Craig Helm.

Many of those younger players were members of the two Thief River Falls Elks state tournament teams last summer.

Baseball was scheduled to be a budget cut in School District 564 at the end of the 1979 season. It was rescued, but in money-saving moves Cornell lost an assistant coach and has no funds for a junior varsity team. Northland community college work-study student Terry Sullivan will assist with the junior varsity team, but volunteer umpires will be needed and the team will travel only with the varsity. And lacking an assistant coach, Cornell faces the prospects of six roster cuts to get down to a workable number of players.

Moorhead, scheduled to be in Thief River Falls Mon., April 28, is the preseason North Half Region 8AA baseball favorite. The Spuds lost to Little Falls in last year's Region 8AA finals, with the Flyers going on to win the Class state tournament title.

Isaacson, Gjovik Named Co-Captains

Mark Isaacson and Nate Gjovik were named co-captains of the 1980-81 Lincoln high school swimming team Monday at the Prowlers' post-season banquet honoring members of the 1979-80 team.

Special award winners were Jon Pinkerton, most valuable; Dennis Booth, most improved; Dan Schoonhoven, winner of the coaches' award; and Isaacson, hardest worker.

Pinkerton and Schoonhoven served as co-captains of the 1979-80 Prowlers who finished the season with a 7-2 dual meet record.

Athletic letters were presented Monday to seniors Dan Thorstad, Schoonhoven, Pinkerton and Booth; juniors Steve Poissant, Marty Pluth, Kevin Grochow, Tom Eckstein, Isaacson and Gjovik; sophomores Keith Grochow and Rodney Nichols; and eighth grader Jeff Rosetta.

During the 1979-80 season coach John Kopari's Prowlers defeated Detroit Lakes 50-32, Fosston 45-38 and 94-72, Grand Forks Central 106-65, Grand Forks Red River 92-70, Fargo South 93-70 and Moorhead 109-62. Both dual meet losses came at the hands of unbeaten Bemidji, 97-72 and 55-27.

The Prowlers also competed in invitational meets at Fosston, International Falls and Fergus Falls while hosting their own Prowler relays and Thief River Falls invitational meets. They closed the year by participating in the Section 3 swimming and diving championships at Bemidji State University.

COMPLETING A BATON exchange after the first leg of the 1400-meter sprint medley relay, Jim Dusek of Thief River Falls handed off to teammate Paul Wennberg during Tuesday's Northwest Athletic Conference indoor track meet at the Crookston Winter Shows building. Kevin Grochow and Gregg Ness followed Dusek and Wennberg as the Prowlers placed fourth in the event in 3:40.42. Bemidji won it in 3:22.11. The Lumberjacks won the meet with 83 points. The Prowlers ran last with eight points.

National Wildlife Federation Conducts Annual Opinion Poll

Over a two-year period, the membership of the National Wildlife Federation, the nation's largest citizens conservation group, has shifted from a position favoring nuclear power plants to an anti-nuclear position, according to a new survey.

The 43,239 members of the NWF who responded to a poll appearing in the February-March issue of National Wildlife magazine, were asked, "Taking into account all you have heard or read, how do you feel about nuclear power plants?" Fifty-one percent of the respondents gave an "unfavorable" response, while 40 per cent answered that they were "favorable."

In an independent survey done in 1978 by Resources for the Future, a scientifically-chosen sample of NWF's membership was asked the same question. At that time, 51 per cent gave a "favorable" response, while only 41 per cent were "unfavorable." In both surveys the remaining respondents registered "no opinion."

Thus, during a two-year period that saw the near-disaster at Three Mile Island, in Pennsylvania, and a number of other nuclear power mishaps, the attitude of a cross-section of American conservationists shifted from 51 per cent "favorable" to 51 per cent "unfavorable" on nuclear power plants.

In response to other questions put to them in the annual survey the NWF membership—

+ Called for greater expenditures on environmental protection— despite a rising rate of inflation.

+ Expressed an overwhelming belief that the nation's pollution problem can be solved without unemployment or a reduced lifestyle.

+ Rejected a "hands off" policy towards wildlife in favor of more expenditures for wildlife management.

Inflation

This is generally considered the nation's No. 1 problem. One study found that environmental regulations contribute one-half of one per cent annually to the rate of inflation. To protect our environment, should we spend: more — 65 per cent; about the same as now — 20 per cent; less — 7 per cent.

Pollution

Do you believe pollution can be cleaned up while preserving jobs and maintaining our present standard of living? Yes — 81 per cent; no — 12 per cent; don't know — 7 per cent.

Wildlife

Some people favor a hands-off, "let nature take its course" policy for wildlife. Others favor spending more federal and state money on management, habitat improvement, and research. Which do you favor?

Hands-off — 9 per cent; spend more — 85 per cent; no opinion — 5 per cent.

Nuclear Power

Taking into account all you have heard or read, how do you feel about nuclear power plants?

Favorable — 40 per cent; unfavorable — 51 per cent; no opinion — 9 per cent.

NWF membership survey differs from most public opinion polls in that it reaches more than ten times the number of people who usually take part in polls. In addition, the NWF survey is the largest annual poll aimed not at the general public, but at persons who have demonstrated a specific interest in environmental issues by joining a conservation group.

Respondents returned their ballots at their own expense. Complete results of the survey appear in the April-May issue of National Wildlife.

The NWF survey also asked readers to help set federation priorities "for the crucial decade that lies ahead," by ranking three energy options and five key environmental issues. Respondents assigned the number one energy priority to development of alternative energy sources, with conservation of energy ranking second. Water conservation and clean-up was ranked as the most pressing environmental issue. The following are the results of these rankings, with the percentage of first place votes in parentheses:

Energy issues — 1. develop alternate sources (53); 2. conserve more energy (37); 3. produce more fossil fuel (10).

Environmental issues — 1. clean up and conserve water (23); 2. save wildlife (25); 3. control land use (18); 4. curb air pollution (10); 5. curb population growth (24).

The NWF poll seems to indicate that more people are beginning to recognize that the country faces serious energy and environmental problems, for nearly twice as many members responded to this year's poll as in 1979, when 26,134 respondents participated.

Youth Firearms Safety Course Starts April 22

A youth firearms safety course will begin Tues., April 22, it was announced by program coordinator Irving Swanson.

The course, featuring four two-hour sessions, will be taught in the basement meeting room of the Pennington county law enforcement center beginning at 7 p.m. A field trip, which will be the only time students will be asked to bring a firearm to the program, will be held Sat., May 3, to complete the course.

A Minnesota firearms safety certificate is required of all hunters between the ages of 12-15. The state will not issue a certificate to anyone below the age of 12, so the youth firearms course is restricted to those who will have reached the age of 12 before June 1, 1980. The next scheduled youth firearms course will be given here in early September for those too young for the June 1 cut-off date.

Program Schedule

Tues., April 22 — Registration. Game laws and slide presentation on safety by conservation officer Don Fearn. Film, "Sweet Sundays Gone." Training film No. 1.

Wed., April 23 — Training film No. 2. Types of firearms, shooting positions and field carries presented by Irving Swanson and Harvey Tauer. Test preview. Bow hunting presentation by Dana Klos.

Lakers Earn First Playoff Win Tuesday

Warroad Lakers handled the St. Boniface Mohawks 7-1 Tuesday to pick up their first win in the third game of the best-of-seven Central Amateur Senior Hockey (CASH) League championship playoff series.

The series began Friday when the Mohawks pulled out a 5-4 double overtime win at Warroad. St. Boniface was an easy 7-3 winner at home Sunday before the Lakers turned things around at Warroad last night.

Fourth game of the series will be played Thursday at St. Boniface at 8 p.m. A fifth game will be played Saturday at Warroad at 8. If needed, a sixth game will be played Sunday at St. Boniface at 7:30 and a seventh game would be played Tuesday at Warroad at 8.

The Warroad-St. Boniface winner will not only take the CASH League playoff title, but will be the Manitoba champions and will compete in the Western Allen Cup playoffs starting April 18 in either British Columbia or Alberta.

Townships Have Proposal For TRF Fire Plan

acting mayor for the evening council meeting in the absence of Mayor Bob Carlson.

Permission was requested by Jim E. Walker, city engineer, to send preliminary plans for First street widening to the state for approval so that the contractor may proceed with the signal lights for the widened street.

Resolution was offered by alderman Dr. Don Goodrich, and seconded by alderman Ole Engelstad to approve the preliminary plans on the First street widening, and also to approve the plans and specifications for the following 1980 projects: street repair service line insulation, Greenwood street west, Oakland park bridge and bridge extension, First street widening (Main-Horace), Greenwood street (Crocker-Freeman's first division), alley from Second street to Third street between LaBree and Main, a portion of the alley storm sewers, Greenwood cemetery water, Kendall avenue, Columbia and Jerome avenues, Cardinal drive, and Cardinal and Oriole avenues.

In further action, the drawing for the airport layout plan, constructed for a 3,400 foot cross-wind strip at the airport was referred to the airport committee.

Three special bills appearing before council members were approved following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Clayton Restad. Bills included: $21,158.66 for the second half of the year (July 1 to December 31) for law enforcement expenses; $4,000 for the purchase of a loader for the sanitation department from Dan Sustad of Hydra-Mac of Viking; and various miscellaneous statements from Stewart and Walker, Inc. in the amount of $14,759.62.

Bid was accepted from Rieten and Young, Inc. of Grand Forks in the amount of $17,028 for the sanitation truck for the sanitation department. The truck purchased has a wet sleeve engine which is recommended due to future reduced maintenance costs.

Bid of $44,618.21 from Hansen Ford of Grand Forks for a diesel dump truck with snowplow was accepted following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Restad.

In Memory of Our Beloved Betty Ann Conners

It's been over two years since you left us, my darling, and we miss you so very much because we love you so very much and we remember all the loving things you did for us. The memory of your beautiful face and sweet smile and your ever loving, generous, forgiving heart will remain in our hearts forever. You were so brave and patient through all your long suffering and heartaches, but God blessed you with high intelligence and a wonderful, keen, clear mind that enabled you to communicate with those you loved, in person, by telephone or letters right to the end. Only four days before you left us you wrote four wonderful letters to Timmy, Casey, Mike and to me. Your handwriting was beautiful and clear as it always was. To those people who hurt your feelings in any way, they will never see God. They are only pretenders and always will be. But we all know, my beloved Betty, that you are a true Christian and always have been. So we all know, my darling, that you are safe in the arms of Jesus and that we will all see you and be with you again. Sadly missed by your sons, Timmy, Michael, Casey and your mother, Dorothy Gubrud. 1t29c

USDA To Buy Wheat At $3.70 Until Thursday

United States department of agriculture has announced a wheat purchase program through the county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service. The wheat will be paid for upon delivery by the seller to a locally approved grain elevator.

Payment rate in Pennington county for this first offer will be $3.70 per bushel, with normal discounts and premiums applied when the wheat is graded at delivery. This offer was opened at 8 a.m. on Tuesday, and will continue until 3 p.m. on Thursday, April 10.

All wheat is eligible for the purchase program, with the exception of wheat in the revised three-year grain reserve program. Past participation in the set-aside program is not a requirement.

The local ASCS office will arrange for the delivery of the purchased wheat within 30 days after the contract is approved. In the event that local storage or delivery facilities are not available, the seller will be paid an on-farm storage fee of 25 cents per bushel per year. The department fully expects to take delivery of all wheat purchased within 30 to 60 days.

The $3.70 per bushel figure is 15 to 20 cents a bushel over the current market price. Farmers offering wheat for sale under the program will be notified approximately April 15 if their offer has been accepted and the grain is to be delivered. Although payment is to be made on delivery, it is possible for those farmers whose wheat is accepted for sale to receive an advance of 80 per cent of the contract price.

For further information, any producer with wheat for sale should contact the ASCS office on Dale street in Thief River Falls. The telephone number is 681-1612.

The good thing about the seasons is that all we have to do is wait. We may not like the weather we have now, but something different will come soon. We experience a great variety of weather in a dozen months.

It's a great consolation to have this mighty spectacle of spring and autumn, sun and rain, day and night continually unfold around us.

It's the dependable rhythm of nature, the ebb and flow of seasons, the beauty of earth and sky, which gives our lives a firm ground tone.

But Christianity is not a nature religion. It finds the revelation of God not in nature alone but even more in human personality — our own, as the children of God, and supremely in Jesus as the Son of God.

That is why it is necessary for us to become an important part of His Church.

We can get in the mood to understand the presence of God when we experience the quietness of the woodlands or hear waves breaking against the cliffs, or look heavenward at the billowing clouds. But it is not enough to get in a mood. We must join in the communion and fellowship of other believers in order to obtain our purpose and faith.

Come, let us go into the House of the Lord . . .

Wishing For Spring

Inflation Affects Ideas On Education

by Donald C. Hill,
President
Minn. Education Ass'n.

Seems as though everybody is upset about inflation. It affects all of us.

It causes universal griping and it can be a common foe for us to unite against — unless coming to grips with it means cutting our special interests. One special interest is our children. Inflation has a negative impact on defenseless, unsuspecting, innocent kids.

While all of us adults fret and stew over inflation, kids who don't understand the situation or might never know about missed opportunities will be the real victims of changing priorities that result from inflation.

But who has answers for solving inflation? Some say more regulation. Some say less. To freeze or not to freeze. Some blame the oil companies. Others the OPEC nations. Democrats, Republicans, Liberals, Far Right, big business, labor, our salaries — all get blamed sooner or later. In Brainerd, they probably blame the water and in St. Paul the Irish.

Some of the decisions made by our elected leaders that affect inflation, which is the worst since the civil War, are short-term political decisions made to con the voters. I'm surprised one of them hasn't suggested that Congress pass a law against it — or fund it.

Well, whatever. For all of us in public business, inflation is especially dangerous. Candidates running for public office like to blame inflation entirely on goverment spending and they promise major cuts. Major cuts mean cuts in service every time.

Service cuts in education are reflected usually in reductions of professional staff and the materials they use. The reason that usually is true is because the public college and public K-12 school budgets are well trimmed to start with.

Whipping the public school bureaucracy is a favorite pastime — but soon after the cuts start, they too often touch the students in a direct and negative way.

The cuts we hear about today are to cut the curriculum, cut extracurricular activities, increase class sizes.

Taken to any significant length, these cuts could destroy any reason for continuing the school as a school — it could become a holding place to teach discipline and a submission. There wouldn't be much motivation or education.

Kids who don't get a chance or whose classes have 10 too many in them inherit all of the great economic bungles we adults conjure up.

For 10 years, we've been fooling around with the numbers and formulas while we've had little positive change that has been affordable in the public schools.

Debilitating cuts in available monies have caused administrators to qualify educational decisions with fiscal restraint that is counterproductive.

Example: In our nation's capital — seat of the ultimate in political power — next year average class sizes will increase on the average of three students, to 29.

Economically, that's a good decision. Educationally, it is unacceptable. Many of the troubles they have already will be compounded.

Conversely, it was exciting to hear about White Bear Lake, passing a levy referendum to continue an additional nine-mill tax, and they have a plan to lower class sizes.

It's easy to say "cut" if someone else must make the cut. All the way up and down the line from President and Governor to Congress and legislators to school officials to kids and back to the first budget decisions, we who have a sense of responsibility must insert ourselves to make sure the decisions are the best.

Because of inflation and all the pressure put on to cut, the school aids legislation this year has little increased income for schools for general expenditure that could have been used to avoid the cuts in program — so some schools will be O.K. and some face tough cuts.

So, what's new? Most schools will survive. Most legislators say that next year they'll put big money into increases to help schools keep up with inflation.

Problem is, every dollar that didn't get put into the average school budget will cause the shortage carried over to be just that much more — so the chance of catching up becomes impossible.

And the fact is we've been spending less of our state budget for education each year — at the rate of about one per cent a year — for the last decade.

I heard a person on a TV street interview say, "I took care of my kids when they were young and now parents must do the same." He, as all of us, must realize that all the children going to all the public schools belong to all of us.

And, the only ones who really know if we cheated our kids are those of us who made the decisions.

It's hard to explain to a child that the educational environment is what it is because of inflation. But, I suppose there is a part of all of us that wonders what might have been had our environment been different.

Oh, I know we all think we're successful, so our school must have been great. But we really were dependent on someone else to make the decisions. Good or bad, I guess we owe them. Good or bad, our children will owe us.

Motorists Can Save Money By Not Littering

State motorists can reduce collection costs and preserve the beauty of Minnesota's roadside areas by refraining from littering, reminds the Minnesota Department of Transportation (Mn-DOT).

Mn-DOT, which spends approximately $800,000 on litter collection a year, urges motorists to use litter bags and to empty them at rest areas and service stations.

During the past year, Mn-DOT collected 5,538 truck loads of litter along Minnesota trunk highways in the department's 16 maintenance areas.

Motorists pay for the cost of collecting litter because the monies come from the state Highway User Tax fund which is paid by motor vehicle registration fees and state motor fuel taxes.

Additional litter cleanup costs include dump fees, administrative overhead and the costs to other governmental units for picking up litter along county and township roads, federal forest roads and municipal streets.

Penalties for persons convicted of littering include a fine as high as $500 and-or a jail sentence as long as 90 days. For a second littering offense, the minimum fine is $100.

Besides reducing collection costs and avoiding possible penalties, proper disposal of litter by motorists helps keep roadsides attractive and more enjoyable for state travelers.

Grand Jury Process Explained By Court

Which one of the following legal proceedings is closed to the public? (A) Minnesota Supreme Court hearing, (B) divorce court, (C) grand jury proceeding or (D(family court.

Answer (C) is correct. Grand jury proceedings are secret; neither the public, the news media, the person under investigation nor the judge has a right to be present. Why is this so and what function does the grand jury serve in our legal system? An explanation is provided by the Minnesota supreme court information agency.

Before someone suspected of committing a major crime such as murder, criminal negligence or a politically sensitive crime such as the shooting of a police officer can be brought to trial, the prosecuting attorney first brings the witnesses and evidence before a grand jury. Only about one per cent of all criminal cases are brought before a grand jury. First degree murder must be brought before a grand jury.

Function of a grand jury is to investigate the facts of a case and to make sure that there is enough evidence to warrant bringing someone to trial. If members of the grand jury believe that the case should be tried and there is "probable cause" that the accused is guilty, they will issue a legal document called an indictment which allows the accused to be brought to trial.

Being charged with a serious crime and having to defend yourself in court is a heavy burden. The grand jury stands as a barrier between the prosecutor and the accused. The grand jury also assists the prosecutor who uses it as a testing ground for the case. If the prosecutor is unable to present enough evidence to establish probable guilt, the grand jury won't bring an indictment. The case usually ends there. In this way, the grand jury serves as a security for the public against possibly vindictive prosecutions.

In Minnesota the grand jury system is organized by county with the exception of an occasional multi-county grand jury to handle special investigations. The grand jury is composed of 16 to 23 citizens chosen from voter lists. The county attorney requests the district court to call for the grand jury to be seated to hear evidence on a case. Depending on the number of serious crimes in the county, the grand jury can be in session from one month, such as in the Twin Cities, to a year, as in the more rural counties. Because of the limited number of major crimes in the rural areas, less than one quarter of the counties in the state have grand juries that meet regularly.

Once the grand jury has been chosen, a local judge reads them instructions and then departs, leaving the county attorney in charge. The county attorney is the legal advisor to the grand jury. Less formal than a trial, the grand jury is a valuable investigative tool for the prosecutor. It has broad subpoena power to summon evidence and call witnesses. If a witness fails to appear, the grand jury may hold her in contempt. In presenting the case against the accused, the prosecutor may present evidence which is favorable to the defendant as well. Members of the grand jury may question witnesses directly or ask that the county attorney bring in other witnesses to testify.

The accused may be called as a witness but has no right to speak on her own behalf. The accused may have a lawyer present only if she has waived her immunity from prosecution but the lawyer cannot speak or ask questions. A court reporter keeps a record of the proceeding for possible future use at trial by either the prosecutor or defense attorney.

It must be remembered that the grand jury proceeding is not a trial; the accused will have her day in court later. After the prosecutor has presented the case, the grand jury deliberates in secret and decides whether or not to issue an indictment against the accused. The decision does not have to unanimous, only 12 votes are needed.

The grand jury has broad power to expand on the prosecutor's investigation, or it can pursue its own investigation into other unsolved crimes or political corruption. The grand jury also has the authority to visit the county jail and see to it that prisoners are being treated humanely.

Because grand jurors have little or no legal training, the possibilities exist for abuse in its investigations. Therefore, much of the success of the grand jury depends upon the performance of the county attorney who is elected for a four-year term on a non-partisan ballot. The county attorney advises the county board; defends in any legal actions brought against the county; handles all serious crimes; and does juvenile prosecutions, mental commitments, and civil work such as taxes for the county.

We can now see why grand jury proceedings are secret. Without a grand jury, citizens could be forced to suffer the pain and expense of defending themselves against reckless accusations. Grand jury secrecy also protects the members of the grand jury who are able to speak freely and vote on sensitive topics without fear of outside pressures.

The grand jury can evaluate evidence in secret and screen out baseless charges, which might otherwise damage someone's reputation if made public. If the grand jury slips up in its task, the accused still has the chance to defend herself in court and make use of all the accompanying legal rights and protections. Because it's only in a courtroom, open to the public, where an accused person can be tried and found guilty or not guilty.

Say Hazardous Waste Should Be Reported

Midwest regional office of the U.S. environmental protection agency (U.S. EPA) has announced a new program, "Seek and Find", to uncover improperly managed hazardous waste disposal sites throughout Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin. By calling the toll-free hazardous waste hotline, citizens can report known or suspencted sites where hazardous waste material has been improperly disposed of or stored.

"Hazardous waste generation in the United States has increased dramatically since the end of World War II," said John McGuire, U.S. EPA regional administrator, "but the impacts of improperly managed hazardous wastes have only recently been recognized by the public as a critical issue. Until all such waste sites are located, potential threats to our health and the environment may sit unattended in fields and warehouses like ticking time bombs. The potential danger is too great to ignore."

The "Seek and Find" program will enable citizens to report suspected disposal sites in their community via the hazardous waste hotline, a toll-free number. Illinois residents may call 800-972-3170, and residents outside Illinois may call 800-621-3191, Monday through Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

"We are seeking assistance from all areas of the community, including state and local governments, industry, agricultural and business organizations, environmental and public interest groups as well as the general public," said McGuire.

Hazardous wastes may be found in open fields, abandoned buildings, along roadsides, or near wooded areas and swamplands. Warning signs include stockpiles of 55-gallon drums, strong chemical ordors, oil or sludge spills on roads or waterways, and dead or dying vegetation in fields and woodlands. "Any single sign or combination of signs should be reported," said McGuire. "Citizens should not attempt to investigate on their own, as toxic fumes, flammable chemicals or explosive material may be present."

Hazardous wastes are discarded chemical substances, usually stored in liquid form in 55-gallon steel drums, and are flammable, reactive, corrosive or toxic by nature. Improper disposal of these dangerous wastes can cause contamination of drinking water supplies, explosions, fires and air pollution, and can harm people and property through direct or indirect contact.

U.S. EPA estimates that of the 30-40 million tons of hazardous wastes generated annually in the U.S., only 10 per cent are now properly managed. Major generators include the primary metals, organic and inorganic chemicals, electroplating, textiles, petroleum refining and rubber and plastics industries. Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and Indiana are among the nation's top 10 states in the generation of hazardous wastes.

A free borchure on the "Seek and Find" program is available in single or mass copies through the Office of Public Information, U.S. EPA, Region V, 230 South Dearborn Street, Chicago, Illinois 60604, or by calling 312-353-2072.

Most Distant Stars Studied By Astronomer

'U' M News Service

Most distant stars ever observed outside the Milky Way and its small group of neighboring galaxies have been studied closely for the first time by an astronomer who has found that the stars' physical characteristics are like those of the stars in our own Milky Way.

Her findings are strong evidence in support of a long-held assumption by many scientists that the laws of physics are the same throughout the universe.

Roberta M. Humphreys, professor of astronomy at the University of Minnesota, observed the very bright stars in a spiral galaxy called M101, 24 million light years from Earth. A light year is the distance light travels in a year at the speed of 186,000 miles per second — approximately six trillion miles.

These stars are the brightest yet observed in any galaxy, excluding stellar oddballs like supernovae (exploding stars)," said Humphreys, whose work was supported by the National science foundation (NSF).

"These extremely luminous stars are important to astronomers because they can be used as cosmic distance indicators. Stars like these may serve as beacons, indicating the distances to more and more distant galaxies and will eventually yield a more accurate picture of the rate of expansion of the universe," Humphreys said.

The Minnesota astronomer also made observations of four stars in NGC 2403, another spiral galaxy about 12 million light years away. All her observations were made with the 158-inch Mayall telescope at Kitt Peak national observatory near Tucson, Ariz. The observatory is a national astronomy center supported by the NSF.

"Photographs reveal that these stars I observed are supergiants — the brightest, most massive stars known," Humphreys said. "They have luminosities more than a million times that of our own sun and masses greater than 80 times the sun's mass." The sun's mass is 450 trillion trillion tons.

A few stars of comparable brightness, but none quite so bright, have been seen in our galaxy and a few of its closest neighbors. Photographs also suggest that the temperatures, and chemical composition of these supergiants are like those of similar stars in the Milky Way, Humphreys said.

Study of such stars if important because it helps confirm ideas about the formation and evolution of stars. Astromoners believe that the physical processes we observe occurring on the Earth, in our solar system and our galaxy are basically the same throughout the observable universe.

"The spectra of these very distant stars in another galaxy show no significant differences from what we would expect, based on our knowledge of stars in the Milky Way," Humphreys said. "Although these very luminous stars literally represent only the tip of the iceberg of the total stellar population of hundreds of billions of stars in their own galaxy, we might suggest from this first look that star formation and evolution there, are very much like what we observe in our galaxy.

"It may be many decades before astronomers have comparable observations of the much fainter stars like our own sun in such distant galaxies, but already we expect from these and other observations that they will also be similar to their galactic counterparts. It is not unlikely to expect that they would also have solar systems and perhaps, life," Humphreys said.

Observations of these very distant and apparently very faint individual stars in other galaxies have become possible recently with the development of very fast spectrographs combined with light amplification systems on the largest telescopes such as the Mayall telescope at Kitt peak.

UMC Provost Spends April In Saudi Arabia

For the month of April Provost Stanley D. Sahlstrom, University of Minnesota, Crookston (UMC), will serve as a consultant to educational institutions in Saudi Arabia. The invitation was given by the food and agriculture organization (FAO) of the United Nations, which is headquartered in Rome.

He will spend one week at Jizan, Saudi Arabia, where Gary McVey, on leave from UMC's agriculture division, is developing an institution of agriculture education and research. Sahlstrom will analyze the progress of that work.

"The goal of the Saudi Arabian government is to develop a solid agriculture base through the use of their oil revenue, before the oil runs out," said Sahlstrom.

"They hope to make the country agriculturally independent through improved technology, which includes irrigation of arid land, and through education of their people."

After a week in Jizan, the Provost will spend three weeks traveling through Saudi Arabia evaluating other agriculture institutions. Finally, he will spend a few days in Rome at the FAO headquarters.

Sahlstrom has no fears about traveling in Saudi Arabia. Respect? Indeed. "I recognize the reality of life. Anytime a person travels in a foreign country, or at home, there is a certain risk and need to be careful. But it is exciting, and I look forward with great anticipation to this opportunity to meet new people, to learn about the culture, to share experiences, and hopefully, to be helpful to them in some small way."

Sahlstrom was instrumental in developing the project plans with Dr. Charles Simkins, University of Minnesota — Twin Cities extension agronomist, which Dr. McVey was chosen to administer.

UMC faculty members Craig Harmon, assistant professor of mathematics, and Dr. Richard Christenson, associate professor of communications, have previously taught in Saudi Arabia. Harmon taught mathematics in the orientation program at the University of petroleum and minerals (UPM) in Dhaharan for two years from 1976-78. Christenson taught technical writing and composition at UPM from 1977-78 and was also a Fulbright consultant at King Abdulaziz University in Jeddah from 1974-75.

"This experience will heighten my understanding of the needs of developing nations and our responsibility as members of the world community to alleviate hunger," said Sahlstrom.

Food Still A Bargain

While increasing living costs place a greater strain on the family budget, food remains a bargain in the overall cost of living. The average American family spends about 17 per cent of its income on food today, compared with 27 per cent in Germany, 31 per cent in England and 32 per cent in Japan.

Food costs which consumers in the United States pay often include processing, distribution and marketing costs which add value to farm products by making them more convenient, accessible and higher in quality.

Farmers are disappointed when they are cast in the role of villain as food prices rise. They realize the problem the consumer faces, but they are also acutely aware that the prices they receive for their product have not kept pace while their production costs have skyrocketed. Actually, the farmers' ability to increase productivity has held the cost of food down and made it possible for farmers to stay in business.

As farmers go into another production year this spring, it is difficult for them to find much optimism in their work. Embargoes have reduced sales potential and depressed prices, land prices remain inflated, interest rates have become nearly prohibitive on what capital there is to borrow and only the weather of the past week seems to be a favorable circumstance.

Minnesota department of agriculture figures indicate that price of farm equipment has increased from eight to 10 per cent from 1979, interest rates have climbed from 11 per cent to 14 per cent and diesel fuel prices placed at $1.25 a gallon are two and one-half times the 1979 estimate of 51 cents. University of Minnesota's agricultural extension service places total machinery function costs this year at 25 to 30 per cent above 1979.

While it is recognized that the majority of consumers aren't concerned with the farmers' plight because they have enough problems of their own, it is a fact that this nation is nearing a very precarious agricultural position. With 96 per cent of the population dependent upon a mere four per cent for its supply of food and fiber, the importance of that dwindling number's well-being becomes more acute.

A nation which places emphasis on its economy must be aware that agribusiness is still the nation's leading industry with assets of $789 billion and the leading employer with more than 15 million people involved in producing, handling, processing or selling agriculturally related items.

Some comparisons were recently made that show if egg prices, for example, had increased at the same rate as transportation during the last 20 years, they would cost more than $3.40 a dozen. If milk had increased at the same rate as housing costs during that period, it would sell for $4.50 a gallon. And in many nations, of course, people don't complain about food costs — there is no food available at any price.

The middlemen — the businessmen and workers who handle food between the farm and the supermarket — are a low visibility group who are often blamed for high prices. These are the people who also provide a vital role by cleaning, trimming, inspecting, processing, freezing, wrapping, shipping, storing and distributing these inventories throughout the nation.

We think the farmers are deserving of some recognition for their valiant struggle against regulation, insects, disease, weather and economics to keep food on the nation's table — especially at what still must be considered a bargain rate.

Doing Business At Home

Speculating on the possibility that increasing gas prices may mean more people declining long trips to shop in bigger communities, the editor of the Kittson County Enterprise at Hallock shares an item which appeared in the Kittson County NFO publication.

Entitled "It's Good Business To Do Business in Your Home Community", the item stated the following:

Your local business man pays local taxes.

Your local business man supports and pays taxes toward your school.

Your local business man supports and goes to your church.

Your local business man belongs to and supports the same community activities and organizations you belong to.

Your local business man provides quality products at lowest possible prices.

Your local business man provides the best of services because he wants your business back.

Your local finance people know you and your farming operation, making possible faster and cheaper credit.

Shopping at home displays mutual trust; your local business man knows you and you know him.

Your local business man is a friend who recognizes and greets you by name, exchanges news and events in familiar conversation, and joins with you in promoting the welfare of common interests.

Supporting your local community is mutually beneficial, think what would happen if your local community should die for lack of support from you, its source of life, liberty and prosperity.

Learning About Attitude

The following story was told recently in the North Star News at Karlstad:

All of us can do much to boast and boost our town, and in the long run that's what we should be doing, for that's where we live, either because we find our community to our liking or we're making our living there. There are always things in our town which can be made better and there are always no doubt people and business places which we feel do not come up to our expectations.

Be that as it may, there is little doubt but what we're better off in the long run talking positive about our community's assets than working from the negative side. It all sort of reminds us of a little story we read somewhere that went something like this.

Some time after moving to a small town a woman complained to a neighbor about the poor service at the local drugstore. She was hoping, of course, that her new neighbor would repeat her complaint to the drugstore owner.

Not long after that the new arrival had occasion to return to the drugstore. The druggist welcomed her with a big smile and told her how happy he was to see her again. He talked of his town and told the lady that he hoped she liked her new home and to please let him know if there was anything he could do to help her and her family get settled. The druggist then took care of her order promptly and efficiently.

The lady could not believe the change at the drug store and she promptly told her neighbor friend of her experience. She said to her neighbor, "I suppose you told the druggist how poor I thought his service was?"

"No," the neighbor lady said. "In fact — and I hope you don't mind — I told him you were amazed at the way he had built up this small town drugstore, and that you thought it was one of the best run drugstores you'd ever seen."

A little far fetched? Maybe, but it can work that way.

Justice Douglas

Following editorial is from the Swift County Monitor:

The passing of Justice William O. Douglas is more than the death of a man, the bell also tolls for a dedicated defense of the First Amendment to our constitution. This amendment says: "Congress shall make no law respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of people peaceably to assemble; and to petition the government for redress of grievances.

Because Justice Douglas was a determined defender of these rights, he was sometimes unpopular. His dedicated belief in individual freedom, as spelled out in the constitution, translated itself into defending the right of communists, facists or any other group to speak their minds, preach what they believed. Then, and now, there are those who believe that they are so right in their beliefs that anyone who disagrees should be muffled.

Not only was he a staunch defender of personal freedom, the Minnesota born Douglas was a conservationist, a man who lived the outdoors.

It is unfortunate that attempting to find a man of his stature leading the Supreme Court today would be an exercise in futility.

Borrowed Nonsense:

The biggest trouble with doing nothing is that you can't stop and rest.

Example of good government planning: It took two congressional committees and an army of experts five years to design the Susan B. Anthony dollar. It took the average citizen only about 10 seconds to decide not to use them because they look too much like a quarter.

The Americans have invaded England in the spectacular new romantic drama "Yanks," opening Fri., Apr. 11 at the Galaxy Twin Theatre.

The Importance of the 1980 Census

Within the last few days every household in the United States should have received a 1980 Census Questionnaire. The census, as required by the Constitution, is taken every ten years and supplies important information which benefits everyone. I encourage you to give your complete cooperation in accurately filling out this year's census.

The original intent of the first national census in 1790 was to determine the exact number of people living in our young nation. Since that time, the use of the census has been expended dramatically and it is now used, not only to determine population, but also to determine how some $50 billion in Federal funds will be distributed throughout the country. This includes funds for over 100 programs, such as revenue sharing, law enforcement assistance, nutritional programs for the elderly, Headstart, funds for agricultural programs and many more.

Many States use census statistics to determine funding allocations to cities and counties for such uses as maintaining hospitals, schools and prisons and providing public services such as police protection, pensions and health care and welfare services.

Local governments also use census data to assist in selecting sites for public facilities, such as schools and firestations, to help assess the potential environmental impact of proposed highway systems and sewage treatment facilities, to aid in estimating future tax revenue on the basis of trends in population growth, income data and retail sales, and in establishing voting district boundaries.

The Census Bureau estimates 80 million households will receive either the short version of the questionnaire, with 19 questions, or a longer version, with 65 questions. One in six households will receive the longer form. Answers to the questions also provide statistical marketing information for private industry and business as well as government officials and, in addition, the data gathered will help State governments in reapportioning Congressional districts. The Constitution requires that the U.S. House of Representatives have members representing equal proportions of the nation's population and the census is the only feasible method of providing this representation.

A number of Seventh District constituents have expressed their concern to me about their privacy being violated by the census questionnaire. Let me assure you that all answers you provide are confidential and no one, including Federal, State or local government agencies, will have access to your census questionnaire. All census employees are prohibited by law from releasing this confidential information under penalty of a $5,000 fine or five years in jail. In addition, no names, addresses, telephone numbers or even your social security number are even entered into any census computer.

The census is important and your cooperation is essential. If I can be of any assistance in helping you solve any problems with the census questionnaire, please do not hesitate to call my toll-free number (1-800-432-3770) or write me at: 1518 Longworth HOB, Washington, D.C. 20515 or 403 Center Avenue, Moorhead, Minnesota 56560.

CLEANING OF BRACED TEETH

A dentist puts braces on a child's teeth to straighten them or correct dental handicaps. But braces make teeth harder to clean, can act as food traps and thus increase the chance of tooth decay. But this can easily be overcome. One of the best methods of cleaning debris from braced teeth is the oral irrigator - an electric device which directs a pulsating stream of water onto the teeth.

Dental researchers at Loyola University tested this premise. Braced youngsters were divided into two equal groups. The first brushed their teeth after each meal, then used an oral irrigator once a day. The second group also brushed but followed with a simple rinsing.

After nine weeks, group one (the irrigators) showed an 80% reduction in total bacteria. In contrast, the group of rinsers had only an insignificant drop in bacterial count. The results indicate that if the irrigator cleaning process is combined with brushing, proper diet, and frequent examinations, a child can have straight teeth without the penalty of additional cavities.

Avoid Leftovers With A Tasty Gumbo For Two

"Jambalaya, a piece of pie and a file gumbo" have been Southern favorites, honored in both song and legend. This super supper soup is a canned pasta in tomato sauce which gives it extra body and flavor. Add a bit of chicken and okra and the Southern accent comes forth.

This version of the famous gumbo will make just enough for two people. It avoids having leftovers that often go to waste. It can be ready in just minutes using off-the-shelf convenience foods.

GUMBO MACARONI SOUP

1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup sliced carrots
1/4 cup chopped fresh or drained canned tomatoes
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 cup water
1 can (7 1/2 oz.) Chef Boy-ar-dee® Beefaroni (macaroni with beef in tomato sauce)
1/2 cup chopped leftover chicken or shrimp
1/4 cup defrosted frozen okra or drained canned okra
2 tablespoons parsley
Dash hot pepper sauce

In 2 quart sauce pan saute onion, celery, carrots and tomatoes in butter. Add salt and water. Cover, simmer for 10 minutes. Add Beefaroni, cover and simmer for 10 more minutes. Add chicken, or shrimp, okra, parsley and pepper sauce; simmer for 10 minutes. One serving for two, or two servings for one.

Wheat Growers Offer 7,270,593 Bushels For Sale

Wheat producers in seven northwestern Minnesota counties offered 7,270,593 bushels of spring wheat and 49,578 bushels of winter wheat for sale under a special purchase announced by the U.S. department of agriculture last week.

The offer was opened at 8 a.m. last Tuesday and closed at 3 p.m. on Thursday with farmers with wheat for sale asked to contact their county Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation service (ASCS) offices. Price quoted by USDA was $3.70 per bushel with normal discounts and premiums to apply when the wheat is graded at delivery.

While the purchase was initiated by the U.S. department of agriculture, it is not known at this time just how much wheat will be purchased by the government at the price listed. The agriculture department is to announce the purchase amount on Tuesday, according to information received by Phil Bergland, director of the Pennington county ASCS office.

Expectations are that wheat to be purchased by the government will be taken in order of offers made to the county ASCS offices by producers. Purchases will be made in that order until announced quotas are filled.

In Pennington county there were 81 bid offers made for a total of 322,711 bushels of wheat. In Red Lake county 97 producers offered 315,350 bushels for sale and in Marshall county there were 254 wheat growers who offered to sell 1,414,819 bushels.

In Roseau county there were 322 producers offering to sell 1,470,569 bushels of spring wheat and 30,578 bushels of winter wheat; East Polk county had 105 producers offer 223,235 bushels of spring wheat and 19,000 bushels of winter wheat; West Polk had 294 offers to sell 1,804,606 bushels; Kittson county had 190 producers offer 1,613,087 bushels; and 29 producers in Lake of the Woods county offered 106,216 bushels of wheat for sale.

Exempt from the wheat sale was wheat in the revised three-year grain reserve program. All other wheat was eligible for the purchase program.

The local ASCS office will arrange for delivery of the purchased wheat within 30 days after the contract is approved. In the event that local storage or delivery facilities are not available, the seller will be paid an on-farm storage fee of 25 cents per bushel per year. The USDA expects to take delivery of all wheat purchased within 30 to 60 days.

Although payment is to be made on delivery, farmers whose offer to sell is accepted will be eligible for an advance of 80 per cent of the contract price immediately upon notification.

Escapee From Oregon Goes Back To Prison

A 21-year-old escaped convict from Oregon who made another break for freedom here Wednesday was returned to Oregon in the company of corrections officers from that state Friday, according to the Pennington county sheriff's department.

Charles Alan Martin, who had reportedly lived in Thief River Falls for about six months under an assumed name, was apprehended by Thief River Falls police officers Scott Maslawski and Mark Haugen and sheriff's deputy Howard Seim while walking south on highway 32 on Sunday, April 6. The local law enforcement officers had received information on Martin's identity from a woman with whom he had been staying while in the city.

On Wednesday morning Martin was taken to county court in the courthouse across the street from the law enforcement center to waive extradition to Oregon. As he was being returned to the law enforcement center about 10:30 a.m., he made a bid for freedom by running east with officers in pursuit on foot and by vehicle. He was apprehended a few minutes later near the First street bridge.

Martin was wanted in Oregon for escape from a penal institution where he had been sentenced for armed robbery. He reportedly faces another 20 years in prison following his escape.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

Potato Researchers Seek Warning For Spuds In Storage

Thousands of dollars in losses from a single bin of potatoes may be prevented someday with the help of an apparatus that smells with more sophistication than a human nose. That's an outlook based on research conducted at East Grand Forks by the U.S. department of agriculture's science and education administration (SEA).

Biochemist Jerry L. Varns says potatoes in storage and organisms that cause potato diseases, like all living organisms, give off unique combinations of volatile substances into the atmosphere as they respire. He has found, for example, that the volatiles from potatoes with bacterial soft rot contain higher proportions of ethanol, acetone and 2-butanone than do volatiles from healthy potatoes.

These volatiles may have a mild undisturbing or even pleasant smell, Varns says, but soft rot paves the way for infections by secondary disease organisms. And as the diseases spread, the smell of rotting potatoes becomes a powerful reek. If the disease problem could be detected early, growers or processors immediately could take the potatoes out of storage and have most of the tubers used instead of wasted.

Disease losses of potatoes in storage may be as high as 30 per cent in many parts of the country, Varns says.

At the Red River Valley potato research laboratory at East Grand Forks, Varns developed a way to concentrate minute amounts of the tell-tale volatiles before soft rot becomes prevalent enough to be smelled by humans. To do this, he liquified air samples from the storage atmosphere in high-pressure cylinders immersed in liquid nitrogen.

He further concentrated the liquified volatiles in a hydrophobic absorbent material which, when heated, yielded the volatiles back into a gaseous state to be analyzed in a gas chromotograph. Chromatograph produces a chromatogram or "fingerprint" that reveals the presence and concentrations of separate volatiles.

Varns has identified more than 20 volatiles so far in his studies aimed at finding fingerprints that are characteristic of potatoes with specific diseases or of different varieties of healthy potatoes. This research in the laboratory and at commercial bins is conducted in cooperation with the Minnesota and North Dakota agricultural experiment stations and the Red River Valley potato growers' association.

Monitoring of volatiles could become an important early warning of potato disease problems. But, Varns says, this would supplement rather than replace good storage techniques. Good managers typically keep a close watch on temperature, humidity and ventilation and they frequently observe trenches in the bottom of bins and the surface of the potato pile for signs of trouble.

Healthy potatoes emit hydrocarbons and the concentrations of these and other volatiles are highest in bins that have the least ventilation, Varns found. But he also found that the proportions of ketones, mercaptans and aldehydes in relation to hydrocarbons were consistently greater in bins with diseased potatoes, regardless of ventilation, than in bins containing healthy potatoes.

Before sampling and analysis of potato volatiles is adopted by the potato industry as a disease diagnostic technique, equipment could be designed that will monitor only one or two important volatiles, the SEA agricultural research scientist suggests. This equipment should be more affordable by the users.

"Most growers probably would be willing to spend several thousand dollars for equipment that would monitor the condition of potatoes in storage every couple of days," Varns says. "Potatoes in a typical commercial-size bin in the Red River Valley are worth $50,000 to $100,000."

But cutting disease losses in storage is only one of several applications of volatile monitoring that Varns envisions. Seed potatoes could be screened for diseases that cause poor crop stands.

Stored potatoes might be identified that have poor prospects for use after long-term storage because of a stressful growing season or unbalanced soil fertility.

A volatile that accumulates in the storage atmosphere during suberization and subsequently disappears was found in Varns' studies in the laboratory and at commercial bins. This volatile could be an important indicator of good prospects for successful long-term storage.

Suberization is a critical process in which potato skins thicken during the first week or two of storage.

If suberization is thorough and quick, Varns says, wounds that are inflicted on potatoes during harvesting and storing have the best chance to heal and these tubers are less susceptible to diseases late in storage. But because the warmth and moisture that favor suberization are the same conditions that favor immediate disease development, storers don't want to allow these conditions to exist any longer than necessary.

Researcher Varns suggests that monitoring of volatiles could help the storers know when suberization is complete so they will know how soon to modify temperature, humidity and ventilation in the bins.

Composition of potatoes changes throughout the time of storage. These changes directly affect their suitability for processing into various potato products. "Decisions on potato usage may be made with improved accuracy as we gain insights through further research involving microprocessing of data on volatiles," Varns says.

Senator Joins In Support Of Reform Bill

Senator Dave Durenberger joined a majority of governmental affairs committee members in passing an omnibus regulatory reform bill. The bill, if it is passed by Congress, will help reduce the "$100 billion 'regulation tax' placed on every consumer and business," according to Durenberger.

The committee's bill requires all federal agencies to evaluate the cost to the public of regulations and to weigh alternative means to achieve the same goals without new regulations.

"For the first time Congress is forcing federal agencies to take a look at the social and economic impact of regulations," said Durenberger. "If the cost of the regulation to consumers and businesses is greater than its benefit, the rule will not go into effect."

According to Durenberger, the cornerstone of the bill is the requirement that all federal agencies prepare "regulatory analyses" of proposed rules that will cost consumers and businesses more than $100 million annually or that will adversely affect a particular region or industry. Federal regulation writers must consider alternatives to more regulations and the cost and benefit of each approach in these analyses.

"Federal regulations are costing Americans at least $100 billion every year. Business productivity is declining and real economic growth is slowing. We've got to help businesses shovel out from under the pile of federal paperwork and their initiative to attack those problems," said Durenberger.

Durenberger said the bill establishes a council to identify unnecessary regulations and to eliminate them. It also gives the office of management and budget responsibility for monitoring federal agency compliance with regulatory reforms.

The officials who preside over the proceedings to eliminate regulations administrative law judges are given more authority by the committee's legislation to make final decisions in many cases.

Durenberger successfully amended the bill to require the administrative law judges to undergo periodic performance evaluations. The Minnesota senator also established a process to remove from office those persons who receive unsatisfactory evaluations.

"It doesn't make any sense to reform the regulatory process by putting a lot of power in the hands of a person who can't be removed from office if he or she is incompetent. My amendment protects the administrative law judges from arbitrary dismissals, but also protects the consumer and businesses from a person who is doing a poor job," said Durenberger.

Milk Retains High Value In Food Market

Every American shopper has looked at the price of at least one item on the grocery store shelf and said to himself or herself, "I remember when this cost . . ." While the effects of food price inflation are evident, the causes are not quite so clear.

However, in a year long study released in 1979, the U.S. department of agriculture was able to pinpoint those factors which contribute most directly to the ever-rising cost of foods. It also determined that consumers can control the effects of some of these factors by changing their buying habits.

First, some background. Food price increases aren't new; food prices rose continuously during the past decade, with the sharpest increases occurring after 1973. Between 1967, the base year for figuring the Consumer Price Index (CPI), and 1979, the CPI for all items went up 95 per cent, while the CPI for food increased 11 per cent. (The CPI of all items is a measure of the average change in prices of overtime in a fixed market basket of goods and services, food and beverages and other food and services.)

Main cause is inflation in the general economy, inflation which has increased the cost of both producing and marketing food.

Retail food prices also are affected by inflation in the "marketing bill," the cost of manufacturing, transporting and selling food. For every dollar spent by the consumer for food in 1979, 32 cents went to the farmer and 68 cents went to food marketing firms. Between 1967 and the beginning of 1979, the cost of packaging, and transporting food rose more than 100 per cent, and direct labor cost increased 155 per cent.

Consumers were helped when Congress passed and President Carter signed into law the bill setting milk support prices at 80 per cent of parity. Under the law, support prices will be adjusted every six months through September 20, 1981 to reflect any change in the parity index. At the sighing ceremony the President said the law provides dairy farmers with, "the economic incentive they need to produce ample supplies of milk and thereby reduce inflationary pressure."

How has this support helped the consumer? It has kept dairy products on the lower scale on the consumer price index. As of February, 1980, dairy products were 218.4 on the CPI: 22.5 points lower than food at home; 18.4 points lower than cereal and bakery products; 17.8 points lower than meat; and 7.2 points lower than the nearest food product, fruits.

Dear friends,

When you hear of the death of a friend, you can pray for them. God hears and answers these prayers even tho the family is unaware of our prayers. When we meet the family at the funeral home or church, we may mention that we prayed for them upon hearing the news of their bereavement. They will be comforted - more so than by an immediate visit or distracting phone call.

Respectfully,

Belmont Funeral Home

U.S. Senator
Rudy Boschwitz
reports to Minnesota

Carter Said The Russians Would Hurt But Rural America Is Suffering Now

Rural America is in serious trouble. I don't have to tell anyone in Minnesota that fact.

Credit is short, markets are down and the economic outlook for our farmers is bleak. Farm sales are on the increase and some farmers I talk with say they are seriously considering a complete halt to planting in 1980. They have no other option, they say. And, even if they want to plant, many are having problems getting financing because banks are loaned up and don't have cash available for the 1980 crop.

The only loan one banker would make a farmer customer was a loan for living expenses if he wouldn't plant. The farmer would be better off, the banker insisted.

The problems we face today in rural America go right back to early January and the embargo of grain sales to Russia. Carter told us in bold words how that move would seriously hurt the Russians and that he would see that the burden on Americans would be distributed evenly. What he didn't tell us is that it would be distributed evenly amongst the grain farmer and the livestock producer and rural communities and business people. No one else would have to pay — least of all the government which instituted the embargo.

With an administration that is opposed to helping the farmers out of a situation it helped create, moving legislation through the Congress has been difficult. However, we have had some success in getting additional credit bills on their way which should at least make some cash available.

But, is providing another loan really helping the farmer? The only real help he needs is to get a decent return for his investment and a fair price for his product.

The President seems truly reluctant to do anything which would help the farmer make a living. All indications are that he likes a cheap food policy and intends to continue it.

I have been working in the Congress to ease the credit crunch in rural America and to provide some means of providing the farmer a profit in the future. As with anything there have been successes and failures, but the lack of cooperation from the Administration is the biggest roadblock we face today.

I have introduced two measures in the Senate and they have been cleared by the Agriculture Committee for action on the floor.

A reopening of the 1979 loan program for non-participants who would be allowed to place up to 50 per cent of their crop on reserve at $2.80 per bushel for wheat and $2.30 per bushel for corn. Those who participated could get loans of $3.30 per bushel on wheat and $2.40 per bushel on corn.

It is interesting that when I proposed this the Agriculture Department attacked it as a measure which would wreck the farm program. They obviously weren't concerned about the credit crunch in rural areas.

However, less than two weeks later the Agriculture Department came to the Senate Ag Committee and requested that they be allowed to open the 1979 loan program without the increases in loan rates.

Legislation providing that authority was passed out of the committee with my support and has now passed on the Senate floor. I hope the program is reopened soon and that farmers will take advantage of it to obtain cash for their 1980 crops.

The second measure I introduced, which also passed the Senate Ag Committee, has not fared so well because the Administration is opposed to it. This measure, to establish a paid diversion program, was designed to ease the price depressing effect the embargo has had on the market for wheat and feedgrains.

My bill would remove 12 million metric tons of corn and feedgrains and 4 million metric tons of wheat from production. That is the amount of export lost to the grain embargo. This production would be diverted by offering farmers $1.25 per bushel not to plant feedgrains and corn and $1.50 per bushel not to plant wheat in 1980.

It is the kind of legislation needed if we are to have any chance of returning grain prices to their pre-embargo level. But, the administration which pledged to distribute the burden of the embargo is opposed to the very kind of measure that would do it.

Finally, we did enact one measure, and the President has signed it, which will help the farmer get some immediate cash for his operating expenses. This bill added $2 billion in authority to the Economic Emergency Loan Program with $1 billion to be spent in 1980 and $1 billion to be spent in 1981. Loans under the program will be available for operating expenses with a repayment period of seven years and for payments on currently owned farm land with a repayment period of 40 years. This legislation will mean that approximately $40 million will be available to Minnesota farmers. Farmers who are interested in securing these loans should contact their local Farmers Home Administration office for an application. You may obtain further information by calling my St. Paul office toll free at 1-800-652-9771.

Providing credit for our farmers is only a bandaid approach. Borrowed money will do them little good if we do not give them the markets they need to make a profit. I will support the credit approaches and do because they are needed, but I wish the administration would join me in recognizing the need for farmers to make a living at what they do. Rural America is in serious trouble as long as the administration believes the farmer can bear the burden of its foreign policy decisions.

JOHN FISHER (left) and Neil Huotari won third place in the intermediate division for their "relative densities of liquids and solids" project during the Plummer high school science fair conducted recently under the direction of Don Fox, science instructor at the school. Fair included a display of projects entered and a special program given by Dr. Kurt Dryer, chemistry instructor at Bemidji State university.

Pushers Sell Drugs To BCA, Take A Loss

Four men from Minnesota and Iowa were arrested March 31 for sale of illegal drugs worth an estimated $25,000 to narcotics agents of the Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension (BCA), a division of the department of public safety.

Arrested were Mark Robert Gibbons, 23, Jackson; David Charles Werner, 30, Windom; Paul Eugene Snyder, 26, Armstrong, Iowa; and Mark Allan Herzog, 29, Clear Lake.

The BCA said arrests stemmed from an investigation which began in Windom in January of this year. State agents, working with federal agents of the Drug Enforcement administration, state narcotics from Iowa, the Jackson county sheriff's office and the Windom Police department, made undercover drug purchases in Windom, Jackson, Clear Lake and Milford, Iowa.

Agents bought 1½ ounces of cocaine and 20,000 amphetamine tablets. Officers seized 30 pounds of marijuana and smaller quantities of hashish.

Century Farm Recognition Is Underway

For the fifth consecutive year, the Minnesota state fair and The Farmer magazine will co-sponsor the Century farm recognition program. The program honors Minnesota families who have owned the same farm for 100 years.

1980 designees will be awarded plaques, provided by The Farmer, and certificates of recognition. In addition, information provided by applicants will be forwarded to the Minnesota historical society.

Qualifications for designation are:

the farm must be at least 100 years old according to the abstract of title, land patent, original deed, county land records, court file in registration proceedings, or other authentic land records;

"family" is defined as father, mother, uncle, aunt, brother, sister, son, daughter, first cousin, direct in-laws (father-, mother-, brother-, sister-, daughter-, son-in-law); continuous residence on the farm is not required, but ownership must be continuous;

the farm must consist of 50 or more acres.

Applications are available from the Minnesota state fair, Falcon Heights, Minn. 55108; phone (612) 642-2253, and must be submitted by July 15. Families previously recognized should not reapply.

The Century farm program was begun in 1976 as a Bicentennial event and has been continued to include farms as they become eligible. In the past four years, 1,837 families have been honored through the program.

A complete list of all Century Farms may be found at The Farmer's exhibit facility on Machinery hill during the 1980 state fair, Aug. 21 through Labor Day, Sept. 1.

The Times — A Great Gift!

BCA Recognized For Undercover Work Last Year

Minnesota bureau of criminal apprehension (BCA), a division of the department of public safety, has been recognized by Associated general contractors of Minnesota for its undercover work last summer in helping recover property in northwestern Minnesota valued at more than $300,000.

From March to September BCA undercover agents at Moorhead and Fergus Falls joined police and sheriff's departments in the area for "Project Toad" which found $73,000 worth of construction-related equipment which had been stolen.

Included in the recovered items were four Ford garden tractors valued at $22,000, a travel trailer worth $4,100 and a tree spade valued at $11,000. Agents bought property from individuals in northwestern Minnesota with money allotted to BCA and local agencies from the Minnesota legislature and Fargo, N.D., police department.

During the project a BCA undercover agent met with an individual from the Twin Cities and bought four tractors. Subsequent investigation and surveilance by car and plane led officers to a Grant county farm where two more tractors and a travel trailer were found.

Trailer had been stolen from a Minneapolis firm; thus officers were led back to northeast Minneapolis where another implement trailer was recovered. Sheriff's officers from Grant, Hubbard and Ottertail counties in conjunction with the BCA eventually found two welders stolen in New Hope, two front end loaders and trailers and a tree spade stolen earlier at Burnsville.

Because of the investigation, three people have been charged with receiving and concealing stolen property. Law officials believe at least one of the persons has been known to deal in stolen bobcats the past four years.

Associated general contractors award honors the following individuals: BCA agents Paul Gerber and Michael Cummings; Lt. Detective Gary Lansom of the Moorhead police department; Grant county sheriff Ed Williams; Hubbard county Sheriff Larry Johnson and Chief Deputy Dave Burns; Ottertail county Sheriff, and Deputies Chuck Sherbrooke and Richard Tampke.

Also recognized are the BCA narcotics section and the Minnesota State air unit. Richard J. Bacon is supervisor of the BCA organized crime investigation unit.

Serious Crime Rate Up 8.1 Per Cent In '79

Serious crime in Minnesota increased by 8.1 per cent in 1979, according to commissioner of public safety John Sopsic.

One of the most discouraging statistics in a report released by the Bureau of Criminal apprehension (BCA), a division of the Department of Public Safety, is the trend of violent crime.

John (Jack) Erskine, BCA superintendent, said the increase in violent crime from 1978 to 1979 was 18.2 per cent. Murders were up 20.9 per cent (81 to 98).

There was an increase in rapes from 795 to 870 or 9.4 per cent. The number of robberies jumped from 3,407 to 3,752.

Largest increase was in aggravated assaults where the percentage hike was a plus 28.7. Numerical comparison is 3,298 to 4,245. Smaller percentage increases were noted for burglary, larcenies and thefts and motor vehicle heists.

Of the 98 murders in Minnesota last year, the victim was an acquaintance or family member in 65 of the cases. Firearms were used in nearly half the cases (47 per cent). Forty-six were by firearm: 24 by handgun, 18 by rifle and four by shotgun. In the non-firearm category, a knife or cutting instrument was used in 23 of the cases.

Of 45,053 burglaries, 26,515 were forcible entries. Most (30,512) were in residences.

There was a decline in automobiles stolen but an increase in trucks, buses, snowmobile, motorcycle and motorscooter thefts. A total of 13,340 vehicles were stolen compared to 12,911 in 1978. Value of stolen motor vehicles was $29,495,966 compared to $23,424,745 the previous year, a 26 per cent increase. Part of this is because of higher vehicle costs.

A relatively bright spot in the crime report was that residential burglary increased by only one per cent while in the non-residential category, the increase was 8.6 per cent. Charles Rix, director of Minnesota Crime Watch, said the home burglary statistic was significant. However, he added that no one can be happy with the dollar loss which was $11,104,509. Total dollar loss for all burglaries increase 13 per cent.

The bureau began new reporting procedures for arson statistics in May of last year, making comparisons with 1978 distorted. From May to December, 1979, there were 1,136 offenses in the state. Total property value was $2,579,709.

Persons wishing to use this Heart association service as a means of paying tribute to friends or relatives affected by heart disease or as a get-well wish, should send their request and memorial contribution to: Memorials, American Heart Association, Minnesota Affiliate, 4701 West 77th Street, Minneapolis, Minnesota, 55435 or call 835-3300 or toll free 1-800-862-6044.

An appropriate card is sent promptly. Amount of the contribution is not shown unless otherwise requested. Memorial contributions are tax deductible.

Ihle Student Teacher At Remer School

Glen A. Ihle of Thief River Falls is student teaching during spring quarter at Remer high school, according to Dr. James Tillman, director of Bemidji state university student teaching.

Student teaching is required of all students seeking the bachelor of science degree in education and Minnesota certification for teaching. Students placed in area schools by BSU are supervised by a teacher from that school district, as well as a supervisor from the division of education at Bemidji state.

While serving in the school systems, student teachers observe daily classroom techniques and routines, serve on occasion as the teacher of the class, and assist their supervising teacher in preparation and presentation of class materials.

Student teaching experience is usually the culmination of a student's preparation for the teaching profession and is viewed by many students as the most valuable requirement of their teacher education.

Basic Shopping Technique Can Save You Cash

To save money at the checkout counter, one of the first things to do is to become an alert, rather than a passive, shopper.

Four basic shopping techniques that will aid in cutting costs of supermarket buying are: (1) Make a list and stick to it. Buy only what is needed. (2) Check the sales. Check every paper possible. Clip and use the necessary coupons. (3) Be cautious. Check prices and signs. A sale promotion is not always a bargain even though it may appear to be. (4) Compare prices. Look over the shelves to find the best bargain.

By being an active refunder, clipping forms, and getting on mailing lists, it is possible to get more for free. Many companies try to be the first to send information about discounted and "absolutely free" samples.

By following these techniques shoppers should notice a difference in grocery budgets, according to the Northwest information and referral counter, Crookston (281-4444).

SBA Loans $5,403,800 To Companies

Paul W. Jansen, district director of the Minneapolis office of the Small Business administration, announced this week that $5,403,800 in SBA loans had been approved for 49 Minnesota companies in the month of March. The projected additional employment created as a result of these loans is 341 jobs.

Direct management assistance counseling was provided to 174 Minnesota firms through the Small Business administration's in house counselors or through support groups like the service corps of retired executives and the 12 colleges participating in the small business institute program.

Five loans, amounting to $275,500, were made to minority owned firms; making the minority component of the March loan portfolio 10 per cent of the total loans and five per cent of the total loan dollars.

Use Your Library

As Thief River Falls observes American Library week this week, we are reminded that library services make the libraries of the country quite a bargain. The American Library association points out the situation as follows:

What if someone told you that you had been making an annual investment for years, only you had forgotten to collect the dividends. In these times when most of us regularly scrape the bottom of the barrel to make ends meet, you'd wonder how you could have overlooked this important asset. You shop for bargains, turn off the lights, drive a small car, grow your own vegetables, how could you have forgotten this?

Well, if you're not using your library, that's precisely what you've done. Your library is the best place in town to seek refuge from the skyrocketing prices and double-digit inflation. The library is the only place to offer high interest loans for valuable information and materials — all at no charge.

While libraries themselves are disadvantaged by the dollar's reduced value, they continue to provide a wealth of consumer programs and services to help prevent a short circuit of an overloaded paycheck. The library has information on budgeting, investments, build-it-yourself, and fix-it-yourself. As we look for more ways to continue our education, we should be taking advantage of our tuitionless people's university, a place rich in ideas for understanding our changing world. If an entertainment budget has been reduced to a walk to the post office to mail the bills, the library is a popular alternative with a vareity of cultural programs.

All along your tax dollars have been supporting this precious commodity. If you haven't been using your library, you've missed the best tax advantage available today. During National Library Week, April 13-19, we urge you to invest some time at the library. You'll be sure to discover why the library is America's greatest bargain.

Is It Loaded?

Springtime is one season of the year when many area residents bring out their rifles, pistols and shotguns on a sunny afternoon to plink a few targets or perhaps rid their property of a few rodents or varmints. It is a time for Dads to instruct their growing offspring in the shooting sports and to spend time together in an enjoyable recreational pursuit.

It is of vital importance that safety be considered foremost in any of these activities, whether in the field, on the range, or in the home before and after shooting outings. The following item from the Iowa Conservation commission is certainly worth keeping in mind:

A friend of mine shot a piano last winter. He thought he had unloaded his shotgun before bringing it into the house and was double-checking to make sure it was unloaded before putting it away. The gun went off but, fortunately, only the piano and his pride were injured.

He's the same person who taught me what is probably the most important rule of gun safety: Treat every gun as if it were loaded and ready to fire. His accident, years after my lessons in gun safety, illustrated the importance of that rule.

Treating every gun as if it were loaded simply means never pointing a gun at anything you do not want to shoot. Once a gun goes off, there is no way to call the bullet or load of shot back into the barrel. The shooting sports have an enviable safety record but, when accidents do occur, it is because this simple common sense rule has not been followed.

Some of the most common violations of this rule are also the easiest to avoid:

+ Never point the muzzle at anyone. Always keep the muzzle pointed in a safe direction.

+ Never put your hand over the muzzle of a gun.

+ Never take a gun out of a car, boat or RV by pulling it toward you by the muzzle.

+ Never leave a gun where it could fall and accidentally discharge.

+ Never pull the trigger unless shooting at a target or unless you have checked to make sure whether the gun is loaded.

+ Never leave a gun where it could fall and accidentally discharge.

+ Never pull the trigger unless shooting at a target or unless you have checked to make sure whether the gun is loaded.

+ Never assume that a gun is unloaded.

+ Never have a loaded gun in a house, car, boat or RV.

+ Always load your gun only when on the range or in the field and ready to shoot. When you stop shooting unload before leaving the field or range.

+ Always load your gun only when on the range or in the field and ready to shoot. When you stop shooting unload before leaving the field or range.

+ Always keep your finger off the trigger until you are ready to shoot.

+ Never rely on a gun's "safety" to compensate for unsafe gun handling. A safety is only a mechanical device; it's not a substitute for common sense.

When handling or showing a gun to friends, always check to make sure it is unloaded. Open the action, and keep it open the gun is again ready for storage.

Among experienced shooters, there is a ritual that is repeated whenever a gun is shown or examined. The person picking up the gun opens the action and checks to make sure the gun is not loaded. When the gun is handed to another person, he goes through the entire procedure again. This isn't an insult to the original handler; instead, most shooting veterans take it as a sign of gun know-how and competence. They know there is no way to be overcautious about fun safety. If you do not know how to open the action of a gun, have the owner show you how.

By following these common sense rules, it's unlikely that you'll ever have to say, "I didn't know the gun was loaded."

Anderson's Wisconsin Loss

Following editorial is from the Ely Echo:

There were a lot more people than presidential candidate John Anderson who lost their rear ends in the Wisconsin primary last Tuesday. I refer, of course, to those enthusiastic exponents of what might be limped under the banner of "Gun Control"

It was amazing how much hype the press gave Anderson's stand on "gun registration" (or whatever term is preferred) BEFORE the primary and how little mention was made afterward. The Walter Cronkites and other TV personalities who dote on analyzing the post-election figures, were somewhat speechless. The best they could come up with was: "What happened?"

Well, what happened was that somebody persuaded John Anderson to go charging into Wisconsin with full fanfare as a "gun control" candidate. In several appearances and in compaign ads, he came out foursquare for gun registration. Somebody forgot to tell John that Wisconsin is a state in which somebody from nearly every family goes hunting — deer, bear, birds, waterfowl, rabbits, squirrels, you name it. There are a lot more hunters in Wisconsin than Republicans. . . or Democarts.

Interesting enough, a large segment of Wisconsin TV time was purchased by movie actor Paul Newman, who solidly supported the Anderson position. Newman, it will be recalled, received considerable acclaim for his starring role as a gunman in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid", a film in which he showed the youth of America the glory of shooting people with a six-gun.

Anderson lost bigger than even the press reports would indicate. He was not only last in a three-candidate Republican race, he went out and openly campaigned as a combined Republican-Democrat. He got only 28 per cent of the Republican ballots. As a combined candidate in Wisconsin's open primary, he actually got only about 14 per cent of all votes cast.

One other error Anderson has made, now apparently catching up with him, is his advocacy of a 50 cent-per-gallon federal tax on gasoline, the receipts of which he would apply to the ailing Social Security program. Perhaps the voters (although not the nation's TV commentators) have begun questioning the logic of taxing transportation to provide funds for the elderly, rather than simply getting Social Security back in some semblance of order on its own merits.

Anderson, of course, is a veteran member of the Congress, a group which long ago repealed the laws of logic. One gets the feeling that if Anderson hadn't discovered the gasoline tax to bail out Social Security, he might well be advocating a 50 cent-per-gallon tax on household bleach, barn paint or maple syrup.

Borrowed Nonsense:

"Do you have the area code?" inquired the telephone operator.

"No," came the sniffling reply, "just a bad case of hay fever."

"THE CASE HISTORY of a Heart Attack" was the theme of Linda Paradis's project entered in the Plummer high school science fair conducted recently under the direction of Don Fox, science instructor at the school. Paradis placed third in the senior division of the science fair.

The Public's Burden

The Administration is continuing to put the burden of balancing the federal budget and implementing our country's foreign policy on the backs of the taxpayers, especially the farmers.

That message came through loud and clear March 14 in President Carter's balance the budget speech. He showed how easy it is to balance the budget on paper. He proposed $13 billion in spending cuts (In a federal budget of more than $600 billion, who can't find $13 billion to cut?) and increased taxes.

Inflation's impact on the federal tax structure in fiscal year 1981 will increase individual taxes by at least $33 billion. The president's fee on imported oil will raise taxes by another $11 billion. The windfall profits tax — which the consumer is already paying in the form of higher energy prices as a result of the president's decision to decontrol oil — will increase taxes by almost $14 billion in fiscal 81.

In effect, what the president is saying to the taxpayer is, "You pay $58 billion in higher taxes, the federal government will cut about $13 billion in spending and between us we'll arrive at a balanced budget."

What he didn't say is that the $58 billion in higher taxes will cause more suffering for families who are already finding it almost impossible to get along, he'll drive more family farms and businesses into auction sales and bankruptcy and he will make our economic problems worse, not better.

The Administration and the Congress can't make the public pay for Washington's past mistakes. The best solutions to inflation are bills I've co-sponsored to put a limit on federal spending, to index inflation out of the tax rates and to provide honest tax reform to get our country moving again.

A special burden is falling on Minnesota's farmers. Last January, right after President Carter announced the embargo on the sale of grain to the Soviet Union, I traveled around Minnesota talking with farmers. They told me how much the embargo would hurt, but that they were willing to support the action because they wanted to help the country.

Their courage was overwhelming. These were the same farmers who last year suffered through bad weather in many parts of the state, a crippling strike at the Duluth port, railroad failures and a truckers strike. They saw prices fall so low that the results of a year's work were still piled on their farms and in elevators.

Yet, they were willing to support the embargo because they trusted a president who promised that the burden of U.S. foreign policy wouldn't fall on their shoulders.

Today, that promise has been forgotten. President Carter is threatening to veto a Senate Agriculture Committee omnibus bill and leave Minnesota farmers with little hope for the future.

Even if the farm relief provisions become law, they are too little, too late. Most of the relief is in the form of more loans to farmers who are already being buried in debt because of low prices and high interest rates.

The Agriculture Committee's bill will expand the Food for Peace Program and fuel alcohol production to use a portion of the embargoed reserves. It will require the Commodity Credit Corporation to purchase not less than 4 million tons of wheat and up to 10 million tons of corn to help boost prices. And, the bill authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to implement a set-aside program for price-supported commodities for 1980 and 1981.

Other provisions in the bill, and recent Senate action to extend the Emergency Agricultural Credit Adjustment Act through Sept. 30, 1981, and increase the lending authority to the farm economic emergency loan program by $2 billion, will help the farmer.

But, it's not enough to save farmers and rural communities facing 18 per cent inflation and 18 per cent interest rates. It's not enough to save the family farms that can't afford anymore debt. It's not enough to save farmers on the verge of selling out.

Balancing the budget is the responsibility of the Administration and the Congress. We need honest spending cuts and permanent discipline in the budget process. We need tax relief, not tax increases.

I've been in the Senate long enough to know that the federal government does not use taxpayer dollars wisely. We can have a strong foreign policy, a balanced budget and a sound economy without driving farmers out of business. In fact, assuring rural vitality is the only way we will achieve our country's other goals.

Letters to the Editor

To The Editor:

With all the adverse publicity circulating about "President Carter's" embargo on grain sales to Russia, I think it's only fair that we recall "President Ford's" embargo.

President Ford issued his embargo because the grain sales had pushed prices up here in the States. The U.S. farmers were finally going to get a halfway decent price for their commodities.

So — when should we place an embargo such as this? Maybe to cripple an over-aggressive, people-suppressive power that is slowly, surely and steadily gobbling up smaller chunks of our world that are mismatched in strength and endurance and unprepared to restrain them. This aggression is eating its way to the heart of our democratic freedoms. Let's support our President and pray for peace.

Sincerely,
Carol Gjovik

The Steel Connection

It's like a chain. Mines at one end...auto makers and other manufacturers at the other. We need mines to sustain our standard of living, but when steel business is reduced by poor auto sales, by imports, and government controls, we feel the slack in our taconite industry.

As the table below shows, 1979 was a good year, with record taconite production, but lower demand for iron ores in 1980 will reduce production, employment, and related economic benefits.

Minnesota's taconite companies provide speakers for organizations interested in learning more about our industry, its role in the Minnesota economy, its problems and responsibilities. If you would like to schedule a "Talk about Taconite" for your organization, write us.

Names of former Lincoln high school basketball players Dave Hanson and Art Johnson were officially added to the list of 1,000-point Minnesota high school basketball scorers earlier this month; a list kept and updated annually by the West Central Daily Tribune in Willmar.

It was discovered last spring that Hanson finished his career with the Prowlers in 1958 with 1,088 points and that Johnson finished his prep career here in 1954 with 1,012 points to qualify for a spot on the 1,000-point club started in 1958 by the late Lefty Ranweiler of the Tribune. But the names of Hanson and Johnson, both 6-5 centers with the Prowlers, were submitted to current Willmar sports editor Bruce Strand after the 1979 Tribune deadline, so their names were kept on file until they were added to this year's listing. They are the Prowlers' only 1,000-point scorers.

Fifty-nine new names were added to the 1,000-point club at the end of the 1979-80 basketball season, bringing the total to 520 players — 470 boys and 50 girls.

Two of the top three all-time leading scorers in Minnesota high school basketball history are girls. Janet Karvonen finished her fabulous career at New York Mills high school this season with a new state record 3,129 points. Norm Grow graduated from Foley in 1958 with 2,852 points — the state standard that stood for 22 years. Nancy Trebbensse will graduate from Winthrop this spring with 2,446 points for third place on the all-time scoring list. Bob Bruggers (Danube, '62) is fourth with 2,364 points and Jon Hagen (Belview, '57) is fifth with 2,190.

Albany junior Kelly Skalicky climbed into the top 10 this winter with 2,003 points and could surpass Grow if she averages 33 points per game as a senior and her defending Class A champion Huskies play the maximum 26 games in 1980-81. Karvonen's record is out of reach, though. Skalicky would have to score 1,226 points next year to catch Janet — a 43-point average.

Virg Sonju, who graduated from Kennedy high school in 1956, continues to lead the list of 1,000-point scorers in Region 8 with 2,008 points — the eighth best total in the state. Rest of the Region 8 top five scorers include Jim Jensen (Bemidji, '78) 1,763; Jim Akason (Halstad, '52) 1,640; Charles Benson (Roseau, '55) 1,607; and Kurt Knoff (EGF, '71) 1,542.

Other area players on the current West Central Daily Tribune 1,000-point list include Lon Szymanski (Goodridge, '65) 1,400; Diane Fisher (Plummer, '80) 1,353; Mike Fincher (Newfolden, '77) 1,311; Shelly Oistad (Fertile-Beltrami, '79) 1,287; Don Engelsrud (Newfolden, '60; 1,258; Janice Woods (Fosston, '82) 1,248; Kim Brekke (Warren, '80) 1,208; Georgine Troska (Goodridge, '77), 1,148; Todd Robinson (Lake of the Woods, '80) 1,120; Steve Brekke (Warren, '79) 1,100; Rick Easthouse (Goodridge, '77) 1,045; and Bill Gusa (Middle River, '73) 1,026, along with Hanson and Johnson of Thief River Falls.

Not included on the list yet is Middle River junior Scott McKeever who will begin his senior season in 1980-81 with 1,103 points.

It's interesting to note that Kim and Steve Brekke of Warren represent only the third brother-sister combination in the state 1,000-point list. The others are Janet and John Karvonen of New York Mills and Sue and Paul McDonald of Chisholm.

Keep an eye on the progress of Janice Woods of Fosston who has already scored 1,248 points even though she's just a sophomore. She could surpass Sonju as the top scorer in Region 8 before she's done playing in 1982.

Miscellaneous

+ After a discussion among board members and testimony of three others, the Warroad school board voted unanimously last week to ask for the resignation of head hockey coach Jerry Pelkey who completed his second year as Warriors' coach this winter.

+ Scott Harris of Roseau, a junior at Arizona State University, earned a spot on the 1980 ASU golf team in a try-out that attracted 20 candidates for two open spots on the team.

+ Former Northland community college athletes Sandy Schob (Thief River Falls) and Bev Horachek (Goodridge) are members of the Moorhead State University women's softball team.

+ Matt Baab, called by some as "one of the finest hockey players ever to play in Crookston," was named the most valuable player on the 1979-80 Mount St. Benedict hockey team. Baab finished a year-year career with the Blue Wave with 85 goals, 83 assists and 168 points.

+ Mark Huglen is hoping to pitch for the Roseau high school baseball team this spring, but a hairline fracture in his pitching hand suffered during an injury-plagued hockey season may slow him down. Healthy, Huglen would be the best pitcher in northern Minnesota, a title he shared last year with Thief River Falls' Scott Sabo, Crookston's Brent Stahlecker and Bemidji's John Noga. But those three graduated, leaving Huglen as the ace in 1980.

He signed a three-year contract with the Jets after helping lead the U.S. to a gold medal-winning performance at Lake Placid, N.Y.

Northland Tennis Starts Wednesday

Northland community college tennis team will open its 1980 season Wednesday when the Northmen — and Northwomen — host Brainerd at 12 noon on the Northland courts.

Chris Kays, a sophomore from Thief River Falls, headlines the 1980 Northland roster. Playing with Bernie Brandon a year ago, Kays reached the MJCAA state tournament semifinals in doubles.

"He's looking good," said new Northland coach John Helley about Kays, who will serve as Northland captain this spring.

Rest of the all-Thief River Falls Northland line-up includes Terry Belch, Joel Hallstrom, Greg Torfin, Mike Kertz, Julie Easton and Mary Lager.

"I'm really impressed with these kids," said Helley, named during the winter to succeed Irv Smith as Northland football coach, thus inheriting Smith's tennis assignment, too. "This is a really fine bunch of kids," repeated Helley. "To know what kind of a season Northland can expect is hard to judge at this time, but from what I have seen thus far in our limited practices, it looks as though we will be very competitive."

Tennis Team Is Host To Bemidji

First home appearance of the 1980 season will be made today (Monday) by the Lincoln high school tennis team as the highly regarded Prowlers host Bemidji at 3:15 p.m. on the Lincoln and Northland community college courts.

But it'll be a short homestand for the Prowlers who will be back on the road Tuesday for a triangular meet at Little Falls involving the Flyers and Monticello at 2:30 p.m.

Thief River Falls' third road trip of the year Saturday at Brainerd produced the Prowlers' second triangular win of the spring. Thief River Falls was an easy 4-1 winner over South St. Paul and blanked Brainerd 5-0 to finish the day with nine points, followed by Brainerd with 4 and South St. Paul 2.

David Christian Works Hard, Enjoys The Game Of Hockey

Times Sports Editor

According to David Christian, playing in the National Hockey League is not unlike playing Pee-Wee hockey. The game, he says, doesn't change.

"Really, it's the same game whether you're playing Pee-Wee, Bantam, college or pro hockey," said Christian, who was in Thief River Falls Saturday for a promotional appearance at Thomas Motors. "You've got to enjoy the game no matter what level you're at. I'm going to stay with it as long as it's fun. If it's not fun, it's time to quit."

Right now Christian is having fun. Lots of fun. He signed a three-year National Hockey League contract with the Winnipeg this year and broke into the NHL by scoring eight goals, 10 assists and 18 points in 15 season-ending games with the Jets.

And that was just frosting on the cake for the former Warroad high school star who helped lead the University of North Dakota to a WCHA title and a runner-up NCAA finish in 1978-79, then joined the United States Olympic hockey team for a gold medal-winning effort at the 1980 Winter Games at Lake Placid, N.Y. in February.

"It's hard to believe," says Christian about his remarkable hockey success. "Some things you dream about and they never happen. I find myself thinking about it once in a while and I get the chills."

The 1979-80 season was a long one for Christian who started preparing for the Olympic try-outs in early July. A long schedule that featured mostly road games prepared the Team USA for the Olympic games, and Christian went almost immediately into the pro ranks. The Jets did not qualify for the Stanley Cup playoffs or Christian would still be playing.

"It's been a long year," admitted the smiling 20-year-old. "It's kind of nice to see the year end, but I wish we were still playing — in the Stanley Cup playoffs."

Hockey might be over for the season for Christian, but he hasn't slowed down much. "It's going to be busy for a little while yet," he said, mentioning several promotional-type appearances on his schedule.

Christian said he found the jump from college and the Olympic team into the NHL much easier than the switch from high school hockey where he was an all-stater with the Warriors into college hockey at North Dakota.

"I had trouble going from Warroad to UND," he admitted. "I didn't have a good year. It was kind of frustrating." But he blossomed into a WCHA standout as a sophomore and was a cinch pick for the Olympic team, where he played mostly on defense instead of his accustomed spot at center ice.

"Playing with the Olympic team made the jump to Winnipeg possible," mentioned Christian. "It would have taken a lot longer if I would have stayed at UND. We played such a good schedule with the Olympic team. It really helped us develop as hockey players."

The Olympic gold medal, of course, was the ultimate prize, made doubly sweet for Christian because his father, Billy, was a member of the United States' gold medal hockey team at Squaw Valley, Calif. in 1960.

"I maybe thought about winning the gold medal a little more than anybody because I saw one," smiled David whose medal is larger than Billy's. "But he (Billy) still says he likes his better," laughed David.

"It was a good bunch of guys," said Christian of the Olympic team that included 12 Minnesota players. "They had a lot of fun. Everybody got along real well."

Success has come like a windfall for Christian, but he paid his dues with lots of hard work.

"If you want to work hard enough, you can get your chance," said Christian. "It takes a lot of hard work, but you're not going to get something for nothing. You have to give up some things. You can't be afraid to spend a lot of time on the ice."

Christian's ice time will probably start again in July in International Falls. The Jets' training camp opens about Sept. 1, with the rookies reporting a week earlier. Christian, who might feel like an old pro by now, hasn't heard whether he'll have to report with the rookies.

1980 Northland Baseball Season Underway

Northmen Open With Doubleheader Sweep

A suspect offense erupted for 23 hits and 28 runs Sunday as the Northland community college baseball team opened its 1980 season with a 14-4, 14-7 doubleheader sweep over the University of North Dakota junior varsity in Grand Forks.

"I think we're going to be fair this year," noted Northland coach Chet Engelman after the double triumph. "I was a little concerned about our hitting, but we hit the ball well today."

Just what kind of season is in store for the Northmen may be revealed Saturday when Northland travels to Brainerd for an MJCAA doubleheader opener against the perennial Northwest Division power Red Raiders.

"We have some kids who can throw the ball for us; in face we have eight pitchers," mentioned Engelman. "We'll just have to wait and see if we can continue to hit the ball."

Northland opened Sunday's twinbill with a 14-4 romp shortened to six innings because of the 10-run rule.

Things started well for the Northmen who jumped out to a 2-0 first inning lead when Vince Parker walked, moved to second on a passed ball and scored when Tony Smith tripled into the right-centerfield gap. Smith came home on a wild pitch.

It became 5-0 in the top of the third after Parker hit a two-run home run over the right-centerfield fence and Smith jumped on the very next pitch for his second triple of the game; scoring on Bruce Williams' single down the left field line.

Williams had things under control on the mound, too, as the Thief River Falls lefthander gave up just one earned run in five innings of work to pick up the pitching decision. Wane Gutterud pitched the sixth and final inning.

A six-run fourth inning broke a 3-3 tie and carried Northland to a 14-7 second game victory and a doubleheader sweep.

Winning pitcher Lonnie Serfling snapped the deadlock with a two-run double in the big Northland fourth inning that featured six hits, three walks and a Sioux error. Tony Smith scored Serfling with a single, Lyle Johnson picked up an RBI on a bases-loaded walk, Scott Chapman came up with a two-run single and Vince Parker singled home a run before the inning was done. Chapman and Parker both had two hits in the inning.

Serfling, a freshman from Deer River, struck out 10 batters in five innings. Wayne Gutterud appeared for the second time in the afternoon as a relief pitcher, hurling the final two innings for the Northmen.

May 12-18 Is Fishing Week In Minnesota

With the theme "Take a Kid Fishing," the week of May 12-18 will be proclaimed national fishing week in Minnesota by Governor Albert Quie, the Department of Natural Resources announced.

Jerry Kuehn, DNR fisheries chief, is urging state conservation and sportsmen groups to sponsor an event (preferably during this week) emphasizing the benefits of adult-kid fishing experiences.

Several large angler organizations will participate in a proclamation signing ceremony, scheduled for the governor's office at 2:30 p.m. on Wed., April 23.

Kuehn said a recent survey completed by the DNR shows that more than 500,000 of the 2.2 million anglers in Minnesota are under 16 years of age, proving that fishing is one of the most popular youth activities in Minnesota, as well as the nation.

He said the observance will provide an ideal opportunity for adult anglers to share with youth their knowledge of the sport, an appreciation of the great out-of-doors and respect for out country's natural resources.

Some of the tips he has for adults who take kids fishing: don't force them to go; girls like to fish too; use simple methods like spin casting for bluegills; once you teach them the basics, let them do their own fishing; don't stress fishing success, but use the opportunity to foster friendship and companionship; and have patience.

The Minnesota observance will be part of a national fishing week event scheduled for the same date.

Kuehn added that the tremendous popularity of fishing is a big economic asset in Minnesota. Fishermen spend $260 million annually here in pursuit of their sport. This generates business in the local community amounting to about $520 million.

Lincoln Girls Track Team Opens '80 Season Today

A young Thief River Falls team was scheduled to compete at the Crookston indoor invitational at 4 p.m. today (Monday) to kick off the 1980 season for the Lincoln high school girls track team.

Just three seniors and five juniors are on the 28-member Thief River Falls team coached by Tom Schafter and Lynn Dyer.

"We're young, and that's going to be our drawback," admitted Schafer. "But given enough meets to get some experience, I think we'll do all right this year. We've got a couple of sophomores and freshmen who are looking pretty good so far."

Karla Nelson, Patty Langlie and Gitte Birlev, a foreign exchange student from Sweden, are the only seniors on the team. The juniors are Stacy Ehrenstrom, Brenda Lund, Bernie Rogalla, Val Knutson and Michelle Solseng.

Rest of the squad members include sophomores Margaret White, Lori Swanson, Robyn Dallmann, Kathy Dyrdal, Jill Matson, Tara Nicholson, Yvette Loehr, Marsha Erickson, Patti Blackstad, Barb Otteson, Roz Berg and Julie Gustafson; freshmen Shari Nelson, Lisa Glass, Kristy Peterson, Wanda Sylvester, Sheila Bailey, Cathi Dusek and Shari McGann; and eighth grader Shari Sabo.

"We're overloaded with sprinters," mentioned Schafer, "but we don't have many distance runners."

Expected to be consistent point-producers for the Prowlers this spring are Nelson, springs and relays; Langlie, hurdles and relays; Ehrenstrom, shot and discus; Lund, sprints and relays; Dallmann, shot, discus and quarter-mile; and Swanson, mile.

The Prowlers lost the services of senior Connie Hedlund, probably their best performer, who suffered a knee injury while skiing this winter. She was the area's top hurdler.

After competing at Crookston today, Thief River Falls will be at Bagley Friday for a 3:30 p.m. outdoor meet.

Meanwhile, the Lincoln high school boys track team, last in the season-opening Northwest Athletic Conference indoor last week, returns to the Crookston Winter Shows building Tuesday to compete in the Pirate Jaycees Relays at 4 p.m.

Only home appearance of the 1980 season for the Lincoln girls track team will be the Thief River Falls invitational Tues., May 6. The boys will host their Quentin Jones invitational Thurs., May 1.

U.S. highway 85 from New Castle, Wyo., to Terry Peak is a very scenic one through the northern Black Hills. With lots of snow, it was especially lovely when we drove through. One pass was over 6,000 feet in elevation and there are spectacular canyons. There were lots of snowmobile trails everywhere.

Terry Peak, with 1200 feet of vertical elevation, is our nearest ski area in that range. They have been improving the last few years. Last year they put in a four place or quad chair, which has cut their lift lines a good deal. They also added some fine new runs. This year they put in snow making, which means more reliable snow, and fewer rocks. They now have three chair lifts, a poma and two T-bars.

Snow dressing is good and will be further improved. Their season is December through March. Accommodations are available in picturesque Lead and Deadwood.

When skiing Terry Peak, first take the yellow squad chair. You can ski down to it from the lodge chalet. This has excellent intermediate and novice runs. Those more expert can go to the blue and red chairlifts. There are lots of runs available and the lift lines are not long.

The scene from the top is beautiful, and they say you can see five states. You do have to watch yourself when skiing. Eager for the sport you get off at the top and start right down. To survive, you have to keep your eye on the runs. Try to make yourself stop and have a good look at the wonderful panorama around you. Pause and soak in a little of the beauty.

When the two closed, we left the last of our ski areas. We had experienced a vacation of unsurpassing beauty. Skiing had been wonderful, and in the 15 days I had skied over 200,000 feet of vertical elevation. It was wonderful, but I had had enough and I looked forward to being back at work.

We left the Black Hills going north on State 79, planning to stop at the first available place. It proved to be over 200 miles away at Dickinson, North Dakota. The next day we crossed North Dakota in snow and arrived home in Roseau.

The next day I was out running, to stay in shape for next year's ski trip.

Tennis Team Easy Winner

A change in the Thief River Falls line-up did not change the results Thursday as the No. 1-ranked Prowlers overpowered Moorhead 4-1 and East Grand Forks 5-0 to win a triangular high school tennis meet held at East Grand Forks.

The Prowlers finished the afternoon with nine points, followed by Moorhead with five and East Grand Forks one.

Thief River Falls opened the season a week earlier with a 5-0 victory over Crookston with Bill Jury at No. 1 singles; Mitch Rustad No. 2; Mark Collins No. 3; Tom Bjorkman and Paul Koppang No. 1 doubles; and Bill Holmes and Mark Lundin No. 2.

Only Holmes and Lundin stayed put Thursday, however, as Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson shifted Rustad to No. 1 singles; Koppang No. 2; Bjorkman No. 3; and Jury, the state's second-ranked singles player, played No. 1 doubles with Collins.

"We have to be concerned with the health factor," said Olson about the changes. "We have to get them into condition. I'm always concerned about Bill's elbow and shoulder early in the season. Playing him at doubles means he only has to serve half as many times and doesn't have to do as much volleying compared to playing singles. And at the same time it's good for Tom to play some singles since he has to move around more and serve a lot more."

Name Womack TRF Backcourt Club Chairman

Frank Womack was named chairman Saturday at the reorganizational meeting of the Thief River Falls basketball Backcourt Club that attracted a good turnout of basketball boosters at the Rex Cafe.

Dean Hams was named vice-chairman of the organization and David Vagle was selected secretary-treasurer.

Several items were discussed, including a summer basketball league that has already drawn the interest of some 150 players in grades 3-6 who have signed up for the program.

To assess interest by girls from third grade through 11th grade in a summer basketball program, a registration slip will be distributed through the local schools within the coming week. The assessment is being made to determine what facilities may be needed to provide for a girls' basketball program.

Persons with questions or who would like further information may contact Jackie Schwietz at 681-7688 or Roxanne Nicholson at 681-6890.

The club will meet again Sat., May 3, at 9:30 a.m. at the Rex.

Snowmobile Death Rate Up For '78-79

Minnesota's snowmobile death rate climbed last year to 22 and apparently was on an upward swing for 1979-80.

The 22 fatalities for the 1978-79 winter season came from 158 snowmobile accidents, according to the enforcement division of the department of natural resources. Other fatality counts in previous years were 8, 13, 26, 23, 28 and 32, dating back to 1972-73.

No report is available for 1979-80. A number of accidents were reported with some fatalities. In the remaining 136 accidents for 1978-79, damage estimated at more than $100 or involving an injury were reported.

Most fatals on snowmobiles occurred between 6 and 9 p.m. (31 per cent). Eight deaths last year were in the 18-25 age group. Forty-five per cent of the crashes occurred on road right-of-ways.

NEWEST MEMBER of the Lincoln high school tennis team, Paul Koppang, stretched on a serve Thursday as the Prowlers participated in a triangular meet at East Grand Forks against the Green Wave and Moorhead. The Prowlers open their home season schedule today (Monday) with a 3:15 p.m. meet against Bemidji.

Lakers Lose To St. Boniface

St. Boniface defeated Warroad 5-2 Saturday to eliminate the host Lakers in the Central Amateur Senior Hockey (CASH) League playoff finals.

The Mohawks, runner-up to the Lakers in the regular season CASH League standings, took the best-of-seven championship series in five games, opening with a 5-4 win in double overtime and adding a 7-1 decision before losing 7-1. St. Boniface then added a 4-1 victory Thursday on Canadian ice and warpped up the series Saturday night at Warroad.

St. Boniface will now advance to Edmonton to compete in the Western Allen Cup playoffs.

Warroad finished the 1979-80 season with a 29-24 overall won-lost record. Tom Goddard and Scott Sabo of Thief River Falls played for the Lakers this winter.

Colleges Consider Many Factors When Deciding Admission

It is that time of year again when many high school seniors — the college application process behind them — wait anxiously to hear whether they have been accepted to attend a college in the fall. Meanwhile, on college campuses throughout the country, admissions officers are busy completing one stage or another of a fairly complex process which is designed to provide a good match between student's needs and abilities and the institution's resources and educational programs.

How are these decisions made? Why is a particular student chosen over another? How are various elements in the selection process evaluated to produce the end result — acceptance or rejection? The lack of understanding of the admissions process has given rise to speculation and erroneous conclusions that students are accepted or rejected on the basis of the admissions test, a single factor in what many admissions officers describe as "a multi-faceted process."

According to college admissions directors and high school guidance counselors who are members of the college board, a national non-profit membership association, there is no standard formula to explain the admissions process.

A recent national survey of admissions practices and policies at two- and four-year colleges bears them out. According to the survey, education records including high school grades and courses taken, test scores, recommendations from teachers and guidance counselors, interviews with admissions staff and faculty and autobiographical essays are among the credentials reviewed and evaluated by college admission's committees.

The 1979 study conducted by the board and the American association of collegiate registrars and admissions officers (AACRAO), also revealed that other criteria such as student motivation or initiative, evidence of good citizenship and moral character, special skills or abilities and leadership qualities are given serious consideration when evaluating a candidate's potential for admission.

"The whole admissions process is an impressionistic, human process. . . to make the best judgment possible you have to read the personal statements, the letters of recommendation, and examine the quality of the academic record. You have to keep all the criteria in perspective and finally evaluate the whole package," explains Molly Geraghty, a Harvard assistant dean of admissions.

Contrary to the popular belief that admission test scores are the sole factor or the most important factor in admission decisions, many college admissions officers and high school counselors emphasize the fact that this is not true. "The SAT is just one component in the admissions procedure, and helps more than hinders an applicant. SAT's are not the be-all and end-all, but are good supporting evidence," says Kenneth Nourse, admissions director at Union college.

The AACRAO study confirms this. It reveals that a vast majority of the two-year and four-year colleges surveyed agree that while test scores are important, they are not the sole determining factor in admissions. In fact, the study reveals that high school performance was ranked the number one important factor in the admissions process. Admissions test scores, ranked second in importance. According to Linden Smith, director of admissions at Yale university, the SAT score of the student "is by no means the sole factor that determines admissions. High school record, grades, extra curricular activities, sports — these are more important . . . " she adds.

The study further indicates that the colleges believe that test scores are useful in three ways: (1) To review as part of the overall evaluation of an applicant's credentials; (2) to determine if an applicant may need special assistance in completing the colleges academic program, and (3) to include among other data in a profile to inform students of the school's academic level.

In essence, "The SAT might be considered as a yardstock, it gives us kind of a feel for a student and his or her abilities. It gives us an idea of a student's potential" notes Brad Sargeant, director of admissions, Jacksonville university. Others involved in the admissions process, like Harry B. Scheiber, professor of American History, University of California conclude that the role of the SAT is "to identify able students who might otherwise be judged unfairly . . . " Still others view the SAT as "a standardized norm to help admissions officers determine of a student . . . will be able to cope with rigorous college work . . ." as noted by Philip F. Smith, admissions director at Williams College.

The College Board-AACRAO survey, entitled "Survey of Undergraduate Admissions Policies, Practices and Procedures" will be published in the summer of 1980. Individuals who would like to receive an announcement of the report may write to the Office of Public Affairs, Dept. A, The College Board, 888 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York 10019.

State Patrol Plans Spring Bike Programs

Minnesota state patrol, recognizing that an early spring means an early bicycling start, is reminding schools, civic organizations and community groups of bike and traffic safety programs offered by the patrol, a division of the Minnesota department of public safety.

Safety education officers offer a variety of programs appealing to different age and interest groups. Subjects include pedestrian and bicycle safety, school safety patrol, school bus conduct, defensive driving, problems of drinking and driving and general driver education.

One of the most popular spring programs is, "Mike, The Talking Bike," given by officers who use this unique presentation to stress the safest possible way to use a bicycle.

ADA Announces Summer Dates For Camp Sioux

American Diabetes Association (ADA) in North Dakota recently announced the summer dates for Camp Sioux — a free camp for children between eight and 14 who have diabetes and are insulin-dependent.

Two sessions will again be conducted this year at the Turtle River state park in Arvilla, ND. Session I is August 3-9, and session II is August 10-16.

Camp Sioux is operated by the ADA and is supported by the Grand Forks Kiwanis club and public contributions. Major contributors include: the Tom and Francis Leach foundation, Towner, ND; the N.D. Jaycettes, National Pharamaceutical Companies, Grand Forks businesses, the Grand Forks clinic, United Hospital in Grand Forks, and also other service groups. This year, Congress, Inc. of Grand Forks, Fargo and Bismarck, in celebration of its 75th anniversary, will be raising funds with the help of their retail establishments in the state for Camp Sioux.

Camp Sioux is an educational experience where campers can learn about adjustments to diabetes, what diabetes control is and how other children are dealing with their disease. Program allows campers independence to increase self-confidence and self-esteem while learning new skills.

The camp is fully staffed with physicians, nurses, registered dietitians, counselors, etc. on a 24 hour basis. In addition to close medical supervision and teaching, great emphasis is placed on a fun outdoor camping experience.

Pre-registrations are being accepted now and these forms can be obtained by writing: Camp Sioux, ADA., P.O. Box 234, Grand Forks, N.D 58201. Those children pre-registered will receive application forms to be completed by their physician and parents and returned to the state office no later than June 1, 1980.

Mn. Migrant Housing Rules Are Changed

Minnesota employers may still comply with stricter housing standards for migrant workers which were effective April 3, 1980 the department of economic security announced recently.

Employers who formerly met housing standards have until June 2, 1980, to obtain permanent variances under a "grandfather clause" in the new federal employment and training administration (ETA) rules.

U.S. department of labor ETA rules, commonly known as "620 standards," were abolished and Occupational safety and health administration (OSHA) regulations substituted. Two exceptions are being allowed under OSHA rules.

First exception allows farm worker housing completed or under construction before April 3 or construction contracts signed before March 4, 1980, to be in compliance under the "grandfather clause."

"This means that even though the 620 standards were abolished, they will continue to apply for existing housing. The allowable rate of occupancy is much higher under the ETA standards than under OSHA requirements," a department spokesman said.

A second exception under the new regulations provides for permanent variances where housing does not meet ETA standards but the health and safety of workers are unaffected or have been alternatively protected.

To obtain "grandfather clause" exceptions, effected employers must request a permanent variance through their area job service offices by June 2, 1980. If no request is made, or if it is disallowed, the new OSHA housing regulations will be effective.

For information on the new rules, contact Richard Reinhardt or George Howell of the rural area and migrant services section, Department of Economic Security, at 612-296-3389 or 296-3443, or a job service office.

Actual Easter Date Projected By Astronomy

by Mark E. Canney
'U' M News Service

Since the year 325, the date of Easter has been fixed as the first Sunday after the full moon in the spring.

Celebrated by Christians, Easter is the holiday marking the rise from the dead of Jesus Christ. But the date set for the holiday is more ceremonial than factual.

Karlis Kaufmanis, professor emeritus of astronomy at the University of Minnesota, says that astronomical clues, combined with Biblical information, point to an actual date for the resurrection.

"Countless inquiries suggest that the crucifixion took place some time between the years 29 and 33," Kaufmanis said.

Taking these five years into consideration, there are two additional clues that point to an exact date, Kaufmanis said.

First, the Bible says that Jesus died on a Friday followed by the Jewish Feast of the Passover. Second, it is known that Passover was celebrated on the first full moon of the spring.

Astronomers have calculated that only two of the five years — 30 and 33 — satisfy both the full moon and the Friday requirements.

"The crucifixion, therefore, would have taken place either on Friday, April 7, A.D. 30, or on Friday, April 3, A.D. 33," Kaufmanis said. "There are no other possible dates."

Kaufmanis said there are at least two good reasons for supporting the year 33.

It is generally agreed that Jesus was baptized in the spring of the year 29, Kaufmanis said. If this is true, he said, it is hard to believe that the numerous trips and the tremendous amount of work Jesus did thereafter were accomplished during the short period between that spring and April of the following year.

Kaufmanis' second reason for supporting April 3, 33 as the true date of the crucifixion is based on astronomical calculations and Biblical passages.

"In the description of Jesus' crucifixion, the Gospel of Saint Matthew says, 'Now from the sixth hour there was darkness over all the land until the ninth hour'."

Kaufmanis rules out an eclipse of the sun as the source of the darkness, unless it was a supernatural phenomenon. The moon was not in a position to block out the sun's rays at the time of the crucifixion, he said.

Some theologians have suggested that the darkness was the result of sunstorms. Kaufmanis refuted this view. Sunstorms were common in Palestine, he said, and such a common occurrence would not have caused the astonishment that apparently was felt at the time of Jesus' death.

A more plausible explanation can be found in the passage of the Gospel of Jerusalem, a book not included in our present-day Bible, Kaufmanis said. This gospel reads, "And the moon hid its light and the stars fell."

"Indeed, astronomical calculations confirmed that a partial eclipse of the moon did occur on the evening of April 3 in the year 33," Kaufmanis said. The moon rose already eclipsed at 6:03 p.m. and regained its full light 34 minutes later, Kaufmanis said. Whether this eclipse was the phenomenon that caused the "darkness over all the land" is not certain.

"But we can well imagine the terrific effect upon Jesus' disciples and followers when, toward the end of the gloomy day of the crucifixion, a darkened moon appeared above the horizon of Calvary," Kaufmanis said.

Derosier And Adams Play In Bemidji Band

Fifty-four students under the direction of Thomas Swanson will participate in a major spring concert and tour this month as members of the Bemidji state university symphonic band. Following a Sunday performance at 4 p.m. in the Bemidji high school auditorium, the ensemble began a three-day tour of Crookston, Warren and Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Students involved from this area include: Lucy Derosier of Red Lake Falls on alto sax and Ronn Adams of Thief River Falls on trumpet.

Works by William Schuman, J. S. Bach and Russell Peck are among the selections to be presented on the concert program.

CENSUS RETURNS keep piling up as census workers throughout the nation work to complete a count of the United States' population. Kris Kremer, a unit leader in Thief River Falls, starts the task of accounting for forms which she collected from enumerators yesterday. Forms funnel into the district office in Bemidji from this area a couple of times a week. Expectations are that the census locally will be wrapped up by the end of next week.

School Board Will Keep Grade Plan

Faced with finding space for classes following closing of the 1910 section of Lincoln high school at the end of the current school year, the Thief River Falls board of education adopted two resolutions at a special meeting held this morning.

The first resolution establishes a continue practice of maintaining kindergarten through grade 5 in the district's elementary schools, grades 6-8 at Franklin middle school and grades 9-12 at Lincoln and whatever other facilities may be necessary.

The second resolution directs architect Ken Skold to proceed with development of working drawings to accomplish temporary housing of grades 9-12 at the school district service center and Lincoln complex.

A special meeting was also set for May 12 at 7 p.m. in the Lincoln high school library to discuss the district's building situation and to reach a decision on whether to propose a bond issue for remodeling or new construction. Public attendance at the meeting is encouraged.

At the regular meeting of the board Monday evening in the Lincoln library, the board accepted resignations from Led Heinecke, health occupations instructor at the center school; Alan Linne, drafting and electronics instructor at the center school; and Loraine Olson, second grade teacher at Northrop elementary school.

Hired for driver training instruction were Dale Dunning, Bill McGann, Bob Michalicek, Glen Peters and Clayton Restad with Restad to be coordinator. Rebecca Thorson was hired as a long term substitute secretary at the AVTI, Debra Blazek for hall supervision and student control at Lincoln, Marilyn Adams as art instructor at Franklin, Julie Jossund as speech instructor and Steve Anderson as in-house suspension instructor at Lincoln. Susan Feeney was named director of girls' activities and elementary girls' activities.

Bids were accepted from Thorstad's Appliance service for purchase from the school district of a chest-type beverage cooler ($25), steam table ($10), refrigerated salad bar ($15) and refrigerator ($35). Calculators offered for sale by the AVTI were sold to George Osland ($30) and School District 628 (four for $15 each).

The administration was authorized to advertise for share crop proposals on 60 acres of crop land and 20 acres of hayland by the AVTI. Graduation for the AVTI was set for June 6 and the AVTI graduation list was approved.

SOCIAL MIXER for Girl scouts attending the annual banquet Monday evening at the Redeemer Lutheran church fellowship hall involved girls getting names of members of other troops. These two youngsters put so much effort into the exercise that writing names apparently produced a bit of fatigue.

People attending the annual scout exposition Sunday afternoon at the Thief River Falls sports arena are advised to be on hand a few minutes early. A highlight of the exposition will be a program beginning at 2 p.m. to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the Boy scouts and 50th anniversary of the Cub scouts.

"With these two special occasions in mind, we wanted to give some extra exposure to these two groups and show the public a little more of what scouting is all about," stated Norm Cruse of Thief River Falls, Voyageur Trails district chairman. "We think the different approach this year will be enjoyable for both the participants and the public."

Canadian scouts will again participate in the exposition which will continue after the program with activity booth operated by various scout packs, troops and posts. The Canadian guests will stay in the homes of scouters in Thief River Falls, Warren and Hallock.

The Canadians will arrive at the sports arena at approximately 9:30 p.m. on Friday, at which time the host families are to pick up their guests for the weekend. A welcome social will be held at the curling club beginning at 10 p.m. with all interested scouters and friends of scouting invited to participate.

Saturday activity will consist of setting up and decorating booths with international scout fellowship banquet to be served at 7 p.m. in the American Legion club rooms. Tickets are $6 each and can be obtained from Louise McLean, banquet chairman, by any scouters interested in attending.

Host families are asked to bring their Canadian guests to the arena by 1:30 p.m. on Sunday according to Mrs. James Cuppett, housing chairman for the international exchange. A variety of scouting skills will be on display during the afternoon with Cubs, Scouts and Explorers demonstrating activities.

Following the exposition a potluck supper will be served to Canadian scouts and leaders and special guests at the United Methodist church. Dan Shafland is chairman of the supper and donated food should be brought to the church basement between 1:30 and 5 p.m.

Tickets to the show are $1 each for adults and children admitted free when accompanied by an adult. They are on sale from Cub scouts, Boy scouts and Explorers throughout the district. PIONEER TALES from the Pennington County Historical Society

by Inga Geving

I would like to share with you the fascinating history of one of our local pioneer doctors who is remembered by only a few of the early settlers still remaining. He was Dr. Francis C. Gambell, a poet and writer, a lover of people, nature, animals, trees and fields. A father of five sons, he indicates in his writings a most compassionate, loving, kind and understanding personality.

He lived to be 92, following his calling to practice medicine while still so drawn to nature that it almost prevented him from becoming a doctor.

The short stories in this collection tell of varied experiences during his colorful years. He collected the stories so that they might be handed down to his sons. He begs that if others read them, they will not read with a critical eye but in the spirit in which they were written. I find this collection so interesting that I hope to get it published in book form so that you may all share it.

Here are some quotations from his work:

"When I was a very young man I traveled alone in Europe during my summer vacations. That was long before the World Wars. I had a strong desire to travel and see the world. I did get lonesome, tho', traveling all alone. I went alone to the foot of the Alps in the morning and started out alone to ascend the mountain, that I might view at close hand, a glacier. Something that I had heard about, but something that I had never seen.

I see myself toiling up that mountainside and I know how lonesome I was. The people spoke a language strange to me, and the landscape was strange; the birds and the trees and flowers were foreign also. I thought that if I could only see somebody or something that was like home, or even reminded me of home, I could be extremely happy, and lo and behold! what did I see half hidden in the bushes near the side of the pathway. The bright red blossoms of the familiar red clover. I took from my pocket my pencil, and in my notebook I wrote this ode:

'Dear clover, away on the mountainside high,
Watching the clouds as they pass by,
Say you know not of the time long ago
When I through the meadows went to and fro,
With books and dinner pail on my arm
And plucked off your heads and through it no harm
To tear off your leaves and bind your bodies in sheaves.
And we'll be friends, for I know you,

Francis H. Gambell, M.D.

Beautiful, isn't it? I am sure as you read some of his stories too, you will learn to know a wonderful person. I will use more of his writings in future columns.

Governor Lists Reasons For Vetoing Bill

"Last week I vetoed a hastily written controversial bill that would have halted the current workers' compensation rate hearing," states Minnesota governor Al Quie.

"Because workers' compensation costs are so burdensome to Minnesota business and small business in particular, the intent of the legislation and the consequences of my veto need to be explained. The bill proposed a one-year moratorium on workers' compensation rate increases, supposedly to allow the needed time for gathering information based on Minnesota's experiences with workers' compensation. I believe our rates must be based on Minnesota data and I have talked with commissioner of insurance, Michael Markman, who has assured me that this year's premium decision will be based on Minnesota information," the governor said.

"Some legislators have argued that canceling the current hearing would have saved employers from a proposed 28 per cent premium increase. That is not so. That deferred increase likely would have been added onto next year's rate increase request, burdening employers with an increase much larger than 28 per cent in the very near future.

"To have delayed for a year the rate hearing process that is now underway would have several other undesirable consequences," Gov. Quie said. He noted that they would include the following:

"Insurance companies would have likely increased rates on other insurance policies held by business owners.

"An increased number of Minnesota employers may have had to be placed into the workers' compensation risk pool. Had that occurred, some would argue that the private sector in Minnesota is unable to provide workers' compensation and that a state fund is necessary. I am opposed to a state fund because I do not believe the state should be in the workers' compensation insurance business.

"The state has already committed substantial resources to the current rate process which was just revised by the 1979 legislature. The 1979 legislature made a tremendous reform in our rate hearing process. This reform was long overdue since the new hearing process will help hold workers' compansation rates from rising so fast. I do not believe the 1980 legislature should have so hurriedly dismissed what the 1979 legislature established.

"I believe I have done the right thing," Gov. Quie said. "The legislation presented to me would have only disrupted the provision of workers' compensation insurance to Minnesota employers. Without the law we will still have rates based on Minnesota experience and we will have avoided a costly delay in our workers' compensation rate hearing process."

Aid Received For Natural Disasters Down

Amount of federal and state aid received by Minnesota for natural disaster relief declined in 1979 from 1978, according to John P. Sopsic, Commissioner of the Minnesota department of public safety.

The decline was mainly for a good reason, said Gerald Kittridge, director of emergency services, a division of the Department of public safety. The reason was that no tornadoes striking major centers of population were listed for presidential declaration.

According to Kittridge, total of all grants received last year was $5,419,920, compared to $8,431,111 in 1978. A major reason for the difference was the impact of the summer flood at Rochester in 1978. That year there were 1,340 applications approved for $1,875,000. Last year the number of applications was 90 for $125,732.

Two hundred and twenty-seven subdivisions of government received $5,322,199, compared to $8,431,111 for 216 subdivisions in 1978. Eleven counties in northwestern Minnesota participated in the request of Gov. Al Quie to declare areas eligible for disaster flood aid. Counties involved were Aitkin, Clay, Itasca, Kittson, Lake of the Woods, Marshall, Norman, Polk, Red Lake, Roseau and Wilkin.

There were 17 reported tornadoes in the state last year, Kittridge said, the same number recorded in 1978. Tornadoes at Gary, Bejou and Fosston in 1978 figured in the aid amount while no twisters involving municipalities were listed for presidential declaration last year.

Taconite Trail Planned For NE Minnesota

Planning is completed on the Taconite Trail in northeastern Minnesota, the Department of Natural Resources announced, and $604,000 is construction work is scheduled for this year.

The recreational trail extends from Grand Rapids to Ely. It was authorized by the legislature in 1974 but construction ceased in 1977 pending completion of a master plan.

DNR commissioner Joseph Alexander said construction will begin as soon as land acquisition agreements have been reached with several governmental units.

"The entire trail will be open to snowmobiling," said Alexander. "In the summer certain segments will be designated for horseback riding while the majority of the trail will be available to hikers."

He said the trail plan was developed with the assistance and cooperation of a number of individuals, organizations and government agencies.

Name Hedland Director Of Wheat Council

Merle Hedland, executive vice president for foreign operations for U.S. Wheat Associates, Inc., has been named executive director of the Minnesota wheat research and promotion council, according to Terry Fladeland of Red Lake Falls, council chairman. Hedland will begin his duties at the council's headquarters in Red Lake Falls on June 1.

As the executive director, Hedland will be responsible for the planning and administration of the wheat council's programs to expand the markets for Minnesota and U.S. wheats both domestically and overseas. Current programs include research to develop new high yielding, high quality wheat varieties, a regional spring wheat quality survey for distribution to present and potential customers of U.S. spring wheats, and an aggressive program of export promotion through U.S. Wheat associates.

The wheat council, comprised of nine wheat producers from throughout Minnesota's wheat producting area, also maintains an information program to keep Minnesota wheat farmers and elevator operators apprised of current events in the U.S. and world wheat markets. The council has also been active in research into the use of gasohol to partially replace high cost, imported oil.

As the executive vice president for U.S. Wheat associates in Washington, D.C., Hedland was primarily responsible for the operational aspects of that wheat producer organization's overseasm market development programs in Africa, Asia, Europe, Latin America and the Middle East, which are conducted through 11 foreign regional or country offices.

Prior to being named executive vice president of U.S. Wheat, Hedland held similar responsibilities with Great Plains wheat as vice president before GPW merged with a sister organization, Western Wheat associates, to form U.S. Wheat associates.

Hedland began his employment with Great Plains Wheat in 1974 as program coordinator, with responsibilities for the coordination of the market development programs and activities of the overseas regional offices, with the various member state wheat commissioners, and with the foreign agricultural service of the U.S. department of agriculture.

Before joining GPW, Hedland served for six years as the assistant administrator of the North Dakota wheat commission in Bismarck, ND, with responsibilities in the areas of administration and operations, public relation and producer information, and the commission's domestic marketing and nutrition education program.

A native of Kindred, ND, Hedland, who is 34, received his degree in agricultural economics in 1968 from North Dakota state university. He and his wife, Kathleen, have two daughters, Genevieve and Amy.

Jobless Pay Recipients Get Prompt Service

(NOTE: The following is a correction for a previous story concerning state unemployment benefit recipients getting prompt payments.)

Minnesotans have been receiving their first unemployment insurance benefit checks within two weeks 92 per cent of the time and 99 per cent of first payments within 35 days, according to the department of economic security.

Tennessee was the only other state to better that record, according to a U.S. department of labor report.

State made payments within 14 days 82 per cent of the time to eligible persons who filed for unemployment benefits in other states based on employment in Minnesota. Only three states improved on this accomplishment. Minnesota was first among all states in making first benefit payments in this category within 35 days 96 per cent of the time.

Evaluations for compensation payments were made for the last nine months of 1979.

Cancer Society Opens Crusade In Pennington

Pennington county unit of the American Cancer society is beginning its residential crusade this week, according to Mrs. Judy Skogerboe, county crusade chairman.

"This is a time when concerned neighborhood volunteers will be bringing you life-saving information," Mrs. Skogerboe said. "Public education is a vital part of our program because early detection and prompt treatment can save your life. Don't hesitate to accept this literature on the warning signs of cancer and suggestions for good health habits."

The crusade chairman added that cancer is an enemy which has likely tourched the lives of most people in some sad way.

"We must step up our research into the causes and cures of all types of cancer," she said, "but to do research we must have money. When we knock on your door soon, please help us as generously as you can. We have made important advances in the fight against cancer and with your help we will wipe out this disease."

A number of volunteers are involved in the local unit of the American Cancer society. Jerry Wedul is county chairman with Ernest Swanson as vice chairman, Lois Swanson as secretary and Helen Glass as treasurer. Comprising the nominating committee are Adeline Aune, Gerald Wigness and Ernest Swanson.

Educational and fund raising committee consists of Mrs. Skogerboe as city chairwoman and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Swanson as rural co-chairmen. Minnie Krause is in charge of memorials with public education headed by Ray Ptacek with assistance by Mrs. Lillian Ranum and Mrs. Margaret Race. Local services and transportation committee is headed by Mrs. Polly Balthasar and "I Can Cope" and "Reach to Recovery" are handled by Mrs. Kris Oppegaard, Mrs. Vivian Brekke and Mrs. Mary Ann Knutson.

Mrs. Skogerboe noted that more than 25 per cent of the contributions made to the cancer society goes for research projects and the remaining portion is used for the society's other programs. Thses include conferences, pamphlets, films, literature, teaching aids and stop-smoking aids, and help directly to cancer patients through dressings, transportation assistance to treatment centers, sickroom equipment and other aids.

Library Week Proclaimed By Mayor Carlson

In proclaiming this week as library week in Thief River Falls, Mayor Bob Carlson noted that libraries are one of our community's most valuable resources, providing information, education and enjoyment to nearly every Thief River Falls resident.

"Libraries are one of the few institutions that serve people of all ages from every economic and ethnic background," the mayor said, "and the local library serves the residents of Thief River Falls, students of Northland community college, Lincoln high school, Franklin middle school and all the elementary schools.

Mayor Carlson asked that Thief River Falls observe the week of April 13-19 as national library week and recognize the library's "outstanding contribution to everyone from preschooler to the professional all year long."

The mayor entered into the spirit of the celebration by completing the national library week crossword puzzle and entering it in the contest which is open to all ages.

Carlson's entry was the first correct one to be received and he was awarded the first of 100 "Love My Library" buttons to be given away to those entering the contest.

Anyone interested in entering the contest can get an entry from the April 14 edition of The Times or from the Northwest regional library, 101 East First, Thief River Falls.

In addition to the prizes given to the first 100 correct entries, a drawing will be held from all correct entries at the book and author dinner on April 19. Tickets for the dinner are still available from the Northwest regional library.

By Federal law, only you and census employees sworn to secrecy have access to your answers on the 1980 census questionnaire. Not once has the Bureau been prosecuted for releasing personal information.

More Vehicles Registered In '79 Says DPS

If Minnesotans are driving less and enjoying it more, such temperance does not show up in 1979 vehicle registration figures released for Minnesota this month by driver and vehicle services, a division of the Department of public safety.

Total registrations were up by more than 100,000 from 1978, according to Public Safety Commissioner John P. Sopsic. Figures for 1979 and 1978 respectively are: 3,577,825 and 3,469,244.

Further comparisons reveal that in only five of 21 categories listed, were the 1979 numbers less than those for 1978.

Significantly, the passenger car total was up to 2,028,324, nearly 52,000 ahead of the 1978 compilation. Only in the commercial station wagon, foreign based prorate trucks, recreational vehicles with living quarters, Duluth Transit bus and intercity bus listings were 1979 totals fewer. In all cases the differences were small.

Interestingly, the recreational vehicle picture showed a 33,640 figure for the self-propelled variety and 30,052 in the same category the previous year. For house trailers used for recreational activities, the 1979 total was 79,173, which was 163 less than in 1978.

One of the largest percentage increases was in mopeds, from 2,385 to 7,877 or a 230 per cent increase. Total number of motorcycles, minibikes and motorscooters increased by more than 5,000 (from 151,016 to 156,552;.

The motor vehicle totals represent only those vehicles currently registered. Junked or abandoned vehicles or vehicles moved out of state are not included.

Only five counties had fewer registrations. Ottertail had 540 fewer; Stearns, 133; Wilkin, 63; Lake of the Woods, 21; and Grant, 7 fewer than the previous year.

Both Hennepin and Ramsey had increases. Hennepin was up from 767,690 to 791-553 and Ramsey had a hike of more than 10,000.

Durenberger Bill Promotes Volunteerism

Senator Dave Durenberger has introduced legislation creating a national commission to build "a balanced, healthy partnership between government and non-profit organizations of volunteers."

Durenberger's bill would create a national commission on volunteerism. The panel's 25 members would be appointed by the president and represent a cross-section of volunteer organizations, business, organized labor and government.

According to the bill, the commission would have two years to complete its work. During the first 18 months the commission would study the major influences on volunteerism and write specific recommendations to increase the role of volunteers in society. The last half-year would be spent in public hearings around the country.

Durenberger introduced a similar bill last year, but it was killed in a House-Senate conference committee. "In the six or seven months since I first proposed a national commission on volunteerism, I have become more firmly convinced that such a commission is necessary," said the senator. "Volunteer organizations supplement government programs through their own initiatives. And, when the services are provided by volunteer groups, the attention is more individualized, the care more sensitive, the approach more innovative."

Durenberger said his commission is necessary because "the volunteer sector is facing enormous challenges." The senator cited inflation, the need of more people to be paid for their work and the increasing number of persons who rely on services provided by volunteers.

"We do not have a picture of what volunteering will be like 10 years from now, because the studies have not been completed. We do not know who will be volunteering or what type of work they will be doing. It's important to answer these and other questions so we can encourage volunteerism by devoting the necessary resources to volunteers," he said.

Durenberger is an adviser to the President's commission on the 80s. He said one of his major roles on the commission, which will establish a national agenda of action for the new decade, will be to focus on the role volunteers and non-profit organizations can play in meeting the country's goals.

All those pin cushions and stuffed animals are Bertha's creations and she plans to come some Thursday to be with us this summer. Thank you, Bertha, for what you have made for our center, and although the material mostly came from our center, we do appreciate that you are willing and want to help us in making such beautiful items.

Mabel Borsvold brought some assorted skeins of yarn to the center as a donation Thursday. She also furnished the door prize that Ida Bruce won. Thanks to you, too, Mabel.

THE VOICE of BUSINESS

U.S. Chamber of Commerce

The nation is totally preoccupied with inflation. Each of the presidential candidates has made the problem a top priority and has promised new leadership in trying to solve it. To date, however, there has been very little discussion of one of the most generous and dangerously inflationary programs of all — the federal retirement system. Consider:

A hypothetical individual, John Doe, has worked for the federal government for 30 years. Having reached the age of 55, he is now eligible for retirement a good seven to 10 years before most individuals working in the private economy. John earns $19,000, which is about average for a federal employee, and which the government's own statistics show is approximately 40 per cent higher than the average non-government salary.

His starting pension will be almost $10,775. But since his pension is indexed to inflation, there is almost no limit to how high it could climb. Indeed, should the rate of inflation continue to increase by 14.2 per cent for 10 more years, this merely average federal employee will be due an annual retirement of over $40,000. The 20-year figure, should he live that long, and he probably will, is a mind-boggling $152,800!

Keep in mind that, although there is supposed to be a 50-50 worker-employer split to finance federal pensions, most federal employees currently pay only about 25 per cent of the true cost of their retirement systems. The taxpayers pick up the rest of the bill because of the cost of living adjustments.

So Question Number One for the presidential candidates is this: By what standard of fairness should taxpayers be expected to continue financing the greatest share of a government retirement system which is far more generous than they can afford for themselves?

But that's just the beginning. The nearly three million federal employees are exempt from paying Social Security taxes, even though a majority of them qualify (through spouse benefits, moonlighting or second careers) for Social Security benefits. Actually, many government workers receive more than benefits; they receive an outright windfall, and here is why:

The Social Security benefits formula allows workers with low average career earnings to receive a higher return on their contributions than do workers with high earnings. This subsidy is obviously intended to benefit workers with a lifetime of low wages. Unfortunately, it makes no distinction between these low income people and federal employees' whose average private sector earnings are low only because they have worked so long in government employment. These unintended subsidies amount to millions of dollars each year.

Thus, government employees can receive the same subsidy as low-wage workers in addition to their indexed pensions that insulate them from inflation. How sweet it is!

Question Number Two for presidential candidates: By what standard of fairness should these nearly three million public employees — including members of Congress — be allowed to escape paying our second largest tax while they work in public service, when a majority of them qualify for Social Security benefits?

Reforming these inequities in federal pensions and Social Security becomes doubly important in view of approaching economic problems. Social Security, for example, is currently being propped up thanks only to a tremendous tax increase. But such tax increases eventually depress economic activity, and a severe recession could dangerously deplete the Social Security Trust funds. Also, starting in about 30 years, the post-World War II baby boom will become the Twenty-First Century retirement boom. That, combined with our present low population growth, means the ratio of Social Security taxpayers to beneficiaries will drop sharply, so a corresponding increase in payroll taxes will be needed.

Finally, unlike most private pensions, federal pensions and Social Security are not being kept actuarially sound. The funding system is based on the infamous Ponzi scheme. By some estimates, the long-term unfunded obligations exceed several trillion dollars.

Final Question for presidential candidates: Left unreformed, the eventual financing of these two systems will require paralyzing tax increases and-or an unrestrained inflationary expansion of the money supply. What is your solution?

The nation awaits your responses. We can no longer afford to ignore this issue.

Fighting Inflation Grant By Grant

The following exchange took place at President Carter's press conference on March 14, 1980:

Question: With your efforts to balance the budget will you continue to favor those particular cities and persons within those cities who favor your reelection?

The President: We have never favored any person or cities who favored my reelection.

The federal government currently disburses nearly 25 billion in so-called discretionary aid to states and localities. Past Administrations — both Republican and Democratic — have consistently misused the aid to maximize their advantages by playing pork-barrel politics.

Spending other people's money to buy influence and votes is the principal reason Washington has become such a vicious engine of inflation. Indeed, the practice permeates nearly all federal spending, because the temptation to dole out "free" goodies is virtually irresistable. And once the money is spent, the federal government often reaps an even bigger windfall: The ability to control larger and larger chunks of the economy, to the detriment of competitive markets in local areas.

As noted at the outset, the President disassociated himself from these shoddy practices at his March 14 press conference. In fact, he assured his obviously misinformed questioner that this Administration has never, never, ever engaged in such naughty pork-barrel politics. Considering our nearly 20 per cent inflation rate, it's comforting to learn the political equivalent of "Reach Out and Touch Someone" has finally been purged from official Washington.

What puzzles me, however, is why so many supposedly reliable publications have also been either misinformed, or kept in the dark about the President's good news. The Wall Street Journal, for example, noted on March 6 that the President's skills in dispensing or withholding presidential favors is helping him win support of influential Democrats around the country. The Journal noted: "Iowa, Maine and New Hampshire received special White House treatment because they held this year's first three Democratic caucus and primary contests. In January, for example, Maine received federal grants double those of a year earlier."

Equally curious was a New York Times headline last November 27, "Presidential Power Helps Carter Win New York Support."

The Times article then observed: " ... It is no coincidence that mayors, as a group, are the most decidedly pro-Carter, at least in this state. Cabinet officials and Carter campaign aides are blatantly talking about how much federal money is available to cities.

" 'We have nothing to lose by going with Carter and getting what we can from him,' said an upstate mayor who asked not to be identified."

And whatever possessed Time magazine, in an article last October 15 about the upcoming Florida presidential poll, to make this shocking statement: "For the past several months, the White House has been raining appointments and grants on the state."

In a report about that same Florida poll in its October 20 edition, the national conservative weekly, Human Events, even went so far as to report this obviously absurd comment from one local Democratic Congressman: "We're getting money for highways, for housing, for hospitals. One more grant and the state will sink under the weight of these projects."

But what really got me confused was another misinformed comment from a totally unexpected source. While campaigning through the West last spring, the President opened his arms, spreading federal largesse far and wide at every stop. Someone innocently wondered at the purpose of all the announcements:

"That's how a President campaigns," replied the President's grinning press secretary, Jody Powell.

The President did warn us that the war on inflation will be a long haul. And an expensive one at that, I might add.

DAMAGE TO THE SIDING on the west end of a house owned by Doyle Thompson and rented by Mark Mattson, both of Thief River Falls, resulted from a grass fire which got out of control at approximately 2 p.m. Sunday. House is located on County road 18, north of Long's bridge. Mattson, who had been burning grass in the hay field in front of the house, left the area when the fire was apparently out, according to Duane Noel, Thief River Falls fire chief. The fire flared, setting afire straw covering the septic tank in the yard and spreading to the west side of the house.

RIVER BREAK-UP in the Thief River Falls area this year was one of the quietest and most orderly in a number of years. This photo near the bridge northeast of St. Hilaire shows some ice floes scattered along the bank where they were deposited by high water earlier during the break-up. Very little run-off was experienced this spring as moisture from the snow melt just seemed to disappear into the ground. Another week of drying weather will result in a number of farmers getting into the fields

WISDOM TEETH

As babies, we start out with 20 primary (or baby) teeth. By the time we are adults, we shed these baby teeth and end up with a total of 32 teeth. Where do the extra 12 come from? These are our 12 permanent molar teeth. They develop behind the baby molars in three stages (of 4 each) during our youth.

The third set of molars are called wisdom teeth. They make their appearance between the age of 17 and 21. The one who invented this label equated "wisdom" (perhaps rashly) with physical maturity. Wisdom teeth often cause trouble.

The jaws may be so small that one or all of these wisdom teeth remain completely embedded in the jawbone. In other instances, only a portion of the crown may erupt and a flap of gum tissue may overlap much of the wisdom tooth enamel.

These embedded (impacted) or partially erupted teeth may become a source of trouble from pressure they produce on adjacent teeth or from infection that develops under the gum. Their surgical removal may be necessary.

Northland community college hasn't had a whole lot of success playing baseball since the sport was introduced at the school in 1973. In seven years of intercollegiate baseball competition the Northmen have won just 32 games while losing 70. A year ago they were 1-11.

The 1980 Minnesota junior college athletic association (MJCAA) season starts Saturday for the Northmen who will play a doubleheader at Brainerd, the perennial Northwest Division power. It'll give the Northmen a quick indication what kind of fortune awaits them this spring.

Northland has never opened the year with an MJCAA doubleheader sweep. Last spring Brainerd swept the Northmen 5-1, 12-2 in a season-opening twinbill.

Baseball began at Northland in 1973 when the Northmen opened with a 7-1 defeat at the hands of Crookston, put together a seven-game winning streak and finished 9-6. As it turned out, that's the best season the Northmen have ever had.

Only other winning baseball season for the Northmen came the following spring when Northland began the 1974 season with a doubleheader split against Crookston, winning 3-0 but losing 15-2 and finished 6-5. But a rainy spring allowed the Northmen to play just 11 of 24 scheduled games that year.

In 1975 Northland opened with a split against Brainerd, losing 2-1 but winning 8-7 in nine innings and finished 5-11; in 1976 Northland lost a doubleheader opener to Brainerd 9-4, 7-6 and finished 2-18; in 1977 Northland began MJCAA play with a doubleheader loss to Fergus Falls 3-2, 13-2 and finished 4-10; and in 1978 Northland opened with a split against Crookston, winning 6-3 but losing 24-5 and finishing 5-9.

Michalek Unbeaten at UND

Freshman Bill Michalek of Thief River Falls is off to a strong start as a member of the University of North Dakota tennis team. The only senior on last year's Section 8 chapmion Lincoln high school tennis squad, Michalek is 16-0 right now for the Sioux.

Michalek is 8-0 at No. 5 singles and is also 8-0 at No. 3 doubles for the Sioux where he is paired with junior Terry Wynne, brother of UND coach Tom Wynne.

North Dakota has opened its 1980 season with a perfect 8-0 dual meet record.

"We are very pleased with our performances so far," said Tom Wynne. "The guys are really pulling together. This has to be the best start ever for a Sioux men's tennis team. Last season the Gustavus Adolphus B team beat us 8-1 and this past Saturday we turned it around and defeated them 8-1."

Miscellaneous

+ Moorhead, figured to be one of the top baseball teams in Region 8AA this spring, opened its 1980 season with a 10-0 rout of Fergus Falls behind the combined no-hit pitching of Wayne Schultz and John Hajostek. Moorhead will be in Thief River Falls Mon., April 28, with the Prowlers returning to Moorhead for a four-team invitational tournament Sat., May 3. First round pairings that day will have Moorhead playing Minot and Thief River Falls vs. Grand Rapids, the 1978 Class AA state champion and winner of three straight Section 7 titles.

+ Newly appointed University of Minnesota hockey coach Brad Buetow, who was acting coach for the Gophers last season, said, "I personally believe we were able to sign the top four players in Minnesota," after signing defenseman Ben Belde of St. Paul Hill-Murray, defenseman Mark Huglen of Roseau, goalie John Colombo of Bloomington Jefferson and left wing Tom Rothstein of Grand Rapids to national letters of intent. "Each of these youngsters has all the credentials needed to excell in college hockey. I can't wait to see them in a Gopher uniform."

+ Lonnie Meade, who played his senior season of high school basketball at Fergus Falls after transferring from Iowa, signed a letter of intent to play basketball at Northern Iowa next season. Meade, injured and out of the line-up when Thief River Falls beat Fergus Falls 58-57 in three overtimes this past winter, was an All-Northwest Athletic Conference selection.

THIEF RIVER FALLS senior Mark Collins stretched to reach a shot at the net Monday while playing No. 1 doubles for the Prowlers in their 1980 tennis home opener against Bemidji on the Northland community college courts. Collins and Dale Nelson dropped a 6-4, 6-4 decision to Terry Kraft and John Gits, but the Prowlers won the rest of the matches to beat the Lumberjacks 4-1.

Prowlers Sweep Third Triangular

Living up to its No. 1 ranking in the state Class AA high school tennis polls, Thief River Falls thoroughly dominated both Monticello, and Little Falls Tuesday in a triangular meet hosted by the Flyers.

Thief River Falls won it with a perfect 10 points, followed by Monticello with 3 and Little Falls 2.

The Prowlers won everything in straight sets, and Mitch Rustad did not lose a single game at second singles in beating Bob Boedisheimen of Monticello and Steve David of Little Falls 6-0, 6-0.

At No. 2 doubles, Thief River Falls' Mark Collins and Dale Nelson lost just one game in beating Charlie Waters and John Kendall of Monticello 6-1, 6-0 and blanking Scott Burnisen and Pat Brug of Little Falls 6-0, 6-0.

"Our kids played well," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson.

Monticello was ranked among the top 15 Class A teams in the state, but the Redmen managed to win just five games against the Prowlers who were still without the services of senior Tom Bjorkman, perhaps the team's best doubles player, who was out of the line-up with a back problem. Nelson, a sophomore, played in his place.

It was Thief River Falls' third tiangular victory of the year, to go along with a pair of dual meet decisions.

The Prowlers will be involved in another triangular at Moorhead Tuesday against the Spuds and Fergus Falls, beginning at 2 p.m.

A testing weekend schedule awaits the Prowlers Friday and Saturday, April 25 and 26, when they'll compete in a pair of back-to-back eight-team tournaments — at Stillwater Friday and Hibbing Saturday.

CONSIDERED ONE of the premiere tennis players in the state, Lincoln high school senior Bill Jury showed his skills Monday in beating Bemidji's Matt Stone 6-1, 6-0 at No 1 singles as the Prowlers beat the Lumberjacks 4-1 in their 1980 home opener.

Lincoln Girls Run In Crookston Meet

Sophomore Lori Swanson was an impressive winner in the 1600-meter (mile) run Monday as the Lincoln high school girls track team opened its 1980 season by participating in Crookston Knights of Columbus Invitational in the Winter Shows building.

But Swanson's 6:09, which was 21 seconds faster than she ran last year, was "our only bright spot," according to Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer who watched the Prowlers finish last in the five-team field.

–Bemidji won the team title with 61 points, followed by Moorhead 59, Crookston 39, East Grand Forks 34 and Thief River Falls 12.

"I thought we would score more points than we did," admitted Schafer, "but I'm not really too disappointed. Our times weren't that far from placing."

Schafer most happy with Swanson's run. "She just blew everybody out. Nobody was even close to her," he explained.

Rest of the Thief River Falls place finishes included fourths by Stacy Ehrenstrom, 31-8 in the shot put, and Patti Blackstad, 8.5 in the 60-meter dash; and fifths by Karla Nelson, 30.0 in the 200-meter run, and Blackstad, 10.5 in the 60-meter hurdles.

Thief River Falls will be at Bagley for a 3:30 p.m. meet Friday.

Gutterud, Ulrich To Pitch For Prowlers

Seniors Kelly Gutterud and Jeff Ulrich are scheduled to be the starting pitchers this week as the Lincoln high school baseball team opens its 1980 season with 4:30 p.m. games Thursday at Red Lake Falls and Friday at home against Bagley.

Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell said Gutterud would face the Eagles in the opener, with Ulrich starting on the mound against the Flyers Friday on the Thief River Falls fairgrounds diamond.

Rest of the Thief River Falls line-up will probably find senior Jim Nyland catching; seniors Mark Schmitke and Wayne Huseth sharing first base duties; senior Tom Drury or junior Jeff Mongoven at second base when Gutterud pitches, with Gutterud taking over when he comes off the mound; Ulrich at shortstop until he pitches when senior Dave Odegaard will step in; and either Odegaard of sophomore Mark Harder at third base.

Senior Paul Drees will be in the outfield, and will probably be joined by the likes of Drury or Odegaard if they're not playing in the infield.

Lincoln Tops Bemidji 4-1

A regular season dual meet winning streak that stretches back to 1976 reached 29 matches Monday for the Lincoln high school tennis team as the Prowlers defeated Bemidji 4-1 in their 1980 home opener.

It was just the second dual meet outing of the spring for the Prowlers whose schedule is dominated by multiple team events — Like a Tuesday triangular at Moorhead against the Spuds and Fergus Falls that will be Thief River Falls' next start.

Thief River Falls, in fact, has just four dual meets scheduled among 14 playing dates this year — home and home matches against Crookston and Bemidji. The Prowlers opened the season with a 5-0 conquest of Crookston.

Bill Jury, Mitch Rustad and Paul Koppang dominated Monday's singles matches with straight-set victories, with Bill Holmes and Mark Lundin duplicating the feat at second doubles.

Bemidji's lone point came at first doubles where Terry Kraft and John Gits knocked off Thief River Falls' Mark Collins and Dale Nelson 6-4, 6-4.

Northwomen Open Season

A 19-6, 10-9 doubleheader loss to Rainy River Friday opened the 1980 season for the Northland community college softball team. And despite the double setback, Northland coach Deb Jacobson wasn't disappointed.

"I was really pleased," said Jacobson. "They were a little nervous and inexperienced is all. Rainy River has a very, very good pitcher (Tammy Holler, who struck out 10 batters in the opener) and our girls haven't seen anything like that."

"With a little experience," mentioned Jacobson, "I think we'll be all right."

Northland's 1980 ball club includes five members of last year's team: Marilyn Anderson, Fosston; Chris Charlebois, Minot, N.D.; Cheryl Larson, Newfolden; Arlene Knutson, Newfolden; and Jane Daniels, Fosston; along with nine newcomers: Karla Reed, TRF; Angie Sinn, TRF; Julie Odegaard, TRF; Pam Kotschevar, TRF; Jean Stukel, Warroad; Melaine Skjerven, Plummer; Joy Kaushagen, TRF; Denise Stokke, Newfolden; and Sandy Nelson, Oklee.

Reed is the team's No. 1 pitcher. "She's a very consistent pitcher. She's going to do a good job for us this year," said Jacobson, "but we still don't have any speed at pitching yet."

Northland will be in Austin to play in an eight-team invitational tournament Saturday, meeting the host ball club in a 9 a.m. opener.

State Timber Harvest Hits $3 Million

Department of Natural Resources reported recently that $3,206,000 was received from the sale of trees harvested from state lands during fiscal year 1979.

A total of 465,000 cords were harvested during the year including fuelwood, trees cut for pulpwood to make paper products and timber cut for lumber, posts, pilings and other purposes.

Figures released by the DNR's forestry division show the demand for wood to be used as fuel is increasing sharply. During the entire fiscal year 1979, the division issued 5,600 permits to cut fuel wood, but during the first six months of fiscal year 1980 (which began July 1, 1979) the division had already issued 5,500 such permits.

A breakdown of the 1979 timber harvest from state lands showed that 40,000 cords were harvested for fuelwood; 375,000 for pulpwood and posts; and 50,000 for sawtimber and pilings.

Receipts from the sale of state timber are deposited in the state treasury, most of it placed in trust funds and used to help finance the cost of the state's public school system.

April Is Best Month To Build Your Birdhouse

April is the time to build and place houses to accomodate migrating birds as they return for the nesting season, the Department of Natural Resources advised.

"Providing houses for birds is a popular hobby for Minnesotans who enjoy having wildlife around their homes," according to Carrol Henderson, DNR non-game wildlife specialist.

He said that house wrens, mourning doves, robins and purple martins are among the birds which can be encouraged to nest around homes if the proper nesting structures are provided.

The DNR has published a pamphlet "Birdhouses in Minnesota", which gives the blueprints and placement instructions for nine different houses that can be used by at least 14 species of native birds.

These include the wood duck, purple martin, house wren, robin and others.

Written by Henderson, the pamphlet is another product of a three-year-old non-game wildlife program which is designed to promote conservation of non-game wildlife species.

Single copies of the pamphlet are available without charge from the Section of Wildlife, Minnesota Department of Natural Resources, Box 7, Centennial Building, 658 Cedar Street, St. Paul, MN 55155.

Youth Firearms Safety Course Is Scheduled To Start Tuesday

A reminder from program coordinator Irving Swanson that a youth firearms safety course will being Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the basement meeting room of the Pennington county Law Enforcement Center.

The four two-hour sessions will be held Tues., April 22; Wed., April 23; Thurs., April 24; and Mon., April 28. A field trip Sat., May 3, will complete the course.

Swanson points out that a Minnesota firearms safety certificate is required of all youths between the ages of 12-15 who intend to hunt. The state will not issue a certificate to anyone below the age of 12, so the youth firearms safety course is restricted to those who will have reached the age of 12 before June 1, 1980.

Next scheduled youth firearms safety course here will be presented in early September.

DNR Issues Fire Warning

Department of Natural Resources is reminding everyone that a permit is required for open burning in Minnesota.

The snow cover is nearly gone, said forestry officials. The period between snow melt and green-up — when exposed grass is dead and in a flammable condition — is the time when most wildfires occur in Minnesota.

Records show most wildfires in the spring result from burning of debris around homes and farmsteads.

Fire protection agencies are urging everyone in counties where open burning is legal to take the following steps if they plan to do any type of open burning:

+ Obtain a burning permit. These may be obtained free of charge from your local DNR forest officer or Township fire warden. This permit to burn vegetative material is necessary to comply with the state of Minnesota fire prevention and air quality laws.

+ Have help available. Don't attempt to carry out a burning project alone. Gusty, shifting winds can cause the fire to spread and result in a wildfire. This can happen very suddenly and may be impossible for one person to control.

+ Have the proper tools available. Rakes, shovels and water are necessary tools to keep the fire under control. If a tractor and plow are available, a plowed fire break will provide additional protection to keep the fire from spreading.

+ Don't burn near buildings. When burning piled debris be sure to locate the piles away from grass fuels that could allow the fire to spread to nearby buildings.

+ Watch the weather. The best time of day to burn is usually in the evening when the wind decreases and the relative humidity increases. This reduces the chances of a fire escaping and burning out of control.

+ Stay with the fire. Don't leave the fire until it is out. Sudden changes in the weather such as increasing or gusty winds could blow burning embers.

In Memory Of

In memory of Stuart Stark who passed away April 19, 1979 at age 21.

The years may pass, the seasons change,
And age shall creep on all,
But one thing never changes;
It's our ability to recall.
To recall you from our memories,
And smile about the past,
And to know you'll always live with us,
Because memories forever last.

Census Nearing Completion In This Area

Carole Wilson, manager of the area's 1980 census office in Bemidji, reports that the census is nearing completion here, and in another week the census takers should be able to enumerate the remaining households on their lists.

Census takers, with their large portfolios and their red, white and blue official identification badges, have become familiar sights in neighborhoods as they made their rounds. March 31 they began calling at homes to pick up the filled-out questionnaires distributed March 28 by the postal service.

At some households census takers ask additional questions about each person and about the house. In places of more than 2,500 population one household in six is in this sample. In places of less than 2,500 population it is one household in every two.

Wilson asks householders to welcome these census takers when they call and to give them full cooperation in supplying the required census information. The census taker has sworn to an oath to keep confidential all census information given. Any census employee who breaks this oath faces a fine or imprisonment or both, but the bureau's record on this is spotless, Wilson said.

Gerald Wigness Is Certified Municipal Clerk

International Institute of municipal clerks announces that Gerald A. Wigness, city clerk-treasurer of Thief River Falls, has been awarded the designation of "certified municipal clerk" for achieving the educational, experience and service requirements established by this institute for attainment of this honor.

Wigness assumed his present position in 1972, and previously he was involved in the teaching profession and served on the city council of Thief River Falls from 1967 to 1972.

He also completed the three-year education program for professional clerks held at the University of Minnesota. This program involves over 100 student-instructor contact hours of in-depth courses in public administration, social and interpersonal concerns and functionally-related subjects. It is designed to provide perspective, information and practical skills for greater understanding of those changes taking place in each community.

Wigness graduated from Crosby high school and received his B.S. degree in education from the University of North Dakota. He served in the U.S. army from 1957-59 and was discharged as First Lieutenant in the infantry.

He is a past president of the municipal clerks and finance officers association and served as a member of the executive board of the League of Minnesota Cities. Wigness is also a member of the International Institute of Municipal Clerks.

Active in community affairs, Wigness is a member of the Rotary club, chamber of commerce, Trinity Lutheran church choir and a former member of the national guard citizens committee. He and his wife, Marilyn, have three children.

Wigness joins 15 other Minnesota Municipal clerks who presently have the designation of certified municipal clerk (CMC).

Unique certification program of the IIMC was launched in 1970, climaxing 10 years of planning. The program aids municipal clerks in improving their job performance and recognizes the professionalization of the municipal clerk's office. Completion of a recognized career development institute or a baccalaureate degree, responsible experience in local government and participation in conferences, meetings and education seminars contribute to achieving the certified municipal clerk designation. Qualifications of applicants are reviewed and approved by the IIMC board of certification.

VANDALISM at the control structure at the east end of the Elm Lake wildlife management area made extra work for employees of the Minnesota department of natural resources late last week. A pole and rocks were jammed into the flap gates on two large culverts which allow water to flow into the impound-from Ditch 200 during high water and then close to retain the water when the Ditch 200 level drops. Had the damage not been discovered, water would have been released from the impoundment so that only a small amount on the west of the pool would have remained. Personnel from the DNR at Thief Lake removed the debris and closed the gates with little water loss. Anyone with information on people or vehicles in the area last Thursday who may have been involved in the vandalism is asked to contact the Thief Lake headquarters of DNR. The photo above is taken toward the southeast. The culverts are submerged near the center of the photo.

Mackenroth Is Second In Dist. Competition

Approximately 50 area women attended the district competition for the 1980 Young Career Woman in Walker April 12 when Nancy Koering of Crookston was named winner of the contest.

Runner-up was Jane Mackenroth, who was named 1980 Young Career Woman of the Thief River Falls chapter of the Business and Professional Women's (BPW) club March 17.

Competition was conducted in the Scouts 200 Lodge in Walker. Those attending from this area were Vicky Erickson, president of the local BPW chapter, who was selected vice chairman for District 1 at the meeting; Gelene Peltier, who was selected woman of the year last October at the regular BPW meeting in Thief River Falls; and Amy Schroeder, Thief River Falls BPW member.

All contestants who had previously placed in the competition at the local level were judged on the district level on group interaction with other contestants, a four-to-five minute speech presentation, and a personal interview with the judges.

A salad luncheon was served to those attending, and entertainment provided was Far East dancing, presented by a dance instructor from Walker.

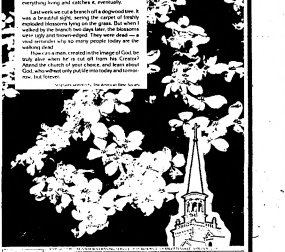
ARE YOU ALIVE?



There is an "oughtness" about life that troubles the honest man. He senses he ought to be happier than he is, better than he is, wiser, more alive. He ought to be thinner, nicer, more peaceful, more controlled. And he even has occasional, late-at-night presentiments that he ought to consider his definable limits. It has been said that death stalks everything living and catches it, eventually.

Last week we cut a branch off a dogwood tree. It was a beautiful sight, seeing the carpet of freshly exploded blossoms lying on the grass. But when I walked by the branch two days later, the blossoms were ugly and brown-edged. They were dead — a vivid reminder why so many people today are the walking dead.

How can a man, created in the image of God, be truly alive when he is cut off from his Creator? Attend the church of your choice, and learn about God, who will not only put life into today and tomorrow, but forever.

Insuring Your Health

Will your health insurance pay for the services of a physical therapist?

If you or a member of your family ever suffers from a disabling illness or injury, or merely experiences pain in joints and muscles, the services of a physical therapist may be required.

While it's reasonable to assume that certain aspects of medical care are included in your health insurance, do you know whether it also includes coverage for the services of a physical therapist? It should.

Each day, professionally trained physical therapists — there are more than 32,000 in the U.S. — work with over 150,000 people in their efforts to overcome pain and physical disability. Because physical therapy is often a long-term program down the road to recovery and rehabilitation, the lack of this kind of coverage could prove extremely expensive.

The American Physical Therapy Assn. urges that you read the fine print in your health insurance contract to make sure you're covered for this type of care. It's also important to know in advance exactly what the extent of that coverage is and what services are included.

Treatment by a trained physical therapist provides more than just the restoration of your health. The results of this treatment also help to rebuild your self-confidence and bolster your desire to return to a normal, active, productive life.

You don't have to cripple your wallet to heal your body.

YOUR GARDEN

GET GROWING EARLY!

If you want your garden to spring into early bloom and continue to thrive, it's important to protect your plantings properly from the unstable weather typical of this time of year.

It's possible with an Instant Greenhouse, a wire reinforced plastic that traps desirable humidity and warmth to spur germination of seeds and growth of plants while protecting them from late frosts.

You can make miniature greenhouses in moments by putting the reinforced plastic over flower and vegetable seedlings. All you do is cut the plastic from the roll into the desired size, bend it into the shape of a tent, place it over the seed beds or seedlings, and stake it down with garden stakes or even wire coat hangers. The ends of your garden tent can be pinched together or screened to keep humidity in and garden pests out.

Before installing the plastic wrap, loosen the earth around the plants so that the wrap can be sunk to a depth of an inch or two. This will discourage cutworms from dining on your efforts.

If you pinched the sides of your Instant Greenhouse together, be sure to open the ends on days of strong sun to avoid overheating.

The plastic shelters act as incubators for seed beds, keeping soil temperatures constant. This speeds the growth of cucumber, melon, squash, pepper, and tomato seeds. The same wire-laminated plastic sheeting also can be used in the fall to extend your garden's productivity during cooler weather.

Instant Greenhouse is available from Gilbert & Bennett at garden centers and hardware stores in 25 foot long rolls, 36 inches wide, weighing less than four pounds, which can be easily cut with kitchen shears and bent to any shape desired.

Want a great looking garden? With this kind of canopy on your plants, it could be "in the bag."

FACTUAL NEWS REPORTING EFFECTIVE ADVERTISING

Justly Unjust

Following editorial is from the Murray County Herald at Slayton:

At the time of this writing, we have no way of knowing how Gov. Al Quie's pet constitutional amendments fared in the waning hours of the 1980 legislative session, but we suspect not too well. He may end up with a watered down initiative and referendum amendment, but probably little more of any significance.

Loss of one amendment in particular, however, ruffles our feathers a bit. A proposed amendment which was supported by Quie and which would have put a limit on state spending was killed by the house rules committee. We feel justified in labeling this action unjust.

The vote was one-sided, with several Republicans joining the DFL'ers in opposition to submitting the proposal to the voters. Thus it can't be labeled a party action.

What bothers us about it most of all is the fact that the legislature doesn't hesitate to impose spending limits on other political subdivisions — the schools, cities and counties — by imposition of tax increase limits. The rationale, of course, is that they can't spend more if they can't tax more. But when it comes to the possibility of having the same curbs placed on their own activities it becomes a horse of a different color. They, the lawmakers, are apparently confident of their own ability to tax and spend judiciously and wisely but they don't have the same confidence in the ability of the commissioners, city councils and boards of education. Hogwash!

Perhaps this isn't the judicious time to bring it up, but if initiative and referendum materializes in Minnesota, perhaps the first action of the people through their new-found powers should be the imposition of spending limits on the state legislature as long as the lawmakers seem reluctant to assume the responsibility of such action themselves.

First Amendment For Everyone

A national essay contest on "What the First Amendment Means to Me" was sponsored by Newspaper Association Managers, Inc., and the Ohio Newpaper Foundation. Barbara Fitz Vroman, a freelance writer and mother of four children, lives on a farm near Hancock, Wisc. Her prize-winning essay follows:

Freedom is messy.

Any woman who has watched her baby pour orange juice in his hair and mash peas on his highchair tray can tell you how messy it is to allow the child to learn to eat on his own.

Any totalitarian dictator will tell you how much easier it is to get rid of drug addicts, prostitutes and enemies of the state in a country where there are no First Amendment-type guarantees. In a totalitarian state, things can be done quickly and with order. You would never have to put up with Nazis marching through Skokie.

Freedom is dangerous.

Many parents feel a certain sinking of the heart the first time they hand over the car keys to their 16-year-old. He or she can get killed in that traffic jungle out there.

Totalitarian dictators understand well how dangerous freedom can be. Free ideas can threaten the plans of the state, so the press must be controlled. Free assemblage must be curtailed for the same reason. Travel must be restricted, for citizens might try to escape the rigors imposed by the other curtailments or might bring back undesirable ideas.

Freedom is demanding.

The "now" woman wants the dignity and benefits of equality. She finds she cannot have freedom without giving up dependency and a measure of safety. Freedom demands risk and the assumption of responsibility.

The totalitarian ruler knows how demanding freedom is. That is his trump card. He promises order, security and release from the uncertainty and terror of freedom. The masses are promised an even slice of the communal pie whether their effort is slack or diligent. (Never mind that the diligent soon become so discouraged they too become slack, and the communal pie has to be sliced in thin slices.)

What does the First Amendment mean to me?

It means that I have the freedom from being forced to fit into someone else's preconceived plan of what I should do or be. It means that I have the freedom to explore my own avenues and enticements. The First Amendment gives me the freedom to enjoy the success of my efforts. It allows me the responsibility, as well, of facing my failures so that I may learn and grow from them. The First Amendment protects ideas, and everything in the world — from the bottons on my blouse to Social Security — begins as an idea in somebody's head.

When you hamper a man's ideas, or the expression of those ideas, you hamper his soul, the very essence of his being. By guaranteeing the free exchange of ideas, the First Amendment ensures that I will live in a society fermenting with change and innovation.

The First Amendment is my guarantee of messy, demanding, dangerous, exhilerating, creative, productive freedom. And, as any parent can tell you, freedom is the only route to full development of human capacity.

How Things Change!

When we attended the senior federation session to take a couple of photos on Thursday, it struck us that most of those in attendance didn't look like "old folks" any more. It brings to mind this item which we clipped from an area paper:

"Everything is farther away than it used to be. It is twice as far to the corner, and they have added a hill, I've noticed. I have given up running for the bus; it leaves faster than it used to. It seems to me they are making steps steeper than they used to in the old days, and have you noticed the small print they have started to use in the newspaper?

"There is no sense asking anyone to read aloud because everyone speaks in such a low voice. The material in dresses is getting so skimp, especially around the waist and hips and vests aren't made to button any more.

"Even people are changing. They are so much younger than they used to be when I was their age. On the other hand, people my age are so much older than I am. I ran into an old friend the other day and she had aged so much she didn't even recognize me.

"In fact, I got to thinking about the poor thing while I was combing my hair this morning, and in doing so I glanced at my reflection in the mirror. And confound it, you know they don't make good mirrors like they used to either!"

Don't Fall For This One

Following editorial is from the Wadena Pioneer-Journal:

It's time to gear up your skepticism in preparation for the inevitable barrage of political rhetoric to come with the November general election. The next time you hear a politician promising to lift the tax burden on middle-income people, remember it probably can't be done.

The only way to take some of the burden off people making between $10,000 and $50,000 annually would be to shift the tax load. And that's the rub. You can't ask low income people to pay more. They have trouble paying their taxes now. And there just aren't enought rich people to shift the burden to upper-income Americans.

A recent study showed that if you taxed every dollar of personal income over $32,000 at 100 per cent, you could raise only enough to cover about $12 billion. That wouldn't go far in a budget of a half-trillion dollars.

Some 47 per cent of working Americans are in the middle-income group ($10,000 to $50,000 annually). These people pay 68 per cent of the taxes. Only 2½ per cent of the working people report incomes over $50,000 and these people already pay 23 per cent of the taxes. Half of all working Americans make less than $10,000 a year. And this group contributes only about 10 per cent of federal tax revenue.

Some tax reform might be in order, but you can't reform taxes simply by reshuffling the tax distribution. That would only give a false impression.

The only way to really offer tax relief to middle-income people is through decreased government spending at federal, state and local levels.

Borrowed Nonsense:

Visiting her child's school, the mother arrived while the class was on the playground. Two of the youngsters were pushing, shoving and screaming while jumping up and down on the see-saw.

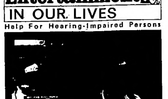
"Aren't they something?" the mother exclaimed.

"Yes," said the teacher "I wish I had a dozen like them." Then she added as she turned away, "... instead of thirty!"

"If this was the first time you got drunk I could forgive you," sobbed the wife to her inebriated spouse. "But you did it back in 1954, too!"

Entertainment IN OUR LIVES

Help For Hearing-Impaired Persons



The screen at left shows how the "closed caption" system will appear on the TV set, while the screen at right is the same program, minus the caption. The National Captioning Institute is captioning prime-time programs for ABC, NBC and PBS.

Television—which most Americans have taken for granted for years will soon open its doors to the nation's hearing-impaired population.

Because of a new system called "closed captioning," people with hearing impairments will be able to "hear" the audio portion of a TV program through subtitles (captions) of the sound-track which appear on the screen.

The National Captioning Institute (NCI) is pioneering the effort to make prime-time television accessible to hearing-impaired people. NCI is the nonprofit organization charged with captioning programs for interested broadcasters and producers.

Viewers will need special decoding equipment on their home TV sets in order to receive the captions. An adapter unit that attaches to the back of any TV set, or a TV with already built-in decoding equipment, can be purchased from Sears, Roebuck and Co. beginning in 1980. These units will decode a hidden caption signal and transform it into visible captions.

About 20 hours of captioned prime-time programs will be televised each week by ABC, NBC and PBS.

Peaches 'N Cream Pudding Cake

Just try to say "peaches and cream" without your mouth watering! Satisfy that craving with this quick and easy dessert that combines those two compatible foods in a moist pudding and cake combination.

Peaches and canned pudding create a saucy base topped with cake. For an even creamier version of this dessert, cream cheese can be blended with the canned pudding.

PEACHES 'N CREAM PUDDING CAKE

1 can (17 1/2 oz.) Thank You Brand Vanilla Pudding
1 can (16 oz.) peach slices
1 package (9 oz.) single layer yellow cake mix

Drain peaches, reserving juice. Arrange peaches in oiled 9x9-inch (or 7x11-inch) baking dish. Peaches may be cut into thinner slices if necessary. Spread pudding over peaches. Prepare cake batter according to package directions, substituting peach juice for water. Spread batter over pudding and peaches. Bake at 350°F. (325°F. if using glass pan) for 45-55 minutes or until cake tests done. Serve warm. Makes 7-8 servings.

Peaches 'n Cream Pudding Cheesecake: Combine 3 oz. package softened cream cheese with pudding before spreading over peaches in above recipe.

The Active Consumer

PROTECT YOUR FAMILY AGAINST FIRE

Every year, more than $2 billion and thousands of lives are lost to fires in people's houses. Fortunately, you can help keep your home and family out of such statistics by being careful about what you do and what you buy.

For one thing, smoke detectors can be vital, giving you the warning you need to get out if a fire starts. Install them and maintain them.

Be careful with matches and cigarettes. Be sure to put them out in non-combustible ash trays, keep matches in metal containers away from heat and children and warn everyone in the family against smoking in bed or when drinking or drowsy.

Be sure your furniture is as safe as possible. The furniture industry has voluntarily spent many years and hundreds of thousands of dollars researching for ways to construct upholstered furniture that would be more resistant to cigarette ignition. Look for a UFAC (Upholstered Furniture Action Council) hang tag when you buy upholstered furniture. It means that the furniture is built to be more resistant to smouldering cigarettes and safer (not absolutely safe) than untagged furniture.

Keep an eye on your electric appliances. Avoid running electric cords under rugs or over nails and hooks, keep lamps and appliance cords in good condition and limit the number of lights and appliances on each circuit. Use only 15-ampere fuses on lighting circuits.

The proper care and the proper furniture can help keep your house safer from fire.

Keep any flammable liquids which are necessary in closed containers and use with proper ventilation. If you use an oil lamp, keep it in a metal container and in a well ventilated place where it will not catch fire by spontaneous ignition.

Keep your basement, storerooms and attic free from rubbish, oil rags and old papers and keep any smoldering ashes in hole-free metal containers.

Keep these hints in mind and you may be able to keep those home fires from burning at your house.

Health Warning: Beware Of Sunlamps

It's the time of year when many are eager to get a head start on that summer tan — under sunlamps, at home or in those fashionable new "tanning huts" around the country.

Serious damage to your eyes can result from even relatively short exposure to sunlamps without adequate protection, according to the American Association of Ophthalmology (AAO) — medical eye physicians.

"Your eyes are quite vulnerable to the concentrated ultraviolet radiation from sunlamps," says Leonard Flom, M.D., an ophthalmologist. "Looking directly at a sunlamp, even for a few seconds, can result in a painful condition known as photokeratitis. Usually temporary, this causes the eye to burn and feel sandy or gritty under the lids. Medical treatment is required.

A longer direct exposure can actually scar the cornea of the eye and could permanently impair vision.

Burned eyes are a serious problem that is avoidable through simple precautions.

The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently reported more than 8,000 persons were treated in hospital emergency rooms alone in 1979 from sunlamp related injuries — most of them skin burns and eye irritations. FDA has established a new safety requirement for sunlamps — in homes or in tanning huts, health clubs and spas — which mandates protective goggles, among other provisions.

It's a bright idea to properly protect your eyes from sunlamp rays.

"Only these goggles can properly shield the eyes from severe burns, even vision damage," says Dr. Flom. "Sunglasses can not handle such concentrated ultraviolet radiation and, certainly, cotton balls will not do the job.

"Be sure cosmetics are removed before the next session under the sunlamp. Some contain oil which can cause special sensitivity to the radiation.

"Some medications also can increase such sensitivity, so don't hesitate to check with your physician before using a sunlamp if you are taking medication or believe you are particularly sensitive to ultraviolet."

Most experts consider one minute in a tanning hut equal to upwards of an hour in outside sunlight. So use a sunlamp which comes with clear instructions recommending distance and exposure times.

Use sunglasses when tanning outdoors. Here they are effective, particularly to protect that sensitive skin on eyelids and around the eyes.

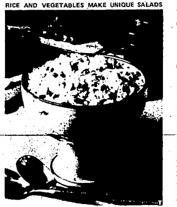
INFLATION-FIGHTING FOOD IDEAS

RICE AND VEGETABLES MAKE UNIQUE SALADS



Serve a buffet meal to set the stage for the Spring season. The children will be happy to have hot dogs or cold cuts and you can turn these favorites into a balanced meal by serving them with a hearty rice salad.

Cook up a large pot of rice at one time to make enough rice for several meals because, covered and refrigerated, cooked rice keeps its quality and flavor for six or seven days.

Rice's delicate flavor blends well with many foods — leftovers, vegetables, cheese or meats, such as chicken or roast. And a rice salad goes well with the main course whether hot or cold. Since rice does not have a distinct flavor, it is perfect for mixing with a wide variety of differing tastes and textures.

If you haven't tried rice in a salad you'll be in for a special treat . . .

RICE-VEGETABLE SALAD

3 cups cool cooked rice
1-1/2 cups sliced celery
1 package (10 oz.) frozen green peas, cooked and drained
1/4 cup minced onion
1/2 cup diced pimientos
1 cup cubed American process cheese (1/4-inch cubes)
1 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 teaspoon each salt and seasoned pepper

Combine all ingredients and toss lightly. Chill. Serve in lettuce cups and garnish with sliced, hard-cooked eggs and tomato wedges, if desired. Makes 6 servings.

VERTEC Dries Like No Other
DUCTS vs SCREENS

The Vertec System is the first major innovation in grain drying since the invention of the mechanical process. The most important difference between a Vertec dryer and the others is what happens to the grain inside the machine. Vertec has eliminated the screens or drying front that causes uneven drying in all other units. When the drying front exists, the grain closest to the heat source gets too dry, the grain furthest from the heat source doesn't get dry enough. The Vertec duct system eliminates the drying front. The grain is kept constantly in motion and the hot air is circulated evenly throughout the moving grain. The result — every kernel gets the same amount of air and heat.

VERTEC Versatility

Vertec can dry all types of grain. Since there are no screens to clog, your Vertec dryer can be used to dry all corn, peas, soybeans, beans, grass seeds, alfalfa, flax, rice, rapeseed and sunflowers. Air ducts are designed for trouble free operation and can't leak plug or hold seeds.

LOCAL FIREMEN battled a stubborn fire early Friday morning at a house owned by Jerry Wetch and rented by Mr. and Mrs. John Green and family at 503 Dewey av. N. Fire call was received at 12:25 a.m. after an oil furnace exploded and the family, which includes two small children, escaped from the smoke-filled house. The fire burned a hole in the ceiling of the first floor (see bottom photo) and caused extensive smoke damage throughout. According to the local fire department, Wetch is repairing the house for future use. The fire was the first of six calls received by the department in two days, with five calls being made on Saturday.

6 Fire Calls Keep Department Busy

Six fire calls in two days kept the Thief River Falls fire department active on Friday and Saturday, despite a burning ban imposed by the state on Friday.

At 12:25 a.m. Friday a furnace exploded at a house at 503 Dewey av. N., causing Mr. and Mrs. John Green and their two children to flee the smoke-filled home. The house was extensively damaged but is being repaired by the owner, Jerry Wetch.

At 2:05 p.m. Saturday the department was called to 312 Riverside avenue where a grass fire threatened property. It was extinguished without damage.

At 2:25 p.m. the department responded to a grass fire which burned about a quarter of a mile on the Howard Watkins farm north of the golf course bridge in North township. The fire was kept from spreading to buildings.

At 4:20 p.m. a fire in the Greenwood cemetery area had gotten out of control and the firemen responded to a call there, being assisted by volunteers in extinguishing the blaze.

At 7:07 p.m. a call was received from the area east of Southtown development in Rocksbury township where fire in a grass and wooded area had burned out of control.

Final call at 7:55 p.m. Saturday was to a house occupied by Jerry Olson and owned by Sonny Carlson about three miles northwest of Thief River Falls in Norden township. Extensive fire damage was done to the living room of the house and smoke damage to the rest of the home.

Fire chief Duane Noel reminds the public of the burning ban which has been imposed by the state because of the unusually hot and dry weather of this early spring.

Hydra-Mac Has 75% Of Crew Back At Work

Following a temporary shutdown of most of the plant last week, Hydra-Mac, Inc., of Thief River Falls has about 75 per cent of its crew back at work today, according to Douglass Steiger, president of the company.

Steiger said that executives of the firm had been optimistic following a highly successful dealer meeting held in Thief River Falls this winter. Many orders were placed for models of the skid-steer loaders produced by the company. But the down-turn in the economy, coupled with high interest rates, has made it impossible for many dealers to get the money necessary to complete purchase of the machines they ordered.

Steiger added that the inventory of completed machines near the Hydra-Mac plant is not as extensive as it may look to the average passerby. A large portion of the machines in stock were built for another company and have been paid for already.

And although the present lay-off involves some 20 to 25 per cent of the company's employees, Steiger could not speculate whether or not future lay-offs may be necessary.

Pennington county wheat growers will sell 274,420 bushels of wheat to the federal government for approximately $1,015,354, according to Phil Bergland, director of the Pennington county agricultural stabilization and conservation service (ASCS) office.

The sale represents 85 per cent of the offerings by county farmers under a three-day sales program announced by ASCS two weeks ago. Checks written for 80 per cent of the offered price of $3.70 per bushel ($2.96) will be in the mail to 61 producers tonight, Bergland said. There had been 81 producers offering 322,711 bushels of wheat for sale under the program with offers being accepted in order of sign-up.

Bergland noted that if wheat offered for sale is under loan to the commodity credit corporation, the loan will be paid and that amount deducted from the checks being paid. Some of the wheat sold has been under loan for several years at various loan rates. Rate for 1979 crop wheat is $2.57.

NOW To Present Farley Videotape On Harassment

Videotape presentation featuring Lin Farley, author of "Sexual Shakedown," a book published in 1978 on the sexual harrassment of women on the job, will be given Tuesday, April 22 at 7:30 p.m., at Northland Community college, Room C-20.

The tape is the keynote speech given by Lin Farley on March 5 at a conference sponsored by the University of North Dakota department of Journalism, Office of Women's programs, Law Women's caucus, and the North Dakota Humanities and public issues project grant. The speech was videotaped by the Journalism department and is brought to this community by the Agassiz chapter of the National Organization for Women, Inc.

Lin Farley worked as a news reporter for the Associated Press in New York in 1969. She began her research on the issue of sexual harassment while director of the women's section of the Human Affairs program at Cornell University in 1974. She presented the first public testimony on this issue to the New York City Human Rights Commission in 1975.

To gather information on the condition of today's working women, Farley traveled the country interviewing both male and female employers and employees. She found sexual blackmail, job insecurity, economic powerlessness, and fear — fear of retribution by the harasser, fear of job loss, and fear of social stigma. Public awareness to sexual harassment has now broaded to include actions at the judicial and legislative fronts. Victims seeking assistance may write to Working Women United Institute, 593 Park avenue, New York, NY 10021. Those requesting assistance are asked to enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The public is welcome to attend the videotape presentation.

Gov't. Protects Environmental Law Informers

U.S. labor department has formalized its procedures for protecting employees in private industry who "blow the whistle" on their employers for violating certain federal environmental laws.

The laws, which contain special employee protection provisions, are the safe drinking water act, water pollution control act, toxic substances control act, solid waste disposal act, clean air act and energy reorganization act.

These laws provide that no employer may discharge or discriminate against any employee with respect to pay, working conditions or job privileges because the employee blew the whistle. The protection extends to all employees of a firm, ranging from top scientists and engineers to welders, technicians and laborers.

Responsibility for handling the employee protection provisions has been placed with the secretary of labor.

Labor department procedures for the orderly processing of employee complaints under the six statutes, published January 8 in the Federal Register, include the following:

—An employee must file a complaint with the labor department's wage and hour division within 30 days of the alleged discriminatory action;

—A wage and hour division compliance officer will compete the investigation of the complaint within 30 days;

—If either party — within five days after notice of the investigation findings — requests a hearing before an administrative law judge, the judge must set a hearing date within seven days, and must issue a recommended decision within 20 days after the hearing;

The secretary of labor must issue a final order within 90 days of the initial receipt of the complaint.

Any person adversely affected by the final order is allowed 60 days after its issuance to petition the U.S. court of appeals for a review.

Copies of the "Procedures for the Handling of Discrimination Complaints Under Federal Employee Protection Statutes" may be obtained from the Office of Information and Consumer Affairs, Employment Standards Administration, Room C-4331, U.S. Department of Labor, Washington, D.C. 20210.

Clinic Set At Newfolden For Preschoolers

There will be a preschool screening clinic Wednesday, April 30 and Thursday, May 1 in the Newfolden elementary gym. This screening clinic is for those children in the Newfolden school district who will be entering kindergarten in the fall of 1981. This service is provided by the Newfolden school district at no cost to the parents.

Preschool screening is offered in accordance with recent state and federal laws. Clinics are conducted one year prior to kindergarten entry for the purpose of identifying and serving any preschool children with special needs. Participation in any portion of these services by parents is voluntary.

Preschool screening clinics have evolved from the vision-hearing kindergarten round-ups of the past to the comprehensive health and developmental screening of today. Present screening consists of a developmental screen (i.e. speech, general conceptual learning, and motor skills), vision-hearing screen, general health history review (which includes a dental, nutritional, and immunization review), urine and hemoglobin check as well as a physical inspection. All portions of the screening are performed by specially trained personnel whose training is approved by the Minnesota Department of Health and the Minnesota Department of Education. This program is not a substitute for a medical examination or ongoing health care.

The school district's screening program is designed to reach "healthy" children and find problems that can be corrected by early treatment. Parents are told at the time of the screening if a health or developmental problem is discovered and referral recommendations are made at this time.

If anyone has not received an appointment time and is interested in this service for their child, contact the Northwest R.I.C. office at 874-8215 and leave the child's name and birthdate as well as the parents' name, phone, and address.

MPSC Reduces Bell Telephone Rate Request

Minnesota public service commission today reduced Northwestern Bell Telephone company's rate request by $7,575,000. Bell had been seeking $28,382,000 in higher telephone rates and was granted $20,807,000.

A major element in the revenue increase allowed is the cost of capital, that is, the interest on the company's long-term debt, dividends on preferred stock and a return on the common equity.

"The Minnesota public service commission is legally required to allow investors a 'fair return' on their investment," Commissioner Katherine Sasseville stated. "The law says that investors are entitled to earn a return equal to that they would earn on an investment of comparable risk. Under that Constitutional standard the commission has allowed the company's shareholders to earn up to 12.98 per cent on their common equity investment in AT&T.

"Compared to the 11.56 per cent we allowed in the previous Bell case, and compared to historic interest rates of six or even eight per cent this is a very high rate of return for AT&T. However, regardless of the commissioners' personal feelings, the fact is that investors today can make safer and more lucrative investments, since even small investors can now earn 14 to 16 per cent on United States government securities, we think the allowed 12.98 per cent is an extremely conservative figure."

"Northwestern Bell testified that a return of 14 to 15 per cent was required, but the commission looked at the whole period for which these rates will be in effect, that is, July of 1979 through this year and hopefully next; and we believe the conservative approach we took is representative of this longer period for which we are setting rates."

Other significant commission decisions in this order include:

+ Removing expenses associated with moving telephone facilities at the site of the downtown Minneapolis stadium, and requiring those expenses to be assumed by the eventual tenants of the stadium;

+ Removing one-half of the company's charitable contributions, both direct cash contributions and "in-kind" contributions of employee time;

+ Eliminating the expense of advertising designed to enhance the image or reputation of NWB, and eliminating 25 per cent of advertising promoting the use of long-distance calling;

+ Giving ratepayers, rather than the company, the tax benefit of the refund made by Bell last year;

+ Ordering Bell to begin telling new customers about low-cost alternatives, and providing an item-by-item breakdown of services ordered by customers before installation; and

+ Directing Bell to submit a new method of screening customers to determine if advance payments will be required.

The commission has directed Bell to propose three methods for reducing rates by the $7.5 million ordered. One plan would reduce local rates; the other two would reduce the rates for long-distance calls between points in Minnesota less than 40 miles apart.

One plan will show the effect of lowering the rates for short-distance calls; the other will show the effect of creating a new service allowing unlimited short-distance calling for a flat monthly rate. "We hope to be able to reduce the bills of many Minnesotans who have to make expensive short-distance calls in 'the course of everyday business,'" Commissioner Sasseville explained.

Dear friends,

Authorities agree that children from say the age of seven should be encouraged to attend the funeral service of loved ones. The child needs to participate with the family in offering last respects to the deceased. To shut children out may deny them a meaningful life experience, however, no child should be forced to participate.

Respectfully,

Milk Producers Hold Eleventh Annual Meeting

Associated milk producers, Inc. recently completed its annual meeting in San Antonio, Texas, with some 2,600 midwestern and southwestern dairy farmers in attendance.

Delegates unanimously passed a resolution instructing the management of their dairy cooperative to "begin monitoring dairy import activities by the U.S. government in order to fight back against the government's passing the buck on the surplus milk production issue." AMPI members feel U.S. dairy farmers are being unfairly blamed for the surplus of manufactured dairy products being stored at the taxpayer's expense.

Ira Rutherford, AMPI general manager, told the delegates that there wouldn't be a dairy surplus without imports. Government purchased dairy products equivalent to 1.3 billion pounds of milk in 1979 and imports of dairy products were equivalent to 1.5 billion pounds of milk.

Elections were also held at this meeting. Iryin J. Elkin from Amery, Wisc., was reelected president of AMPI. Norman Barker, Pratt, Kan., was re-elected secretary and William Lenschow, Sycamore, Ill. was elected treasurer. Vice-presidents named were D.C. Jones of Los Lunas, N.W.; Harold Cobbs, Lodi, Wisc.; and Clifford Schumacher, Sleepy Eye.

Along with the corporate elections, each region held its regional elections. Clifford Schumacher from Sleepy Eye was elected president of the North Central region of AMPI. Re-elected vice president was Keith Squires of Brandt, S.D. Charles Schell, Minneiska, was elected secretary and Harold Jacobson, Sedan, was elected treasurer.

New Law Says Children Must Be Immunized

On April 7 Governor Al Quie signed legislation requiring that no child shall be allowed to enroll or remain enrolled in any school until the child has submitted a statement from the physician or public clinic stating that he-she has received immunization against red measles after having attained 12 months of age, German measles or rubella, dyphtheria, tetanus, pertussis, polio or mumps.

A child who has not been previously immunized must have proof of red measles, rubella and mumps immunization and that he or she has commenced immunizations for dyphtheria, tetanus, pertussis and polio. He or she then has 10 months to complete the schedule before being excluded from school.

Those with conscientiously held beliefs against immunization must present a notarized statement to this effect. This law becomes effective Aug. 1, 1980. Children not previously immunized should see their physician now to complete as much of the schedule as possible before school begins.

Wenstrom To Run Again For Congress Seat

Gene Wenstrom of Elbow Lake formally announced his candidacy for U.S. Congressman from the Seventh district today.

Wenstrom, 33, is a farmer and a former DFL state representative from Grant, Ottertail and Traverse counties. He was also a candidate for Congress in 1978, losing to incumbent Arlan Stangeland in Stangeland's first reelection bid.

In making the official announcement, Wenstrom said he believed the key issues to be energy, education, inflation, campaign reform, national defense, strengthening family farms and family businesses and improving rural transportation systems.

Of those, Wenstrom said he thought the two most important were energy and inflation.

"Energy is the chief cause of inflation. It is estimated that about 40 per cent of our inflation is directly accountable to higher energy costs," he said.

"High energy costs are particularly hard on our rural economy. Production costs for farmers have escalated while the prices they receive for their crops have not risen nearly as much. There is little mass transit available to our rural citizens, which means that many of us must continue to rely on our cars depsite high gass prices.

"I support a number of steps to gain control of our energy future. I favor developing alternate forms of fuel, of which the first priority must be gasohol. We must encourage energy conservation efforts, and we must make long term commitments to those efforts. We also must get better control of the big oil companies," Wenstrom said.

About inflation, he noted, "I believe the people of the area are willing to make the necessary sacrifices to stop inflation. But at the same time, the farmers and consumers I've talked with all say that those sacrifices must be distributed fairly and euqally. This means we must demand as much in sacrifices from the powerful special interest groups — such as the oil companies — as from the rest of us."

Wenstrom also pointed to his work in the Minnesota legislature where he authoried several bills that he said he would work for if elected to Congress.

"One of the bills if the administrative procedures act that makes state agencies more responsive to the citizens of the state. Many of the laws our representatives pass are well-meaning, but the bureaucracy sometimes doesn't implement them in a way that is beneficial to the citizens. In Congress, I'd push for legislation similar to the administrative procedures act to make the federal bureaucracy more responsive," he said.

Otter Tail Co. Applies For Rate Increase

Otter Tail Power company recently applied to the Minnesota public service commission for an increase in its Minnesota electric rates that would provide additional revenues of approximately $13,000,000 annually, it was announced by Robert M. Bigwood, president of the Fergus Falls-based electric utility company. In accordance with current Minnesota procedures, the increase would be effective, subject to refund with interest, 60 days after the filing, or July 14.

Increase would be approximately 29 per cent and would represent the first increase requested by Otter Tail since its application of July 29, 1977.

"Since Otter Tail's last Minnesota rate application was filed almost three years ago, this means that Otter Tail and its customers have had good rate stability for a relatively long period of time considering the galloping inflation that has taken place during this time," Bigwood pointed out. He said that even with the requested increase Otter Tail's Minnesota rates would compare favorably with those of companies serving much of the rest of the nation.

"Otter Tail shares its customers' concerns over the rising costs of energy," Bigwood emphasized, "but we cannot continue to provide the level of service our customers need — and — demand without upward adjustments in our electric rates during this period of inflation."

Anti-Business Day?

No one would expect Richard Lesher to be unbiased in his writings. Lesher has been president and chief operating officer of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States for the past five years and an articulate spokesman for free enterprise and the nation's business community.

It is only natural to expect that Lesher would react when Ralph Nader, who considers himself a consumer advocate, and others of Nader's ilk worked to organize an anti-business day. Lesher says the day was plotted "to convince America that the business community should be blamed for every national ill from chronic inflation to ring around the collar and sore feet."

That may be an exaggeration — but no greater an exaggeration than the tale Nader's serenaders would have much of the nation believe.

Certainly Lesher is not naive enough to believe that the nation's business world is lily white and free of all ills, nor does he express that viewpoint. But one must also consider the motivation and the beliefs of the anti-business exponents.

Nader himself has professed an admiration for communist China. "Compared to China," he has observed, "we can't get anything done." And he has added, "I'll tell you what the real problem is. We ask people to think instead of asking them to believe. And history has always gone to those who believe."

Let's look at a couple of the "believers" with whom Nader has surrounded himself. Barry Commoner, an advocate of solar power, wrote in "Poverty of Power" the following:

"Economists and other students of capitalism will recognize that the basic ideas I have discussed are among those first put forward by Karl Marx. All this suggests that it may be time to view the faults of the United States economic system from a vantage point of alternatives — to debate the relative merits of capitalism and socialism."

Perhaps Commoner would like to debate those relative merits with a couple of friends of this editor who recently spent several days in communist China on an agricultural visit. They avow that their visit was too long and they have never been more thankful for the way of life they are privileged to enjoy in the United States. Their opinions echo those of others we have talked to who have experienced the results of other than capitalistic systems.

Lesher points out, with justification, that this nation has already accomplished more for its people in a shorter time than any other in history. And he adds that working together to improve business, rather than tearing it apart, will make the nation an even better place to live.

The Nader folks would have us believe that the business they're against is "big business" and that they care about and want to help small business. We call that monkey business. First of all we see the profit motive of business existing at all levels. Second, we can't recall Nader and his cronies ever being in the battle with business of any size against government encroachment, restrictions, interference or regulations.

It is worthy of note that since 1975 the private enterprise system has created an average of 2.5 million jobs every year and still produces the greatest variety of products and services of any society in the world.

Furthermore, as a percentage of total national income, corporate profits have declined from 12 per cent in 1963 to nine per cent last year while the earnings of employees during the same period increased from 69 per cent to 73 per cent.

When workers complain that their higher take home pay buys less, they must remember that during the last 10 years, federal taxes have increased 61 per cent faster than prices, 67 per cent faster than wages and 154 per cent faster than profits. Who has been taking money from whom?

In our book, anti-business day has to be considered anti-American day, and we can't believe any anti-American sentiment has any merit.

Easy Money

If you are a worker in the District of Columbia, it may be as profitable not to work as it is to work. Workers' compensation benefits paid to employees in the district have ~~skyrocketed by~~ 500 per cent in seven years, driving the maximum payment up to $396.78 a week by June of this year.

Washington business leaders charge that the system — the second most lucrative in the nation for workers — fosters malingering by allowing injured workers to collect two-thirds of their gross salary tax-free. This often exceeds regular take-home pay.

Guidelines for compensation have been brought into question by critics of the system, who cite such examples as the case of a Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone company operator who was awarded $16,498 after she claimed that the first two fingers of her right hand gave out from pushing touch-tone buttons all day.

In another case, a Metro system bus driver collected more than $1,500 in medical and wage benefits after she claimed that pushing the brake pedal and accelerator for her bus caused disabling calluses on her feet.

The compensation record of the Metro system is perhaps the worst in the city. Only in D.C., employers argue, would a Metro bus driver have the courage to suggest that his psoriasis was aggravated by driving over bumpy streets. Operating under a self-insurance system for its 6,000 transit workers, Metro's comp bill has risen from $1.3 million in 1973-74, to more than $6 million this year.

More Farmer Troubles

Following editorial is from the Sisseton (SD) Courier:

Some world institute or other is now coming out with articles saying we should not be trying to find ways to make alcohol for fuel because it will take food away from hungry people. They say it will give people gas so they can drive their Cadillacs while other people are going hungry because they can't afford food.

We heard this reported on the radio and about 10 minutes later came the market report which showed the price of wheat had dropped by 8 cents on the markets. The threat of using grain for alcohol production does not appear to be driving up the price of grain.

The problem is not that we are short of food, or the capacity to produce more food. If we did not have a surplus of grain we would not be talking about the government trying to bolster prices so farmers can stay in business.

After alcohol is made from the grain, the resulting mash can be dried and used as feed for livestock. It might be useable for human food.

There are a lot of things that can be grown and used to make alcohol that can't be used for food. Grain is usually considered because it is in surplus and because it is relatively cheap.

The Institute also did not mention it takes fuel to grow grain. The cost of fuel is adding to the cost of food as much as anything.

There seems to be a feeling among a lot of people, especially in the cities, farmers are obligated to feed the people of the world whether the farmers make a living at it or not. This does not seem to be the case with people who make cars. They do not seem to be obilgated to produce cars at a loss or are steel makers obligated to make steel whether they go broke in the process or not.

In fact, we do not like the looks of the whole way things are shaping up in this country for farmers.

We do not like Russia going into Afghanistan. What do we do? We cut off the farmer's outlet for goods to Russia.

Gas prices keep going up. Farmers have got to have gas to produce. City dwellers can walk to work in some cases. They can pool rides and in many cases use public transportation. A farmer has to use gas to farm.

Interest rates are going up by leaps and bounds. High interest is supposed to hold down inflation.

Farming and ranching is a speculative business. Most farmers borrow money to put in their crops. They borrow money to buy machinery. Feeders borrow money to buy cattle to put in their feeding lots. They pay off the loans when the products are sold.

If a feeder or a farmer had enough money to buy his machinery for cash and pay for putting in his crop or buying a couple hundred head of feeders, he probably would not be a farmer or feeder. He would put the money in the bank and live on the interest.

High interest will drive down the profit a farmer or rancher makes and no doubt drive down the price for the product he sells. We will bet it does not reduce the price of beef or bread across the counter.

Borrowed Nonsense:

A college education, says the contemporary sage, never hurt anyone—who was willing to learn something afterward.

FAITHFUL SECRETARY, Rose Alverez, (Tamie Anderson) does not appear to be the "right type" for Albert Peterson (Dave Kragness) of Almaelou Music Corporation, according to Mae Peterson (Dorene Floberg), Albert's mother, who has come to visit. Still Time To Be Counted In 1980 Census

It's not too late to be counted in the 1980 census, the U.S. bureau of the census announced recently.

Questionnaries were mailed to every household on March 28, and most people were instructed to mail back a completed questionnarie on Census day, April 1. Millions did so, but the bureau reports that a number of households have not yet been heard from.

People not counted in the census will in effect be "invisible" when census statistics are used to reapportion seats in the House of Representatives and to guide the distribution of federal funds — their tax dollars — for programs in communities across the nation.

There is no penalty for a late return of the census questionnarie, but census answers should be given as of the April 1 date regarding births, deaths, changes of address and other facts.

To be sure everyone is counted, after April 16 census takers will contact those households that were asked to mail back a completed questionnarie but have not done so. Bureau emphasizes that this follow-up work increases the cost of the census. It is estimated for every one per cent of the households that mail back a fully answered form as asked, $2 million in follow-up costs will be avoided.

Every person's answers to the 1980 census are confidential by law and cannot be obtained even by other government agencies, whatever their purpose. Census answers are seen only by census workers, sworn to secrecy, who are liable to a jail term of up to 5 years and/or a fine up to $5,000 for violating that law. Not once in the history of the modern confidentiality law, which dates back to the 1930 census, has any census worker even been prosecuted for breaking census confidentiality. Census answers become public after 72 years for historical purposes.

Approximately 90 per cent of the nation's households have been asked to mail back an answered questionnaire, more than in any prior census. Remaining households, primarily in rural regions, also received a questionnaire in the mail, but were asked to answer and keep the form until a census taker comes to pick it up.

Often there is uncertainty about whether to list household members away at college, for instance, or serving in the military. Students living at or near the college away from home are enumerated at the school but students living at home should be counted with the household. Military barracks personnel and others in group quarters are considered residents of the area in which they are stationed and are enumerated there, and military personnel on ships are also enumerated.

In prisons (excluding short-stay institutions), orphanages, and nursing homes, and other long-stay institutions, census takers have distributed questionnairies which will be collected to enumerate the individuals in those institutions.

Anyone temporarily away from home, such as an overseas traveler, who has reason to think he or she was not included on a census form at home should at this time call the U.S. census district office to notify them.

A SPECIAL MOMENT is shared by Albert Peterson (Dave Kragness) and his faithful secretary, Rose Alverez (Tamie Anderson) during the production of "Bye Bye Birdie", a musical comedy written by Michael Stewart which will be presented this Thursday and Friday in the Marshall county central high school gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. In the production, these two main characters concoct a plan to make a singing teenage idol's song the biggest hit ever.

Bemidji Public TV Funding In Omnibus Bill

Before it adjourned, the 1980 Minnesota legislature passed a $43.6 million omnibus bill, which includes a $175,000 appropriation to KAWE-TV, public television station at Bemidji. Don Checots, manager of the Bemidji public TV station, said that if Governor Quie signs the bill, KAWE will use the funds to complete its studio and production facility.

The public TV project received its first construction funds in 1977 from the legislature which appropriated $440,000. The 1977 bill was originally written for $640,000 but $200,000 was cut from the bill in committee.

"Since the first state appropriation three years ago, KAWE has raised $1.1 million from other sources to build the station," Checots noted. "But in those years, inflation has eaten into the broadcast electronics industry much worse than the general economy, and consequently, money cut from our 1977 request is still needed to give KAWE full local production capability."

The station is slated to go on the air Sunday, June 1. Without state funding, however, its production capacity will be limited.

Seek Response To Program Of Hearing Dogs

Wisconsin Humane society, located in Milwaukee, is presently considering the development and implementation of a hearing dog program which would serve a geographical region consisting of Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Hearing dogs are mixed breed dogs specially trained in obedience and auditory awareness to assist deaf and hearing-impaired individuals. Dogs from our animal shelter that are in good health, intelligent, of a suitable temperament and between six and 12 months old are trained to respond to such sounds as a doorbell, smoke detector and alarm clocks, and to alert their owners. Through the services of such animals, deaf and hearing-impaired individuals are able to respond to the vital sounds of every day life.

Humane socelities and organizations for the deaf and hearing-impaired in this area have been contacted with information about the proposed hearing dog program. However, the organization and operation of such a program will be complex and costly undertaking. Before the Wisconsin Humane socelty makes a commitment, it is necessary to have a fairly accurate idea of how such a program would be received in this area and an approximation of the demand for hearing dogs.

All individuals or organizations interested in the hearing dog program or in obtaining a hearing dog at some future time are encouraged to write to: Hearing Dog Program, The Wisconsin Humane Society, 4151 N. Humboldt Avenue, Milwaukee, WI 53212

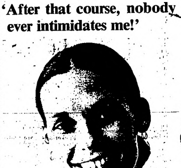
'After that course, nobody ever intimidates me!'



Mary Carlson, associate publisher of The Waconia Patriot, has this to say about the annual Newspaper Skills Course:

"That course by itself was the single best preparation I had for entering the newspaper field.

"I had a BA in business management, and had worked four years on a college staff. Then I decided to go into newspaper work. It was a quick career change. Fortunately I got into the Newspaper Skills Course. They told me that if I got through it, I'd be 'intimidated by nobody!' I got through, and they were right. The course not only gave me a lot of concentrated knowledge abut newspaper work, it gave me self-confidence. We learned by doing in that course. It was really a hands-on experience.

"I liked the course so well that I took another one immediately after it—a course which taught me how to sell newspaper advertising. Both of these courses were lucky events for me."

The 12th annual Newspaper Skills Course takes place June 2 through June 27, at Anoka AVTI. Two other newspaper-related courses immediately follow: the 5th annual Advertising Skills Course, and the 2nd annual news Photography Skills Course. Both the ASC and the PSC take place July 7-11 at Anoka AVTI.

If you're interested, write the Minnesota Newspaper Association, 84 S. 6th St., Minneapolis, for entrance qualifications. Cost of the NSC is $70, plus $40-$50 for supplies; for the ASC $60; and for the PSC $50, plus $15 for supplies. Students in the NSC and PSC will be required to have their own 35mm single lens reflex camera with self-contained light metering system.

Flickertail Captures Scientist's Interest At Moorhead State

"Holed up as hostages of winter seven to eight months a year, these little varmints parlay a fleeting summer into a frenzy of frolicking and fattening up for winter's imminent return," comments Jon Pigage, instructor of biology at Moorhead state university, discussing the flickertail.

The flickertail, a buff and silver hued ground squirrel with a twitchy tail and chattery high-pitched bark, is a caricature of the prairie lifestyle with its long pent-up winters and short-lived summers. They spend nearly all their time hibernating, recovering from hibernation and getting ready to hibernate — energy consciousness on a grand scale.

Tens of thousands of flickertails will pop out of their winter burrows this month (April), seeing daylight for the first time since last fall, Pigage says.

A wildlife management graduate of the University of Wyoming and a doctoral candidate in biology at the University of North Dakota, Pigage has been researching the habits and physiology of flickertails for the past six years, looking primarily at their up-and-at'em mating behavior. After nearly three-quarters of a year in a deep sleep, Pigage says, flickertails are mating within days of waking up. He's interested in finding the chemistry or mechanism that prompts such a prompt sexual awakening.

Pigage, 29, isn't alone in his fascination with the flickertail, commonly called Richardson's ground squirrels. They're plentiful — bearing seven to eight young a litter — and more importantly for scientists, they hibernate. Army researchers, Russian scientists and biologists around the world are curious about the ground squirrel's ability to drop its body temperature, fall into a deep sleep and survive cold weather. What they find, Pigage said, may hold some long-range medical implications.

"Like any animal," he said, "they have their own unique way of adapting to their environment. But just the fact that they hibernate — an amazing feat in itself — is interesting enough for me."

The flickertail's heart, Pigage said, normally beats 200 to 400 times a minute. But in hibernation it slows to two to 10 beats a minute. Its normal body temperature of around 98 degrees drops to 33 or 34 degrees, just above freezing. "It's an absolutely impressive winter survival technique," Pigage said.

An Alberta (Edmonton, Canada) university scientist calculated that the flickertail saves about 87 per cent of its body energy every year by hibernating rather than staying awake year round — a model of energy conservation.

Adult flickertails begin hibernating in late July or early August; yearlings by mid-September. By that time, Pigage said, they've nearly doubled their body weight with a supply of fat that should last them through winter.

Once inside their winter burrows, five to six feet deep and hopefully below the frost level, they curl up into a tight little ball with their scruffy sorrel tails draped over their noses — reducing body surface area to cut down on heat loss.

It takes a ground squirrel a few days to gradually fall into a deep sleep, Pigage said. Although they stay underground all winter, flickertails periodically wake up to eat stored food and eliminate body wastes. Their longest and deepest sleep comes in December and January, the coldest part of the winter, and lasts two to three uninterrupted weeks.

When spring comes, they skake themselves out of hibernation within a few hours — their heart beat and body temperature rise and their breathing and metabolism speed up.

What triggers hibernation is still a mystery, Pigage said. It's obviously a specialized adaption to cold weather, but apparently it's not cold weather that trips the seasonal switch. Pigage said that scientists in California have kept ground squirrels in controlled cold environments year round. Despite the constant temperatures, they still went into and out of hibernation like seasonal clockwork. Scientists now figure, he said, that hibernation in these mammals is triggered by some built-in biorhythmic cue.

Flickertails are related to 230 other species of squirrels — tree, flying and ground squirrels. There are over 30 species of ground squirrels in the Americas, ranging from Alaska to Argentina, but only three make their home on the midwestern prairie — the flickertail, the Franklin's ground squirrel and the thirteen-lined ground squirrel (commonly called "striped gopher"). Flickertails range throughout the prairie, from forest borders in Minnesota, Canada and Montana south to the Missouri river.

Ground squirrels, Pigage said, came to the Americas from Europe during the Ice Ages, crossing over the exposed Bering straits. Because of their burrowing, they probably contributed their share in breaking up the hard prairie soil and helping cultivate prairie grasses.

Flickertails look much like their relative the gray squirrel. But instead of sporting an elegant, fluffy tail, they're stuck with a scruffy, dirt-red tail. Evolution apparently gave the tree squirrel a significant tail for balancing in trees. A bushy tail like that, Pigage said, would only get in the way of the flickertail's digging and jumping from hole to hole.

Flickertails are often mistaken for gophers or confused with the smaller and more colorful thirteen-lined ground squirrel or the larger prairie dog.

Flickertails, however, live primarily in abandoned pastures and grasslands and rarely stray more than 50 feet away from one of their holes. Like the prairie dog, flickertails live in colonies. But unlike prairie dogs that have well-developed communities and live in neatly formed mounds, flickertails dig slapdash holes, scattering dirt with little concern for appearance.

Pigage said flickertails have skittish personalities, darting from hole to hole in spurts and stops, popping up and down in their burrows. Like the prairie dog, they sit up on their haunches, scanning the horizon for food or predators, flicking their tails almost constantly.

Flickertails belong to a genus of ground squirrels called spermophiles, meaning seed eaters, and they live up to their name.

For that reasons, flickertails can be agricultural pests. When farmers used to broadcast seeds, flickertails would do an efficient job of cleaning up. A 1026 agricultural survey, Pigage said, estimated that flickertails caused from $6 to $9 million in North Dakota crop damage. Drill seeding helped keep them at bay, but not quite enough. Farmers often offered bounties on the varmints. Now farmers control flickertail populations by lacing oats with poisons.

Some farmers, however, appreciate the little critters. In their favor, flickertails eat millions of noxious weed seeds along with pesky grasshoppers and their eggs.

Flickertail populations go up and down in cycles, Pigage said. They're preyed on by snakes, hawks, foxes and badgers. And periodically they're subject to epidemics of bubonic plague — the notorious Black Death — carried by a flea that infests their fur. Rarely, though, is the disease transmitted to humans. About 60 per cent of their population die each year from pedators, disease or inadequate winter preparation.

Pigage's study of the flickertail's mating behavior, part of his doctoral studies, is still in progress. For the past three years he's been examining their physiology in controlled environments, trying to figure how and when hormonal sexual activity starts in hibernation. He says that flickertails almost have to breed immediately after shaking off hibernation. Their gestation period of 23-24 days leaves youngsters with only a few months to build up enough body fat to survive the winter.

Besides their ability to hibernate, Pigage said, flickertails and other ground squirrels are interesting to researchers in other ways. Some scientists are looking at what kind of protection, if any, ground squirrels have that shields their blood vessels from the tremendous amount of fatty materials in their diet. Maybe their body chemistry holds a clue that can answer some medical questions about human atherosclerosis — a build up of fatty materials on the wall linings of blood vessels, the most common form of heart disease.

Meanwhile, flickertails continue to chatter, burrow and shadow dance with their tails like they did thousands of years before the first human set foot on the prairie.

Once they were so plentiful that Elliott Coues, an early naturalist, wrote in 1875 that "If Dakota and Montana were the garden of the world . . . either the gophers (flickertails) or the gardeners would have to quit."

Now they're just holding their own against a more formidable foe than winter — civilization.

RESEARCHER AND SUBJECT are Jon Pigage, biology instructor at Moorhead state university, and the flickertail. Pigage says there is a good deal of interest in the flickertail because it hibernates, spending nearly two-thirds of its life in a deep winter sleep. Scientists are studying what triggers the hibernation mechanism.

Tennis Schedule Gets Tougher

Coach Whitey Olson and members of the Lincoln high school tennis team are looking forward to a demanding weekend schedule that will find the Prowlers playing in a pair of back-to-back eight-team tournaments. They'll be at Stillwater Friday, then head north for Hibbing where they'll play at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. That's 600 miles and a lot of tennis.

But the competition excites the Prowlers who haven't had their No. 1 Class AA ranking tested this spring. They've taken care of Crookston and Bemidji in dual meets and have won three triangular events against the likes of East Grand Forks, Moorhead, Brainerd, South St. Paul, Little Falls and Monticello. Tuesday they'll be in Moorhead for a triangular against the Spuds and Fergus Falls.

At Stillwater the opposition will feature Blue Earth, third place finisher in last year's Class A state tennis tournament and No. 2 ranked in the preseason Class A polls this spring. Host Stillwater, Minneapolis Roosevelt, Mounds View, St. Cloud Tech and Duluth East, all perennially strong tennis schools, and Wayzatta will round out the Stillwater tournament.

Duluth East will also be at Hibbing, along with Anoka, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Paul Academy, Grand Rapids, Hibbing and Virginia, a 3-2 winner over Thief River Falls in last year's opening round Class AA state tournament. The Blue Devils went on to a runner-up finish behind Edina East in the state meet, but they lost by a decisive 4-1 margin to Hibbing last week.

"We're interested in seeing what the competition will be like," acknowledged Olson. "We hope we can do well against them. I think we will."

At Stillwater the players will face everybody else in eight-game pro sets. But Hibbing is bracketed into a two-division, round-robin format which gives players three full matches, but won't let them play all other entries.

"I'd rather play everybody. I think that's the idea of tournaments," mentioned Olson.

The back-to-back tournaments doesn't worry Olson. "At the state tournament you have to play four days in a row," he explained. And that's the Prowlers' goal this spring — playing four days in a row at the 1980 Class AA state tennis tournament May 28-31 in Bloomington.

Section 8 Jamboree Planned Here

All 17 schools in Section 8 have been invited to participate in a preseason hockey jamboree in the Thief River Falls sports arena Sat., Nov. 29, to kick off the 1980-81 high school hockey season.

The 17-team jamboree format, which will replace the eight-team Section 8 jamboree of the past, was proposed at a recent meeting of Section 8 coaches held in Brooks. Fifteen schools were represented and unanimously supported the plan which will find each team playing two 11-minute jaboree periods. Warroad and Crosby-Ironton coaches were not at the meeting.

Thief River Falls hockey coach Wendell Grand is serving as chairman of the committee in charge of the expanded jamboree.

The first Section 8 hockey jamboree was held in 1970 at Bemidji, featuring Bemidji, Moorhead, East Grand Forks, Thief River Falls, Warroad and Roseau. The teams and format did not change until the two Crookston teams — Central and Mount St. Benedict — were added in 1976, making it an eight-team affair the past four years.

After Bemidji hosted it in 1970, the jamboree moved to Roseau in 1971, Moorhead (the Fargo Coliseum) in 1972, Thief River Falls 1973, East Grand Forks 1974, Roseau 1975, Bemidji 1976, Roseau 1977, Thief River Falls 1978 and East Grand Forks 1979.

Miscellaneous

+Lake of the Woods high school principal Dr. Martin Koller turned in his resignation last week to accept a position as assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum of the Dassel-Cokato school district. He's the father of junior forward John Koller, the star performer on the Lake of the Woods Bears' 1980 Class A state basketball tournament runner-up team. "The principal's resignation was the major shock in a jam-packed agenda that the board covered at its regular monthly meeting," reported the Baudette Region.

+Grand Rapids high school hockey team was honored at a recent VFW dinner, and it was pointed out the Indians' record since their emergence as a state hockey power in 1972 is 139-34-7 in regular season play and 28-2 in regional competition that includes a Region 3 back door crown in 1972 and a current string of seven straight Section 7 titles. In state tournament play the Indians have collected three state championships, two runner-up finishes, two thirds and a consolation trophy. And this year's Grand Rapids junior varsity team lost just one game. Rick Nelson, whose Grand Rapids teams won Section 7 titles in each of his four years as Indians' coach, will resume his coaching duties in 1980-81, said Grand Rapids athletic director Will Sarkela. Nelson served as an assistant coach at the University of North Dakota this winter on a leave of absence from Grand Rapids. At UND he was associated with an NCAA champion. That puts Buzz Christensen back as Grand Rapids' assistant after a year as head coach. But Tom Ruthstein of the Indians said Christensen's state championship team this year has brought him "lots of job offers. Just yesterday he had a call from Gilbert, and I think he's going to Cook next Thursday," joked Rothstein.

THIEF RIVER FALLS first baseman Mark Schmitke stretched to reach a low throw from catcher Jim Nyland to get Bagley base runner Dave Spray in the second inning of Friday's high school baseball game played on the fairgrounds diamond here. Spray did his job, though, by putting down a sacrifice bunt in front of the plate that advanced a pair of Bagley runners. But the Prowlers wound up with an easy 14-4, five-inning win over the Flyers in their 1980 home opener. Thief River Falls, now 2-0, will be at Roseau Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. game against the Rams.

TRF Walks Past Bagley 14-4

Mistakes, they say, will kill you in sports. Well, Bagley made 33 mistakes Friday in losing a 14-4 high school baseball game to Thief River Falls as the Prowlers opened their 1980 home schedule with a five-inning, 10-run rule triumph over the mistake-prone Flyers.

Bagley mistakes were generally made by the three pitchers used by the Flyers who issued 17 walks, threw 13 wild pitches and hit a batter. In addition, the Flyers were charged with one passed ball and an error. And to top it off the Flyers, 1-2, surrendered eight Thief River Falls hits and gave up four stolen bases.

The victory was the second in two days for the Prowlers who opened the year with an 8-1 win at Red Lake Falls Thursday. That's 22 runs in two games for the Prowlers who struggled offensively last spring when they needed seven games to score that many runs.

Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell tempered his enthusiasm, though, when he said, "We're 2-0, but we're not into the meat of the schedule yet. Still, I thought we played reasonably good ball in the field, and we hit the ball pretty well. After the last two years, it's encouraging."

A 3-3 tie was transformed into a 12-3 rout when Thief River Falls scored nine times in the bottom of the third inning. Fifteen Prowlers went to the plate that inning, collecting four base hits and seven walks, along with a hit-batsman. They were helped along the bases by six wild pitches and a stolen base.

And nearly all of the third inning damage was done with two out after Mark Harder hit his second home run in two days to lead off the inning, getting a high fly ball up into the wind to clear the 340-foot sign in center field.

With a flock of reserves playing at the end, Thief River Falls ended the game on the 10-run rule with two out in the bottom of the fifth on a sacrifice fly by Dan Cullen and, appropriately enough, a wild pitch.

Thief River Falls will be at Roseau Tuesday for a 4:30 p.m. game.

BAGLEY RUNNER Ray Hartman came across home plate head first to score ahead of the tag by Thief River Falls catcher Jim Nyland to complete a successful delayed double steal in the second inning of Friday's high school baseball game played here. Hartman, on third, broke for the plate after teammate Shawn Carter purposely got himself caught in a run-down between first and second. Thief River Falls won the game 14-4.

All Gauges Will Be Included In Steel Shot Hunting Zones

Hunters will be required to use nontoxic steel shot regardless of the gauge of gun when hunting waterfowl in steel shot zones this fall, the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service reminded hunters.

Waterfowl hunters were required to use steel shot (the only approved nontoxic shot) in 12-gauge guns when hunting in the zones during the 1979 waterfowl hunting season. Lead shot was permitted in other gauges.

Today's announcement reiterates a decision by the FWS in 1979 to require in 1980 the use of steel shot by all waterfowl hunters in the zones, with no exceptions for gauge of gun.

Supplies of steel shot in 10, 12 and 20 gauges are expected to be available in many areas. Hunters are urged to check sporting goods stores and other retail outlets in their areas for more specific information.

A list of steel shot zones for the 1980-81 hunting season will be published later this spring.

The purpose of requiring waterfowl hunters to use steel shot is to reduce the incidence of lead poisoning in waterfowl. About 2 million birds die of lead poisoning in the United States annually after eating spent lead shot which they mistake for seeds or grit. Steel shot, however, is not toxic to waterfowl.

Lead poisoning in waterfowl is a serious concern of federal and state wildlife officials, who are responsible for the enforcement of migratory bird hunting regulations. Over the past four years, about eight per cent of sample gizzards collected from mallards bagged by hunters in the Atlantic, Mississippi and Pacific Flyways contained lead pellets at the time the birds were killed. Studies have shown that lead poisoning can kill birds that have eaten only one lead pellet.

Lead shot is slowly ground down in the birds' gizzards. The resulting lead salts pass into the blood where they cause damage throughout the body. Nerve disorders and loss of weight are two of the early signs of lead poisoning. These symptoms are followed by paralysis. When birds are weakened in this manner, they become subject to a variety of mortality factors and their probability of survival is greatly reduced.

Biologists have also found that some species eat lead shot more frequently than others. Mallards, canvasbacks, redheads and black ducks were among those species most likely to eat toxic lead shot. Special restrictions as part of hunting regulations for these species have been in effect in recent years because of concern about their numbers.

Fish and Wildlife Service in 1976 set a goal of reducing by 75 per cent the number of waterfowl with elevated levels of lead in their blood and body tissues.

Northmen Lose MJCAA Twinbill

Northland community college baseball team, beaten twice in an MJCAA doubleheader at Brainerd Saturday, will open its 1980 home schedule Wednesday when the Northmen host Fergus Falls in a 1 p.m. twinbill on the Northland diamond.

The perennial Northwest Division champion Red Raiders spoiled Northland's Minnesota junior college athletic association opener Saturday when Brainerd ran up a 14-4 first game win and tacked on a 9-7 second game victory to improve its record to 4-2.

"Mental mistakes. We made some mental errors," offered Northland coach Chet Engelman. "I'm disappointed, but not so disappointed that we're ready to quit. I think we can come back."

Northland 4

Trailing 6-1 in the doubleheader opener, Northland made things close by scoring three times in the top of the sixth inning, beginning with a lead-off home run by Vince Parker and capped by a two-run single by Joe Kraska.

But Brainerd ended it on the ten-run rule in the bottom of the inning, 14-4, aided by four Northland errors.

Northland 7

After spotting Brainerd two runs in the first inning, Northland came back with three runs in the second inning of the nightcap when Brainerd walked the bases full, gave up a passed ball and Morice Hendricks stroked a two-run double that oddly enough also ended up as an inning-ending double play.

But Brainerd got those three runs back in the third on a three-run home run by Brian Bzdok following two walks and then opened up a 9-4 cushion in the fourth when Northland pitching issued five walks.

The Northmen made the score close at the end by scoring three times with two out in the top of the seventh for a 9-7 final.

MARK HARDER, a Lincoln high school sophomore, made an impressive debut with the Prowler baseball team by hitting two home runs in Thief River Falls' 8-1 and 14-4 season-opening wins over Red Lake Falls and Bagley Thursday and Friday. Coach Charlie Cornell congratulated Harder as he rounded third base following his lead-off home run in the third inning Friday against the Flyers. His blast over the center field fence snapped a 3-3 tie and began a nine-run inning for the Prowlers.

Amendment To Waterfowl Act Being Proposed

Public comment is being sought on a draft environmental assessment by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service of proposed amendments to the migratory bird treaties with Canada, Mexico and Japan. The assessment describes the environmental effects of amending the treaties to allow spring and summer subsistence hunting of migratory birds in Alaska and Canada, and other alternatives for managing subsistence harvest of these resources.

Hunting of most migratory birds in spring and summer has been banned since 1918 by the migratory bird treaty act which implemented the bilateral agreement with Canada. The ban was imposed to protect the birds during nesting season, but at the time inadequate consideration was given to subsistence needs. Migratory birds, chiefly waterfowl, have long been an important food source for many residents in remote northern areas, particularly in spring when the birds are the first fresh meat available after a long winter. Because of the treaty language, residents of rural Alaska and Canada who follow a subsistence lifestyle have found themselves in violation of the law.

A 1976 treaty with the Soviet Union gives greater recognition to subsistence needs. It provides that the United States may set seasons to allow native and non-native Alaska residents to take migratory birds for their own nutritional and other essential needs. U.S. authorities must determine what those needs are and, in setting season, must assure that healthy migratory bird population levels are maintained.

Treaties with Canada, Mexico and Japan each have different provisions about subsistence hunting and all are more restrictive than the Soviet treaty. These disparities have made it impossible to develop a sound conservation program that adequately provides for subsistence needs.

The Interior agency is proposing to correct the disparities by amending the treaties with Canada, Mexico and Japan to conform with the subsistence language of the Soviet treaty. It is expected that these proposed amendments will not increase the take by subsistence hunting in either Alaska or Canada beyond the level that already is occurring. Subsistence hunting now accounts for about five per cent of the migratory bird take in North America.

The environmental assessment also examines two alternatives: no change in the treaties; and strict enforcement of the present ban on spring and summer subsistence hunting.

Public comments must be received by May 12, 1980, and should be sent to the Alaska Area Director, U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, 1011 East Tudor Road, Anchorage, Alaska 99503. Copies of the assessment may be obtained from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (MBMO), Washington, D.C. 20240 (telephone 202-254-3207); and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (MBPC), 1011 East Tudor Road, Anchorage, Alaska 99503 (telephone 907-276-3700).

Bob Allison of the Minnesota Twins tied a major league baseball record when he struck out five times against Detroit on Sept. 2, 1965.

Prowlers Open With 8-1 Baseball Win Over RLF

Red Lake Falls baseball coach Pete Sullivan figures he has a legitimate Region 8A title contender this spring. Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell has no such illusions in Region 8AA. But for openers Thursday the Class A Eagles found the Class AA Prowlers too much to handle as Thief River Falls posted an 8-1 victory in the 1980 high school baseball opener for both teams.

The Prowlers, whose light-hitting offense won just four games in 1979, collected nine hits off three different Red Lake Falls pitchers, including a 2-for-4 performance by winning pitcher Kelly Gutterud and a lead-off home run over the left-center field fence by sophomore third baseman Mark Harder in the fifth.

"I thought we played pretty well," acknowledged Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "I was encouraged."

Sullivan, a Lincoln high school and Northland community college graduate, was satisfied, too, "for the first game." He's looking forward to facing the Prowlers again May 1 in Thief River Falls. "I just love to play Thief River," he smiled.

Red Lake Falls scored first when Scott LaChance opened the bottom of the third with a double that raised chalk down the left field line. He moved to third on a sacrifice fly to the center field fence by starting and losing pitcher Kevin Erickson and scored when the Prowlers messed up Dave Thorfinnson's safety squeeze bunt.

But Thief River Falls' first three batters reached base in the top of the fourth and all three scored. Freshman Jim Hallamek, in the line-up as a designated hitter, got hit; Gutterud doubled into the right-center field gap; and Paul Drees' probable sacrifice fly down the left field line was mis-played into a two-base error, scoring Hallamek and sending Gutterud to third. Jim Nyland's hard-hit ground ball went through shortstop Dan LaChance for another two-base error and two runs.

Harder greeted Thorfinnson, who replaced Erickson on the mound at the start of the fifth inning, with his homer and the Prowlers made it 7-1 with another three-run burst in the sixth when Nyland dropped a single behind second base and both Jeff Ulrich and Tom Drury walked to load the bases. Nyland scored on a wild pitch, with Ulrich and Drury scoring on a throwing error by Erickson, now playing shortstop.

Singles by pinch hitters Dan Cullen and Rick Stimac plated the final Thief River Falls run in the seventh inning.

Northwomen Lose Twice In Tourney

Austin and Vermilion were rough on the Northland community college softball team Saturday during an invitational tournament played at Austin. The host Bluedevils shut out the Northwomen 14-0 in the first round and Vermilion eliminated them 20-2.

The games were scheduled five inning affairs. Austin led just 3-0 through four innings before scoring 11 runs in the fifth on five hits and four Northland errors. The uprising featured five of Austin's seven hits for the game and four of Northland's five errors. The Northwomen were held to three base hits, striking out nine times.

Vermilion did its damage early, scoring nine runs in the first inning on eight hits and three Northland errors. Vermilion out-hit Northland 17-2 for the game.

The Northwomen, 0-4, will be at International Falls Tuesday to play Rainy River in a 3 p.m. doubleheader. Northland will be at Grand Rapids Saturday to play Itasca at 1 p.m.

Ely Swimmer Is Named To Hall Of Fame

A Chippewa atheite and multiple sclerosis patient, Bob Gawboy of New Hope, has been inducted into the American Indian athletic hall of fame.

Gawboy was a championship swimmer while attending Ely high school and Purdue University.

Gawboy studied physical education and metallurgical engineering at Purdue but did not complete a degree because of interference by symptoms of multiple sclerosis.

During the 1955 indoor National Amateur Athletic Union aquatic meet at Yale University, Gawboy set American and World records in the 220-yard breaststroke even though he was recovering from surgery and had not swum competitively in more than two years.

Gawboy is now active as an aquatics program participant with the Minnesota North Star Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society.

The North Star Chapter of the Multiple Sclerosis Society raises funds for research and provides services to MS patients in Minnesota.

Multiple sclerosis is a disease of the central nervous system found in young adults aged 20 to 40. No cause or cure is known.

UND Plans 1980 Summer Basketball, Football Schools

University of North Dakota head basketball coach Dave Gunther says the 11th annual UND summer basketball school, which he directs, has openings for boys and girls entering grades 7 through 12 this fall.

"Our early response to this year's school has been good, but we wish to inform interested parents and boys and girls interested in our school that we have openings," Gunther said. More information can be obtained by writing to Gunther, UND Summer Basketball School, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N.D. 58202, or by calling Gunther at 777-2974.

Dates of the UND summer basketball school are June 1-6 for boys, June 8-13 for boys, June 15-20 for girls and July 27-August 1 for boys and girls.

Two fee plans are available: board and room students, $120 per session, or commuters, $60 for those who live and eat at home.

Plans have also been completed for enrollment of students in the third annual University of North Dakota summer evening football school, according to Sioux head football coach Pat Behrns.

Individualized instruction is in two age groups, Behrns said. Boys entering grades 7-8-9 this fall can enroll for the 6:30 p.m. sessions July 14-17 and boys entering grades 10-11-12 this fall may enroll for 6:30 p.m. sessions July 28-31.

Information and enrollment blanks may be obtained by writing to Behrns, Head Football Coach, University of North Dakota, Grand Forks, N.D. 58202, or by calling Behrns at 777-4192.

Fee for each four evening session is $20. "The accent at our school," Behrns said, "is on individual instruction. Our school objectives are teaching football fundamentals; developing football skills and ability; building desire and aggressiveness; building physical strength; molding solid character; promoting sportsmanship; and keeping boys in football gear and out of hot water."

UND assistant football coaches Erv Mondt, Don Stoner, John Miklesh, Terry Noland and Rob Bollinger assist Behrns during the evening instructional sessions.

County Board Proceedings

April 21, 1980
Official Proceedings
Board of County Commissioners
Pennington County, Minnesota
April 8, 1980

Pursuant to adjournment the County Board met in the Commissioners' Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls at 10:00 A.M., April 8, 1980.

Members present: Grabanski, Koop, Stenberg & Tasa. Hoffman joined the group for the afternoon session.

Discussion of a drainage problem on County Ditch No. 62 in River Falls Twp. in the outlet for the system. The matter was referred to the Engineer to clarify the right-of-way and also to check with the Red Lake Watershed on procedure should an improvement be required.

A delegation from St. Hilaire appeared with inquiry as to the progress on the replacement of the Bridge that has been the subject of much discussion in the past. They were informed that the Engineer had not been able to give the Board estimates on the roads needed to provide approaches to the Bridge.

Various problems relative to the Bridge and the approaches were discussed in detail. Commissioner Koop introduced the following resolution and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, One of the stipulations presented by the Department of Transportation, State of Minnesota, for completion of the Bridge at the Southeast edge of St. Hilaire (Bridge No. 57507) is the re-alignment and placement of new approaches to the bridge.

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, that the Pennington County Board go on record as favoring construction of a new bridge approach to the West of the proposed bridge at the time of construction of the bridge and a revision of the East approach to the bridge within a 5 year time frame.

The foregoing resolution was duly seconded by Commissioner Stenberg and upon call for vote was declared adopted unanimously.

The minutes of the meetings of March 4 and March 20 were read and approved as read.

At 2:00 P.M. the Board proceeded to open bids for County wide graveling as duly advertised and called for with the following bids opened and read aloud:

Thygeson Construction, Middle River, $109,200.00; R.D. Sunderland & Son, Fargo, $97,470.00; Keith Heinrich, Cohasset, $97,497.00; Macey Constr. Co. West Union, $112,800.00 and Thorson, Inc., Bemidji, $95,700.00.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Koop that the bid of Thorson, Inc. be accepted as the lowest and best bid and the Auditor and Chairman be instructed to enter into Contract with said low bidder. Motion unanimously carried.

At 3:00 P.M. the Board proceeded to open bids for purchase of a tilt-type Equipment Trailer as duly advertised and called for. The following bids were opened and read aloud:

Road Machinery & Supplies, Minneapolis, $11,931.00; Kridec Equipment, Fargo, $12,140.00; General Diesel, Fargo, $10,760.00; General Diesel, Fargo (alternate) $8,720.00; Hayden-Murphy, Bloomington, $7,895.00; Carlson Equip, St. Paul, $7,675.00; Itasca Equip. Co., Savage, $6,720.00 and North Country Equip. Inc., Grand Rapids, $8,095.78.

Moved by Stenberg seconded by Koop that the bids be laid over to be considered at the meeting of the Board to be held April 24, 1980. Motion carried.

Royce Yeater of Foss Engelstad Foss of Moorhead appeared in response to letter relative to an apparent chronic heating and ventilation problem in the Law Enforcement center, questions relative to Barrier Free requirement for the Courthouse, Energy problems with the Staff House at the Oakland Park Nursing Home and a start of the determinations for future use of the Oakland Park Dormitory Building.

Regarding Law Enforcement Center — Design Engineer and representative of the Manufacturer will be called in at the earliest opportunity.

Regarding the Courthouse—Barrier Free will mean the addition of an elevator but it is apparent from the discussion that space problems are present as well and Mr. Yeater indicated his firm would present a proposal for a survey of space needs which may be addressed at the same time as the Barrier Free matter.

Regarding the Staff House and the Dormitory Building — Proposals of ways of solving both of those problems will be presented at the earliest opportunity.

Two other Architect firms have been contacted for these same matters and response is expected soon.

Moved by Hoffman seconded by Koop that the Road Committee and the Bridges and Culvert Committee inspect roads, bridges and culverts at 9:00 A.M., April 22, 1980. Motion carried.

In response to inquiry by Rodney Hoffman relative to culvert installation the Engineer approved the size of the culvert in County Ditch 57 in Section 5 in Hickory Township.

After discussion of the 5 year Road Program and the Hearing held March 20th the following resolution was introduced by Commissioner Koop and moved its adoption:

WHEREAS, The Minnesota Department of Transportation requires public and governmental agency participation in the development of construction programs, and

WHEREAS, A Public Hearing was held, pursuant to Public Notice, at 8:00 P.M., Tuesday, March 20, 1980 in the Commissioners Room in the Courthouse in Thief River Falls, Pennington County, Minnesota, at which time all persons present were allowed to present proposals and voice opinions relative to development of a five year road construction program.

Agassiz Board Of Directors To Meet Thur.

Full board of directors of the Agassiz Health Systems agency will meet at 10 a.m., Thursday, April 24, at the Regency Inn (formally American Inn), East Grand Forks.

Morning's business will include a review of the public comments on the 1980-81 Health Systems plan and formal adoption of the plan. The Health Systems plan has been developed as a "systems" plan; i.e., one designed to bridge the gap between health status and health resources and community values. The plan takes into account the interactions of all components impinging on health, including demographic and environmental factors as well as social behavior.

Identified priority areas of this year's plan include community and public education programs to decrease death rates due to cancer, heart disease and accidents. Activities will include cooperative efforts of private agencies, community groups, schools, hospitals and state organizations with Agassiz acting as facilitator, convener and technical assistance resource.

Four public hearings for Certificate of Need will be conducted in the afternoon, beginning at 1 p.m. Applications are as follows: 1) Beltrami Nursing home, Bemidji — change in certification levels of nursing home beds. Change in Minnesota Certificate of need law requires this type of review; 2; Polk County Group homes, Crookston — applicant proposes to purchase existing structure for a 10 bed ICF-MR transitional facility; 3) Wilderness Farms, Bemidji — applicant proposes to construct a 10 bed ICF-MR facility in rural Beltrami county; and 4) Riverview Hospital association, Crookston — applicant proposes to purchase and install a Rohe diagnostic ultrasound unit.

All Agassiz meetings are open to the public and interested persons are invited to attend and express their views. For further information on specific agenda items, please call Mary Ellen Preston, Agassiz Health Systems Agency, 31 South Third Street, Grand Forks, North Dakota (701) 746-0441.

Soo Line Notes Net Income Of $11 Million

Soo Line Railroad company earned net income of $11 million on revenues of $80 million in the first quarter of 1980, Thomas M. Buckley, president, has announced.

"Net income for the period was up substantially over the first quarter of 1979 when severe weather conditions throughout Soo's system held earnings to $2.1 million," Beckley said. "The improved earnings this year were the result of more favorable operating conditions due to less severe winter weather and greater traffic volume."

Net income in the first quarter amounted to $1.45 per share compared with 28 cents per share in the first quarter of 1979 and 68 cents per share in the first quartdr of 1978.

Railway revenues for the first quarter amounted to $80 million, an increase of $22 million or 37 per cent over revenues for the first quarter of 1979. Increase resulted from general freight rate increases and higher traffic volume. Net ton miles rose by 22 per cent and total carloads of freight traffic were up 8 per cent. There were significant increases in the movement of sulphur, potash, pulpwood and woodchips, primary metals and small grains. Shipments of lumber as well as woodpulp and pulp by-products decreased as compared to last year. Some weakness in carloadings has been experienced in the last several weeks, the rate of increase over 1979 earnings cannot be expected to be as high in the remaining quarters of 1980, Beckley said.

Railway expenses amounted to $63 million, an increase of $8 million or 15 per cent over 1979. The ratio of railway expenses to revenue dropped to 79.1 per cent from 94.3 per cent in 1979 reflecting better operating conditions and improved efficiency during 1980.

Soo continued to add its freight carrying capacity by taking delivery of 624 new freight cars valued at $26 million during the first quarter. Receipt of 20 new locomotives is scheduled for the second quarter of 1980. A substantial maintenance program to upgrade track and roadbed is planned for the year.

Council Initiates City's Drug Awareness Program

Discussion by Ken Froschheiser, Thief River Falls police chief, and Kathy Ryan, representative of Help Fight Drug Abuse, Inc., opened last night's city council meeting.

Plan addressed to council member was to purchase drug abuse identification books to be distributed to parents throughout Thief River Falls so they may be better informed of the drug problem.

"It is a community effort, and so far, in other communities, the response has been positive," Ryan said.

"We have had seminars on drug abuse for parents for the past year," Froschheiser stated. "We have displays set up right in the classroom. We feel education is the answer to the problem."

Alderman Dr. Don Goodrich, introduced the resolution for the city to participate in the program to purchase the specified amount of books (approximately 2,000-2,500) at the set price of $675 to be distributed by members of the Thief River Falls police department throughout the city of Thief River Falls. Following a second by alderman J.J. Womack, the resolution carried.

In other council action, Rick Adams and Dick Brown appeared before council members requesting the right to cut firewood, primarily for their own use, at the old dumpground site. The item was agreed to be referred to the sanitation committee for further discussion with a report back to the council at their next regular meeting set May 13.

Proposed placement of traffic signals on First street in front of the Valley 24 store in Thief River Falls, brought owners of the store, Wayne Bjerken and Floyd Hagman before the council.

Rules specify that parking may be no nearer than 30 feet from the nearest signal and no nearer than 20 feet from the painted crosswalk.

"This construction of the signals would eliminate our parking and our business," Hagman said.

Traffic volume in that area has required that the signals be there," Cliff Larson of the department of transportation said.

It was resolved that Bob Wolfe, district engineer, would meet with council members and property owners in the area to discuss the situation within the next week.

Jon Larson, appeared before the council members, requesting a hearing date for the downtown parking project in Thief River Falls, at which time parking assessments would be specified. Hearing date was set for May 20 at 7 p.m. in the council chambers.

96 Is Memorable Number For Hannah Gustafson

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

Ninety-six is a number bearing much significance for Hannah Gustafson, because within that number lies a storehouse of memories. Hannah celebrated her 96th birthday with relatives and friends last St. Patrick's day.

A resident of the CNC unit at Northwestern hospital in Thief River Falls, she arrived in her room to meet us, clutching her embroidery project, and displaying the necklace she had made. (two other necklaces lay in the dresser drawer beside her bed).

"I hope I look all right. I have prettier dresses than this one," she said smiling, as she scanned the flowered garment she was dressed in for the day.

Another of her creations — a gold pillow — rested in the chair beside her bed. Colored and uncolored photographs outlined her walls carrying memories of her past and present.

"I'm an Irish-Swede," she began. "I was born and raised on a farm in Rocksbury township." (between St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls.)

She was born in Crookston in 1884, and later lived on a farm between St. Hilaire and Thief River Falls before moving to Thief River Falls in 1910, according to Peggy Peterson, Hannah's niece. The Gustafson's first homestead was bought for $800 and consisted of a dwelling, a small log barn, and ten acres of broken farm land, according to information supplied in Pioneer Tales, A History of Pennington County. "It was a good home, that's all I want to say," Hannah added.

In 1911, Hannah's father, Charles, and one of her three brothers, Carl David, started an automobile and implement business, later called Gustafson and Son, in a small building on the corner of Fourth and Main Streets.

"It started out as a little shack on a corner," Hannah said.

In the business, the family sold walking plows, farm horse-drawn machines, farm wagons, and buggies by the carload, according to Pioneer Tales. They sold as many as 96 disc harrows a year, and did some trading of horses — about 60 a year. They also sold wagons and other equipment to the Indians. When tractors came into use, the family sold 46 in one year.

In 1937, a family corporation was formed, including Carl David and his wife, Hannah; and later, Carl's son Kendall, and son-in-law, Norman Peterson were included. Peterson was in the business for approximately 20 years, according to his wife, Peggy.

The family prospered and built the present brick building on the corner of Fourth and Main streets to replace the original one, according to the Pioneer Tales.

The business was in operation for 56 years. Hannah helped out her family in the business by taking care of all the book-work, she said.

Hannah, along with her three brothers, Helon ("H-E-L-O-N," she said, as she Fourtown Fire Put Out Tues.

Firefighters put out a blaze about midnight Tuesday which had burned an estimated 5,000 acres of swamp and brushland northeast of Fourtown since Sunday. Forestry service officials at Grygla said they believe the fire was intentionally set.

Although the fire reached the Beltrami Island state forest, it was cut off before any timber damage resulted. No buildings were lost in the blaze, according to forestry officials.

Firefighters worked under adverse conditions, fighting flames in swampland where water was waist deep to knee deep. "A few times we broke through where frost had gone out of the floating bog," one forestry service worker said, "and got in water up to our waist without touching bottom. It felt like the ice was still down there!"

On Monday a water bomber made three or four drops to help control the fire. Ronnie Davidson from Holt used his helicopter to ferry firefighters to where they were needed and to direct the effort from the air while personnel worked on the ground. Three

by Bonnie Reed
Times Reporter

When Kym Morris arrives in her native country of Australia in June she will have witnessed three winters in one year's time and she will have lived in a town of 300 and a city of 4 million.

Kym, 16 (and "one-half," she specified) a Youth for Understanding (YFU) exchange student from Sydney, Australia, is presently residing with the John Helley family in Plummer. She has been there since last August. She left her home in Sydney at 9 p.m. on a Tuesday, stopped at Hawaii for one hour, and arrived in San Francisco at 7 p.m. that same day, because of the time difference and locations of the two countries. The following day she traveled to Minneapolis and finally to Thief River Falls.

Kym's parents will be arriving from Australia to witness her graduation from Pershing high school in Plummer May 23. Both of her families will do some traveling before the Morris's return home to Australia, Kym said. Kym, her Australian family, and her American family will be traveling to New York, Washington and possibly to Tijuana, Mexico before going to California for three weeks.

"I've always wanted to go to Disneyland," she said. "I watch Walt Disney every Sunday night on TV."

With YFU approval, foreign exchange students may travel on the way back to their country, according to John Helley, Kym's American father, area representative of YFU and a member of a host family for YFU students.

Our unique winter this year which brought us less snow than usual was a hindrance to Kym who loves to ski. Although she enjoys her stay here, she remarked that on her application she should have specified her desire for a place with snow and mountains instead of just "snow". She is also used to the mountains in Australia.

"I think your land could have a bit more character," she smiled.

Sydney, the largest city in Australia (population of 4 million) contains many immigrants from Greece and Italy, Kym said. Her father is a food inspector while her mother works in public relations — distributing pamphlets concerning Sydney to various hotels. Kym is the only child, yet she has one close companion — Tuffy — her cairn terrier.

Australia has a temperate climate with temperatures averaging around 70 degrees in the summer and 40 degrees in the winter — except in the high mountain regions when temperatures drop below freezing in the winter. Because of our location in comparison to Australia's, while we are lying outside enjoying the summer sun, Australian residents are enjoying skiing. When Kym left Australia it was winter, she endured a winter in Minnesota, and it will again be winter when she returns to Sydney with her parents.

"It's freezing over here," she said. That's one reason

Student From Australia Is Local Visitor

why she didn't do much skiing, and because, "It's not fun skiing alone," she added. (She has been skiing since she was seven).

Attending school is different here, according to Kym. "In Sydney most schools are either boys or girls schools and everyone wears uniforms. It was easy to adapt. You get to know everyone in a small school."

There is also closer contact with teachers in a small school, she said. "In Sydney you don't talk with teachers about your personal life like you can here."

Kym has gotten over the depression she was witnessing before Christmas, and she eagerly awaits the upcoming class trip to Winnipeg, graduation, and prom — activities not evident in Australia.

A school term begins in February and runs until December in Australia, she said. She will still have one year of school left when she returns home.

"When I go back in June, I'll go straight to school," she said. "I'll have to work hard to catch up."

There are eight periods in a regular school day in Australia, each being 40 minutes in length. And, if students want to participate in sports, they have to join a club.

There are 600 students in her school in Sydney — double the population of the town where she now lives in the United States. High school certificates are obtained in grades 11 and 12 following exams that are given. Kym took a computer class at Northland community college while attending school in Plummer and her future plans are to become a computer programmer.

"That's what I think I want to do at the moment," she added.

The final exam during the student's senior year consists of 500 points. "Most students try to get at least 300 points," she said. This exam determines a student's placement in a university.

Kym was surprised at the foods eaten here. "I think we're a middle class family in Australia," she said, "and we eat mostly meat and vegetables. Here, people eat macaroni, potatoes, salad and meat all in one meal! And people eat pancakes for breakfast. In Australia they're more of a snack."

Kym was brought up to learn the metric system since fifth grade. Yet she does realize the reality of prices in both the metric and American system of measurement. Gas is $1.70 a gallon in Australia. "At least that's what it was when I left," she said.

Kym took French for four years in Australia, she said. And, although Australians speak the American language, Kym has had some difficulty with the accents she hears people using here. "My tongue doesn't go the way it's supposed to," she laughed.

A Prime Minister reigns over the people of Australia — a democratic country which is also under the commonwealth of the Queen of England. It is the queen who appoints a Governor General — the position replacing the Prime Minister's if necessary. The two major parties are the labor and liberal. The country has become more industrial through the years, replacing the primary state it began as, Kym said. Citizens are considered adults at 18.

"I've always been intrigued with Americans," Kym stated. "A lot of my friends come skiing here. I was given the opportunity to come here and I came."

Despite the fact that Kym did not get to participate in one of her favorite activities (she also participates in ballet, swimming, and tennis in Australia), she stated that she is glad she came here. And, even though Plummer doesn't possess the mountains she is accustomed to, she enjoys the country-like atmosphere she finds while living here.

Her parents were understanding when she told them the news of her desire to live in the United States. "If there is something I really want to do, they help me do it." Her parents call her once a month and she receives a letter from them nearly every week.

Kym plans to come back to Colorado in two years — once she has completed school and has received her high school certificate. There she will be at home with snow and mountains. If she ever lived in the United States she said she would live along the coast (80 per cent of Australia's population lives in coastal cities.)

Kym has witnessed unique experiences since she has been living in the United States, although she may not realize it. She saw her first deer one day ("I'm used to seeing animals like that in zoos."). She witnessed our chilly Minnesota temperatures ("I used to wonder why people would want to live in such a cold climate."). She felt the atmosphere of a small town ("It's like living in the country."). And she has tasted some of our American foods ("People even eat ketchup on French fries here!").

Putting all of these simple experiences together creates the type of living evident in Northern Minnesota. Whether in the United States or in Australia, Kym has shown us that no matter how foreign to a country one is there will always be something present to make us feel at home.

ALTHOUGH NORTHWESTERN Minnesota doesn't have mountains and there wasn't as much snowfall last year as most years, Kym Morris, foreign exchange student from Australia, has come to enjoy the country-like feeling of living in Plummer with the John Helley family, a host family under the Youth for Understanding program. She had hoped to get some skiing in, she said, but school activities have kept her busy since she began her senior year at Pershing high school.

carefully spelled out each name.) Godfrid, Carl David, and John Enoch, performed many of the duties that accompany farm living. Hannah is the last of the four children yet living.

"Id go to the pasture to get the cows sometimes, and the boys would do the milking. My brothers did most of the work around there," she said.

The help of the historical book, and Hannah's niece, we learned of her trips by horse and buggy hauling cream to the first Farmers Co-op Creamery of the entire Northwest area — a business which Hannah's father organized and built.

Hannah was never married. Her growing-up years were spent mainly on the farm, helping her family or at the family's business in Thief River Falls, she said.

"The family would go to town (Thief River Falls) to get groceries as they needed them," she said. Trips were made with horses. "We didn't have any mules," she laughed. The school was located three miles from their home, as was the church, since church services were conducted in the school building.

Hannah and three other women formed a quartet in the church, providing some of the entertainment families enjoyed during that time.

"We'd have picnics at the schoolhouse and there would be debates between the school children," she said.

Hannah admitted to doing quite a bit of traveling as she was growing up, she said. Numerous trips were made to Minneapolis "in her own car" to see friends. The family also traveled to Warren several times — for business and for visiting, she added.

Hannah enjoys her home at the CNC unit, she said. "They take good care of me and they're nice to me." And, she keeps herself busy with various projects throughout each day.

Hannah believes that many things have changed since the time when she was growing up, she said, although she added, "I don't believe I can recall what those things are."

Her repetitious statements of "as far as I know" or "as far as I can remember" brought us back quite far, illustrating the memories that Hannah still possess within her.

"I'm just thankful for what I can do and what I have," she said.

Arbitration In School Dispute Heard Monday

Arbitration proceedings were completed in the schedule Monday in Thief River Falls with final positions, rebuttals and closing statements made by representatives of the Thief River Falls board of education and the Thief River Falls Education association.

Under Minnesota law, the arbitrator has 10 days within which to render a decision. Because arbitrator Richard Miller of New Hope was selected on short notice to replace John W. Boyer of Duluth, he asked for and was granted an extension on the 10-day period. Boyer asked to be relieved of his duties due to ill health and Miller was selected within a few days following Boyer's resignation.

At the arbitration session, oral presentations were made by the school district's negotiator from Minneapolis and the TRFEA's representative from the office of the Minnesota Education association.

Fourtown Fire Put Out Tues. At Midnight

Bombardier all-terrain vehicles with water tanks were also used in the effort.

The forestry spokesman said they got a break last night when temperatures dipped to freezing in the area and coated everything with frost. When the helicopter went out at 6 a.m. to be sure the fire was out, the pilot had to scrape frost from the bubble before he could fly.

Two firefighting crews of 20 men each, one from Kentucky and the other from North Carolina, were brought into the area and were ready to work but were held back and not needed. One group was dispatched to the Greenbush area — where one fire is reported to have burned 27,000 acres — and the other to the Bemidji area.

Forestry personnel estimated that the firefighting effort at the Fourtown fire cost approximately $10,000 and noted that all of the area burned was public land.

Council OKs Program On Drug Abuse

concerning airport development aid project funds in the amount of $4,000 was approved by the city, following the introduction of a resolution of alderman Clayton Restad followed by a second from alderman Womack.

Intoxicating liquor licenses for the VFW, Elks, Legion and Eagles clubs in Thief River Falls were approved by council members.

The city also entered into a contract agreement with the school district for arena rental at $19,000 for the 1980-81 year and $20,000 for the 1981-82 year. Rental fee includes the baseball field and use of the old arena.

In other rental matters, it was agreed, following introduction of a resolution by alderman Womack and seconded by alderman Milan Borsheim, that the city would enter into a one-year lease agreement with the Minnesota senior federation for their rental of the upstairs of the city auditorium. Fee was set at $50 per month for one room.

Planning commission recommendation as a result of an April 21 meeting involved the proposed Highway 59 SE improvement plan with the specified changes, including taking out the Dale street access, moving the access opposite Sherwood avenue, and moving the adjacent access points nearer to Greenwood.

Presently, there are three alternatives to the plan, according to Jim E. Walker, city engineer.

A common left turn lane could be specified in the center of highway 59, leaving the accesses to the highway in. "We found this to be a safety problem with those making left turns," Walker said. Another option was to construct a four-lane highway, thus leaving the accesses, but resulting in a higher cost.

Third alternative would be to get the traffic off Highway 59 by constructing frontage roads on each side of highway 59 and eliminating some of the accesses (the plan proposed by the planning commission).

"The first two plans leave the traffic on highway 59 while the third one would move the traffic around the highway," Walker said.

Debate arose from council members concerning the elimination of some of the accesses to highway 59.

"If we are going to relieve the traffic on highway 59, we would recreate the problem by opening the exits," Walker said.

It was resolved that the matter would be referred to the planning commission for further discussion, following the introduction of a resolution by alderman Goodrich.

Roll call vote determined action on the request by the 4-H leaders council for the city to re-consider the rental fee for 4-H use of the city auditorium April 12. Three "no" votes from alderman Engelstad, Restad and Goodrich, and four "yes" votes from Mayor Bob Carlson and aldermen Borsheim, Womack and Penning resulted in the decision to waive the rental fee for the auditorium. (Alderman Ambrose Wysoski was absent from the meeting).

In final action, it was resolved that "No Parking" signs would be posted on the frontage road adjacent to highway one in Thief River Falls, from Barzen avenue to the Get-Away, Inc.

Meeting was adjourned to 11:45 a.m. Friday in the council chambers at which time the cross-strip runway at the Northwest regional airport will be discussed.

EASY DOES IT! Obstacle courses were only one of the activities set up throughout the Thief River Falls sports arena Sunday afternoon during the annual scout exposition. A special program at the exposition commemorated the 70th anniversary of the Boy Scouts and the 50th anniversary of the Cub Scouts.

USDA Wheat Purchase Helps; Corn Next?

President Carter and Secretary of agriculture Bob Bergland were commended recently for their decision directing the department of agriculture (USDA) to purchase wheat directly from farmers in an effort to boost depressed farm market prices.

Minnesota Farmers Union President Cy Carpenter termed the action taken by the administration, "a step in the right direction." However, Carpenter strongly urged that USDA move immediately to establish a similar direct farm purchase program for corn.

Carpenter said strong action is needed to quickly raise grain market prices. Current economic conditions, including ". . . high interest rates and a near void of credit funds in rural areas, have left the nation's farmers facing one of the most severe financial crises in recent memory coming at spring planting, when they are in most need of capital," he explained.

USDA has been purchasing small amounts of wheat and corn in recent weeks from country elevators and farmers who submitted offers to sell to the government. To speed up the process, USDA began a wheat buying program directly from farmers through its county offices. In Minnesota prices offered farmers varied by county between $3.69 to $3.99 per bushel, a substantial increase above market prices. Government hopes to purchase about 146.8 million bushels of wheat to shore up sagging grain prices caused by the Russian grain embargo, transportation tie-ups and other adverse market conditions.

Carpenter said that to ensure that the wheat purchase program has the desired effect it should be extended on into the future, so that an adequate volume of wheat is removed from the market to sustain stronger market prices.

A large corn purchase program should be quickly established because ". . . corn prices have been extremely low at country elevators, and below the cost of production in many areas of the Upper Midwest," Carpenter said. Corn is the major crop grown in Minnesota and is the commodity most affected by the export suspension and other conditions which have jointly contributed to the current farm market slump.

"A county-level corn purchase program of substantial size would not only work to strengthen market prices and give farmers a timely source of capital, but it would allow many a means of paying off previously-held loans and free up the money supply in rural areas for other needs," he continued.

"We believe long-range price improvement is the only real solution that will allow farmers, faced with rapidly escalating operating costs, to come out of 1980 in reasonably sound economic health," Carpenter concluded.

Judge Nelson Resigns From Polk Co. Court

Governor Al Quie has accepted the resignation of Polk county court Judge Phillip D. Nelson. His resignation will be effective June 1.

Governor Quie said that the governor's committee on judicial nominations for the Ninth judicial district immediately will begin accepting applications for the vacancy created by Judge Nelson's resignation.

The court district includes Kittson, Roseau, Marshall, Polk, Pennington, Norman and Mahnomen counties.

Applications for this position may be obtained from the Governor's Office, 130 State Capitol, St. Paul, Minnesota 55155 or from the chairman of the Ninth Judicial District Nominating Commission, Russell A. Anderson, 521 Minnesota Avenue, Bemidji, Minnesota 56601.

Applications should be submitted to chairman Anderson no later than May 5.

State Receives $2.6 Million In Ore Royalties

Department of Natural Resources collected more than $2.6 million in taconite and iron ore royalties during 1979, it was announced this week.

The minerals were mined from state owned properties under lease to mining companies. The total crude ore tonnage mined during the year was 33,506,840. Taconite crude ore accounted for 33,442,628 tons while iron ore production was only 64,212 tons.

Receipts from mineral leases and royalties are deposited in trust fund accounts if the minerals are located on trust fund lands. If the minerals are found on tax forfeited lands, 80 per cent of the royalty and lease receipts are returned to the counties for distribution to the local taxing districts and the remaining 20 per cent is deposited to the state general fund.

In addition to the receipts from taconite and iron ore the state received $295,636 in rentals from copper-nickel leases during 1979.

Quies Share Home With Minnesotans

If you qualify and are willing to send in a postcard there's a one in 50 chance you'll be invited to spend the night with Minnesota's first family at their Summit avenue residence in St. Paul on Tuesday, May 13.

Reporting on the results after seven overnights, Gretchen Quie calculated for every 50 people who sent in a postcard, one was selected to spend an overnight in a guest room at the governor's residence.

Here's how the program works: Minnesotans who fall into one of the special categories (there's one for each of the guest bedrooms) are asked to send in a postcard before May 3, indicating their name, address and phone number and eligibility category to: Gretchen Quie, 1006 Summit Avenue, St. Paul, Minnesota 55105. One card is randomly selected from each category and the winners are notified.

The categories from May 13th are: A "self-sufficient" couple which grows, cans and freezes most of its own food; a single person who lives on the fifth floor of an apartment building; someone who has never traveled out of Minnesota and spouse; and in recognition of Policeman's week May 11-17, a law enforcement officer and spouse.

Home Hazard Clean-Up Good Spring Advice

As much a part of spring as raking leaves and throwing open windows for a breath of fresh air is the annual ritual of spring-cleaning. Minnesota safety council suggests you clean up home hazards while you dust away winter's cobwebs.

Major causes of home fatalities — falls, fire and burns — could be substantially reduced if homes were routinely inspected for hazards which can be corrected. A room-by-room survey will help point out potential dangers to your family and home.

In the kitchen, check for adequate lighting, especially in stove and sink areas. Be sure cooks turn pothandles away from stove front, but not over other burners. See that only non skid wax is used on the floors, and that spills are wiped up immediately. Store hot pads near the stove, but away from flames for direct heat. Keep a step stool handy for use when reaching into high cabinets. Inspect the range exhaust hood and ducts to be sure they're clean.

On stairways, test handrails to be sure they are sturdy and available for outside steps as well as inside closed stairways. Check for adequate lighting on stairways, too. Avoid using stairways for storage areas; keep treads and stair carpeting securely fastened and in good repair to lessen danger of falls.

In other rooms, check to see that small rugs have non-skid backing. Inspect high-traffic areas to keep them clear of furniture and obstructions. Use a screen in front of fireplaces. Have plenty of outlets for lamps and appliances to avoid overloading extension cords. Post emergency telephone numbers (doctor, police, fire, hospital, neighbor or close relative) near all telephones.

Know where main gas and water valves are located and how to use them. Have gas and water lines tagged for quick identification. Have gas dryers vented to the outside if possible. Be sure major appliances are properly grounded.

Check the supply of extra fuses of the correct size; know the maximum load each of the electrical circuits in your home can safely carry, and avoid overloading them. Keep a flashlight handy in case of power failure. Keep cleaning fluids, drain openers and other household poisons locked up and out or reach of children.

For a free checklist to help you clean up home hazards, write the Minnesota Safety Council, 145 Hamm Building, St. Paul, Minnesota 55102, or its northern service office at 318 Missabe Building, Duluth 55802.

This year's topic is "Speaking Out — Voices of Disabled People."

Denise will receive a $200 savings bond from the state competition. Ann Hanson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Hanson of Viking and also a student at MCC, was the third place winner at the state level and will receive a $50 bond.

As first place Minnesota winner, Denise will also receive an all expense paid trip to Washington, D.C., April 30 — May 2, courtesy of the Minnesota AFL-CIO. Mass Of Leaves Forces Power Plant Delay

Apparent clandestine dumping of leaves into the river upstream from the powerplant dam in Thief River Falls one evening last weekend caused inconvenience to the powerplant employees and financial loss to the city.

Powerplant workers said they had to shut down the water turbines at the plant for at least half an hour to permit a mass of leaves about 40 feet long, 10 feet wide and a foot thick to make its way over the dam and on its way downstream. Leaves spilling over the boom by the powerplant intake would have clogged the turbines.

Power generation loss because of the shut-down was estimated at 250 kilowatts. Plant employees wanted the public reminded that not only is the dumping of refuse in the river illegal, it can be costly as well.

Marshall Co. Temperance Group To Meet

Annual meeting of the Marshall county Temperance organization will be held at 2:30 p.m. on Sunday at the Westaker Free Lutheran church at Newfolden. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Students and staff of the Heritage Christian school at Karlstad will provide special music and quote Scripture which they have memorized during this school year.

Order of business will include reviewing events of the past year and the election of a vice president, treasurer and one director. Lunch will be served.

Dog Obedience Class Still Has Openings

Dog obedience classes, sponsored by the Tri-County Human society, still have a few openings in both the novice and advanced classes. Interested persons should come to the Thief River Falls sports arena at 7 p.m. tonight (Wednesday).

Host Families Needed For 18 YFU Students

A number of students from various sections of the world will be arriving in the United States to attend schools next year, according to John Helley, area representative for Youth for Understanding (YFU), an international student exchange program.

Helley acts as representative to host families — those that are interested in sponsoring a foreign exchange student — in Northwestern Minnesota and Northeastern North Dakota. Each host family has the opportunity to choose the student he wants from data sheets provided by the YFU centers, Helley said. Interested families who have decided upon a foreign exchange student fill out a form with the aid of an area representative.

Helley's duties as representative consist of visiting various host families and interviewing them before the student arrives as well as being present at the host family's home when the student arrives. Once the family's applications have been filled out they are processed in the regional YFU office in Minneapolis before they are sent to Washington where they are screened.

Helley's job as representative also involves meeting with the superintendent of various schools. Each school board has to approve the admittance of a foreign exchange student planning to attend the school.

Main function of the area representative, according to Helley, is to act as liaison between the regional office in Minneapolis and the local area.

Helley, who is also head football coach at Northland community college in Thief River Falls, has been a host family for a year. Presently, Kym Morris, an exchange student from Australia, has been with the Helley family since last August.

"It's been quite an experience," Helley commented. "I definitely think I'd do it again."

Most foreign exchange students arriving in the United States complete their senior years at school here, most are on the honor rolls and most come from average families, Helley said.

Helley also calls on the exchange students while they are living in the area, he said. "You get to meet many interesting people. You learn their cultures, and it's nice to explain your culture to them."

YFU is an organization having very strict codes, Helley said. But, no major problems have been encountered with students under the program. The organization is private and non-profit and is aimed at promoting international understanding. Youth for Understanding makes it possible for young people, ages 14-18 to have an overseas family-living experience, according to Hinda Litman, host family recruiter.

Exchange students who will be arriving in the United States next year along with their age upon arrival and the country from which they will be arriving include the following.

Ari Makela, 17, Tampere, Finland; Angela Ortiz, 18, Cali, Colombia; Antero Kaepprnen, 17, Kauhava, Finland; Gabriel Sanin, 17, Tulva, Colombia; Meka Ikomen, 18, Rajamaki, Finland; Keis Hansen, 16, Helsinge, Denmark; Leena Kornela, 17, Jyvaskylia, Finland, Osmo Karhui, 18, Fohja, Finland; Ritta Mikkonen, 17, Kajaani, Finland; Marjut Findgren, 16, Karesuvanto, Finland; Laura Beloff, 16, Kurikka, Finland; Jaana Kokkosalo, 17, Vantaa, Finland; Marja Haapasaari, 17, Pori, Finland; Katriini Heinonen, 17, Naantali, Finland; Lauri Antikainen, 17, Helsinki, Finland; Mathias Bruehlmeier, 18, Oberrohrdorf, Switzerland; Lena Hedlund, 18, Engsbaca, Sweden; Carina Legerius, 17, Nykoping Stockholm, Sweden.

Anyone who is interested in the Youth for Understanding program who would like to become a host family may call or contact Mr. and Mrs. John Helley, P.O. Box 192, Plummer, MN 56748; telephone 218-465-4587.

Warm Weather Boosts Farming Across State

Warm, sunny weather last week rapidly dried soils across the state, allowing many farmers to begin fieldwork, according to the Minnesota crop and livestock reporting service. At week's end, the most intensive fieldwork was in the northwest and west central districts where full-scale small grain seeding is underway in most localities. In the other areas of the state, fieldwork was limited to the higher, well-drained soils, however spring work is expected to accelerate this week.

Soil moisture is mostly surplus in the southern third of the state but fields are drying fast. Some fields still have frost which is hindering drainage. In nearly all other areas, moisture supplies are adequate. However, several areas in western Minnesota are becoming dry and could use additional moisture to insure seed germination after planting. Subsoil moisture supplies are mostly surplus in the southern districts and adequate elsewhere.

Early morning soil temperatures throughout the state averaged about 50 degrees. The temperaturos ranged from 43 to 60 degrees and were highly related with soil moisture. The higher readings were on drier soils while the lower ones were on wetter soils.

Small grain seeding is well underway in the northwest and west central districts but is very limited in other parts of the state. To date, about 10 per cent of Minnesota's expected spring wheat acreage and five per cent of the oats and barley acreage is seeded. All are behind the 1975-79 average but ahead of last year's slow start when small grain seeding didn't begin until late April.

Less than one per cent of the corn or soybean ground has been prepared for planting as most fields have been too wet. With continued good drying conditions, some corn planting is expected this week.

About one per cent of the green peas for processing are in the ground. Sugarbeet growers have planted 22 per cent of their acreage.

Spurred by the warm weather, winter wheat, rye, hay fields and pastures are beginning to green up. Most fields are still dormant in the northern areas. Tractor fuel supplies remained adequate last week.

School Sign Similarities Fool Motorists

Do you know the difference between the traffic sign that indicates a school zone, and the school crossing sign?

The majority of tested motorists cannot accurately identify these signs, according to a study recently published by the AAA foundation for traffic safety.

School zone sign consists of a black silhouette of children on a yellow background. This sign should warn you that you are in an area where school buildings or grounds are adjacent to the highway. You should be alert for children in these areas and aware that you could be approaching a school crossing, cautions the Minnesota state automobile association (AAA).

School crossing sign looks similar to the school zone sign with one important difference: two black lines that indicate the crosswalk markings on the road. Here you must be alert to children crossing the road on their way to and from school.

Most drivers taking part in the foundation study recognize that these two symbol signs indicate "school," but they were not able to understand the subtle difference between the two signs.

To protect the safety of school children everywhere, you should keep in mind the meaning of these signs as you drive through areas that may be near a school, warns Minnesota AAA.

For a free copy of AAA's brochure," Road Symbol Signs Coming Your Way", write or call: Traffic safety dept., Minnesota AAA, 7 Travelers Trail, Burnsville, MN 55337, 612-890-2500.

UMC To Hold Open House At New Library

Official opening of the new library and adjacent facilities in the Learning resources center (LRC) at the university of Minnesota, Crookston will be celebrated at an open house on Saturday, May 3. Hours for the open house will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Harold Opgrand, LRC supervisor, is extending an invitation for the general public to visit the campus that day and see the new library and remodeled areas in Kiehle building. Refreshments will also be served.

Guides will be provided for tours that will take visitors through the new north wing and into recently renovated sections of Kiehle. The north addition, which houses the library, was completed during the past year and opened for use by students, staff and the public late last fall. Other facilities included on the tours will be the audio-visual department, closed circuit television studio, photography lab, and remodeled word processing center.

Several departments located in Kiehle but unrelated to the learning resources function will also be available for viewing. These facilities include the college's reading-learning center, the Write place, a tutorial laboratory for students in composition classes, and the rural communications department's darkroom and editorial production center.

LRC personnel will be on hand to explain the purpose and display the work typically produced in their respective departments. A special publication is being prepared for distribution to open house guests. The booklet outlines services offered to UMC and the community by learning resources.

Architects for the new library were Williams and O'Brien, a Minneapolis firm. The general contractor was Edlund Construction, Valley City, North Dakota.

Concert Group Weak On Vocal, Long On Style

by Carl E. Andersen

Those who attended Sunday night's performance by the Singing Hoosiers were treated to more than just good singing. The 22 singers — 10 men and 12 women — demonstrated remarkable training and talent in the wide spectrum of the performing arts. Their stage presence and decorum, their fresh and exciting choreography, their staging and acting, plus capable singing, all combined to produce a truly memorable and entertaining evening.

The group from Indiana University School of Music was directed by Robert Stoll, who also added percussion effects to many of the pop and show tunes which dominated the program. A talented pianist, who demonstrated an amusing ear-to-ear programmed smile with every bow he took, supplied interesting back up and sometimes cover-up. From time to time I wished we could have heard more of the bare voices. Even the one selection they sang, entitled "Occapella" by Allen Toussaint, was anything but. In addition, a drummer filled out the singers' accompaniment and kept toes tapping all evening long.

The singers had frequent opportunities to demonstrate their individual talents and, to be honest, some were vocally disappointing. Generally the solos in the second half of the program showed the more talent. Nearly all of the singers were featured at one time or another, not something most choral groups would dare do, or be able to pull off.

Compared to college choirs I'm most familiar with, the Singing Hoosiers provided a vivid contrast. Given the relatively small size of the group, they were not able to produce the full-choir, controlled sound of a larger concert group, and that's to be expected. For example, the double and triple fortes they ventured would reveal individual voices sticking out occasionally; and sometimes holes and gaps would appear in long, sustained chords as staggered breathing was needed.

And there are other critical things that could be mentioned, although none of them very serious detractions. The overall sound of the male voices seemed a little immature. They could have used a real deep bass, too. More solid foundational depth in the basement wouldn't have hurt a bit. Intonation was not always as precise as it should have been either. Strangely enough, this showed up most often in some unisons that were not so unison.

One might also wonder about the program selection. There was one classical piece offered to the audience, a tenor solo, done operatic style, sung in Italian. It seemed to out of place that still half way through I thought it was a gag number of some sort, and that the fellow would get a pie in the face. But it was on the level — and was sung very well, by the way.

As I said before, this group does much more than just sing, however. And so it is perhaps unfair to review their performance without considering the totality of their work. They are a multi-talented group.

Perhaps most memorable was their collection of songs spotlighting the works of Hoagy Carmichael. Another great treat featured a tribute to Walt Disney, highlighting songs from his great productions along with a slide show. Songs from the shows "Pippin," "All That Jazz," "Halleluja, Baby," were featured, plus selections from such composers as Marvin Hamlish, Barry Gibb and Barry Manilow.

The Singing Hoosiers combined in a lively, inventive and enthusiastic way various facets of the performing arts to treat the Thief River Falls Concert association to an evening of delightful song and dance, rhythm and jazz.

First Class AA opposition of the 1980 season is awaiting the Lincoln high school baseball team Friday when the Prowlers travel to Bemidji for a 4:30 p.m. game against the rival Lumberjacks. Then on Monday Thief River Falls tackles Moorhead in a 4 p.m. game on the fairgrounds diamond here.

Thief River Falls - Bemidji games are always special. And Friday's contest should provide some answers for the Prowlers who opened the year playing three Class A opponents — Red Lake Falls, Bagley and Roseau, all solid baseball programs, but not the Class AA competition Thief River Falls will have to face at tournament time.

Bemidji and Moorhead, who were scheduled to play yesterday at Moorhead, will tell the Prowlers if they're as good as their season-opening scores (8-1 over Red Lake Falls and 14-4 over Bagley) would have you believe.

Moorhead has been made a preseason favorite in North Half Region 8AA and should draw a crowd when the Spuds arrive Monday.

Like basketball, Region 8AA baseball goes to the North and South tournament format this spring instead of the four Sub Region playoffs. The 1980 North Half Region 8AA baseball tournament will be played Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, May 20, 21 and 22, at Detroit Lakes.

A May 12 deadline has been set for coaches to submit a rating sheet to Detroit Lakes activities director Del Mollberg, who will use the coaches' rankings to see the teams 1-through-7. It's not an eight-team tournament because East Grand Forks doesn't play high school baseball. The North Half Region 8AA tournament entries will include Moorhead, Bemidji, Fergus Falls, Thief River Falls, Detroit Lakes, Crookston and Park Rapids.

Thief River Falls will face four of the six North Half Region 8AA teams during the regular season, playing Bemidji and Crookston on a home-and-home basis, hosting Moorhead and playing a doubleheader at Fergus Falls. The Prowlers will not see Detroit Lakes or Park Rapids unless they meet at tournament time.

The North Half Region 8AA tournament winner will serve as the host team for the 1980 Region 8AA championship game Tues., May 27.

In four years of Region 8AA Sub Region 4 competition from 1976-79, Bemidji took home three championship trophies and Thief River Falls won the other. The Lumberjacks were winners in 1976, 1978 and 1979, with the Prowlers taking the 1977 prize when they challenged highly regarded St. Cloud Apollo in the first round of the Region 8AA tournament at St. Cloud before losing 9-6.

Bemidji split a doubleheader at Hibbing Saturday, losing the first game 6-2, but bouncing back from an 8-3 fourth inning deficit to take the nightcap 13-10.

Miscellaneous

+Crookston pitchers issued 14 walks in a season-opening 8-4 high school baseball loss to defending Region 8A champion Fertile-Beltrami and then issued seven walks in the second inning Friday against Detroit Lakes in losing 13-3. Brian Bachmeier and Trent Stahlacker were the losing pitchers in those games for the Pirates who will be in Thief River Falls Tues., May 6, to play the Prowlers.

+Grand Rapids, Thief River Falls' scheduled first round opponent in the four-team Moorhead high school baseball tournament Sat., May 3, looked impressive in winning a doubleheader at St. Cloud Saturday, beating St. Cloud Tech 2-1 when Jim Tollett pitched 6 and one-third innings of no-hit ball and then handing a 4-0 St. Cloud Apollo team its first loss of the season, 9-5, on three seventh inning doubles by Mike Sonaglia, Vern Thompson and Tollett that broke a 5-5 tie. The Indians host defending Class AA state champion Little Falls in a 1 p.m. doubleheader Saturday. The Flyers beat the then-defending state champion Indians 6-3 in a first round Class AA state tournament game last spring.

Lincoln Golf Squad Third At Crookston

Grand Forks Red River won the nine-team event with a 347, with Grand Forks Central shading Thief River Falls 351-354 for second place.

Detroit Lakes was a distant fourth with a 367, followed by Ada 368, Crookston 380, East Grand Forks 386, Mahnomen 394 and Fosston 397.

Mike McKay of Grand Forks Central was meet medalist with a 75 in the wind. Al Thompson of Grand Forks Red River was runner-up in the medal race with an 80.

Thief River Falls' four counting scores included Tim Imgrund with an 83, Bob Fitzgerald 88, Jeff Imgrund 91 and Dave Geatz 92. Mike Anderson had a 92 and Wade Hoppe 94 to complete the Prowlers' scoring.

Wiebolt was a junior defenseman on this year's squad after lettering as a forward as a sophomore.

Prowlers Get By Rams 2-1 For 3-0 Baseball Start

Two Thief River Falls first inning runs survived the test of time Tuesday at the Prowlers held on for a 2-1 high school baseball win over Roseau.

The victory boosted the Prowlers' record to 3-0, marking the first time since 1976 Thief River Falls has opened a baseball season with three straight wins. The streak will be on the line Friday when the Prowlers visit Bemidji for a 4:30 p.m. Northwest Athletic Conference game. Thief River Falls hosts Moorhead Monday at 4. The Spuds beat the Lumberjacks 10-4 Tuesday.

Gusty winds made playing baseball difficult Tuesday at Roseau, but the Prowlers still played six innings of errorless ball before a seventh inning miscue made things close.

"The wind raised havoc with everything," pointed out Thief River Falls coach Charlie Cornell. "It was like playing in a tornado. But we really played very well considering the wind. One error in a high school baseball game in wind like that is awfully good."

Thief River Falls struck for a pair of unearned runs in the top of the first when Tom Drury and Dave Odegaard drew walks and Mark Harder singled up the middle. Drury stumbled rounding third and would have been an easy out at the plate, but catcher Lyndell Vatnsdal dropped the throw. A wild pitch advanced Odegaard and Harder to second and third, with Odegaard scoring when designated hitter Jim Hallamek's ball hit to third was misplayed.

That was all the scoring until two out in the bottom of the seventh when winning pitcher Wayne Huseth walked Allan Desrosier and Eric Grafstrom. An error by Harder at third scored Desrosier, but Drury, playing right field and backing up first base on the overthrow, kept Grafstrom from scoring and tying the game. Huseth got out of the jam with a game-ending ground ball to shortstop Jeff Ulrich.

Prowlers Add Triangular Win . . .

Unbeaten Tennis Team Gets Tournament Test

Lincoln high school tennis team, winner of four straight triangular meets, sets its sights on bigger and better things this weekend when the Prowlers participate in a pair of back-to-back eight-team tournaments.

Thief River Falls will be at Stillwater Friday at 9 a.m. to face the likes of Blue Earth, Stillwater, Minneapolis Roosevelt, Mounds View, St. Cloud Tech, Duluth East and Wayzatta. Saturday will find the Prowlers at Hibbing for a 10 a.m. event featuring Duluth East, Hibbing, Anoka, St. Cloud Apollo, St. Paul Academy, Grand Rapids and Virginia.

Blue Earth began the 1980 season ranked No. 2 in the Class A state coaches' poll. Thief River Falls is ranked No. 1 in Class AA. Virginia eliminated the Prowlers 3-2 last year in a first round Class AA state tournament match.

Thief River Falls' unbeaten status wasn't challenged Tuesday when the Prowlers swept all ten matches in beating Moorhead and Fergus Falls by 5-0 scores in a triangular event hosted by Moorhead.

The Prowlers took nine of the ten matches in straight sets, with Bill Jury needing a 5-3 tie-breaker decision to get upset-minded John Haukebo of Moorhead 3-6, 6-1, 7-6 at No. 1 singles.

"Haukebo is an excellent tennis player," noted Thief River Falls coach Whitey Olson. "It was a good match. I knew Maukebo would be tough, especially on a fast surface."

Because of the strong wind, matches were played indoors at the Moorhead arena.

Fergus Falls came back to sweep all three singles matches to edge Moorhead 3-2 for a runner-up finish behind Thief River Falls.

After the weekend travel, Thief River Falls will be at home for back-to-back matches early next week, hosting Crookston in a 3-15 p.m. dual Monday before facing Detroit Lakes and Roseau in a 2 p.m. triangular Tuesday on the Northland community college and Lincoln high school courts.

The NASA scholarship funds are the result of contributions received from area businesses and sports interested individuals. The efforts of these individuals and organizations is greatly appreciated by the Northland college athletic department," stated Klemisch, NASA president.

Lincoln Girls Lose To Rams

A dual meet decision went to Roseau 67-47 Tuesday when the Lincoln high school girls track team failed to score in the three relay races.

The Rams' 20-point victory margin on their all-weather track was accomplished with a sweep in the 400, 800 and 1600-meter relay reces, and 200-meter hurdles.

"That's what lost the meet for us," explained Thief River Falls coach Tom Schafer as he listed those events. "Otherwise it was a good meet for everybody all the way around."

Thief River Falls collected three first place finishes as senior Karla Nelson took the 200-meter dash in 28.9; junior Stacy Ehrenstrom won the discus with a toss of 84 feet; and sophomore Lori Swanson claimed the 1600-meter (mile) run in 6:14.

The Prowlers are scheduled to run Saturday in an invitational meet at Grand Forks starting at 11 a.m. and will be at Detroit Lakes Monday for a 4 p.m. meet.

Rams Win Track Triangular Tuesday

Roseau was an easy winner Tuesday with 75 points in a triangular track meet on the Rams' all-weather track. Thief River Falls edged Warroad 45-41 for second place in the wind-swept event.

Sophomore Steve Hvidsten paced the Prowlers by winning the 200-meter dash in 23.7 and coming up with a pair of close seconds in the 330-meter intermediate hurdles in 43.6 and the 100-meter high hurdles in 16.7. In both cases Warroad's Tom Roberts edged Hvidsten at the finishing line.

Thief River Falls also had a winner in sophomore Keith Grochow who turned in a personal-best 5-10 to take the high jump. He also ran the lead leg on the Prowlers' 4:00.0 first place sprint medley relay team that also included Terry Johnson, Mark Broadwell and Steve Kruta.

Bruce Johnson, yet another sophomore for the young Prowlers, turned in a personal best 4:50 in a second place 1600-meter (mile) run.

"I thought a lot of the times we ran were excellent, despite the wind," mentioned Thief River Falls coach Bill McGann.

It was the first outdoor meet of the season for the Prowlers who will send a delegation to the Grand Forks Service Club invitational Saturday at 11 a.m. Thief River Falls will be busy next week, running at Roseau Monday and at East Grand Forks Tuesday before hosting the Quentin Jones invitational Thursday. All three meets have 4 p.m. starting times.

Twins Plan Jacket Day On Sunday

Minnesota Twins and Dairy Queen join forces to co-sponsor the 1980 season's first big promotional event at Met stadium: Jacket Day on Sunday, April 27, at 1:15 p.m.

Providing the opposition that day will be the Oakland A's, led by new skipper Billy Martin. The A's, who feature some of the game's best young pitchers, will also play in 1:15 p.m. games on Friday and Saturday, April 25 and 26.

Attractive twelve-gauge vinyl jackets will be distributed to all youngsters 16 and under at the Stadium gates. The wraps are white with red sleeves, the Twins' script lettering emblazoned across the front, trimmed in blue.

And, if the Twins come away a winner in Sunday's contest, fans may redeem their ticket stubs for a free five-ounce sundae at any participating Dairy Queen store.

To relieve any possible congestion at the turnstiles, the Stadium gates will open at 11:15 a.m., two full hours prior to game time.

Northmen Top UND JV Twice

Sophomore second baseman Morice Hendricks collected six hits in seven at-bats Monday to lead Northland community college to a pair of 10-5 wins over the University of North Dakota junior varsity in a baseball doubleheader played in Grand Forks.

Hendricks, 1-for-5 for the year going into the twinbill, went 2-for-3 in the opener and enjoyed a perfect 4-for-4 nightcap when he doubled and tripled. He also stole a base, drove in two runs and was involved in a pair of Northland double plays during the productive afternoon.

"It was a good day at the plate for Morice Hendricks," smiled Northland coach Chet Engelman. "He has always played fairly well defensively, but he just never hit the ball before. He did a great job."

The Inkster, Mich. prepster, who also played football and basketball for the Northmen, batted ninth in Northland's batting order Monday. Engelman said that would be changed for today's (Wednesday) 1 p.m. MJCAA Northwest Division doubleheader against Fergus Falls, the 1980 home opener for the Northmen, now 2-2 overall and 0-2 in the MJCAA.

Northland will be at Crookston Saturday for a 12 noon twinbill. Fergus Falls swept Crookston last Saturday, 14-4 and 10-8.

Northland's offense featured four doubles and seven stolen bases as the Northmen won Monday's doubleheader opener 10-5.

The Northmen jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning, but trailed 5-4 after three before their 12 hits and base thefts took their toll on the North Dakota defense that also committed seven errors.

NCC Golfers Open Season On Thursday

Season-opening competition for the 1980 Northland community college golf team will feature southern Minnesota opposition as the Northmen face North Hennepin in a Thursday dual meet then golf in the Normandale Invitational Friday.

The North Hennepin event will be played at the Silver Springs golf course at 1 p.m. while the Normandale meet will be played at Braemer at 9:30 a.m. Both courses are located in the Twin Cities area.

Northland's five-man team this spring includes Dave Hanson and Gary Johnson of Mahnomen, Howard Belto and Jeff Beese of Hallock and Charlie Boyer of Thief River Falls.

Hanson is the only sophomore in the group. He was a member of the 1979 Northland squad.

"Past performances would show Gary Johnson and Jeff Reese as our two best golfers," mentioned Northland coach Al Adams. "They both shot in the mid or low seventies during the summer meets. Our other three golfers are capable of shooting in the high or mid seventies, and if they can all reach their potential by our state and Region 13 meets May 20 and 21 we could be contenders for one of the top three places."

The Northmen will make just one home meet appearance this spring, hosting the Northland invitational Thurs., May 15, at 12 noon on the Thief River Country Club course.

Northland Schedule

Thurs., April 24 — at North Hennepin, 1 p.m.; Fri., April 25 — at Normandale Invitational, 9:30 a.m.; Mon., April 28 — at Moorhead junior varsity, 2 p.m.; Thurs., May 1 — at Fergus Falls invitational, 10 a.m.; Thurs., May 8 — at Brainerd invitational, 10 a.m.; Mon., May 12 — at Bemidji State junior varsity, 1 p.m.; Thurs., May 15 — Northland invitational, 12 noon; Tues., Wed., May 20, 21 — MJCAA state and NJCAA Region 13 meets at Monticello, 1 p.m.

Happiness Is The Times

Northwomen Lose Twinbill

Rainy River overcame a pair of first inning Northland leads Tuesday for a 5-4, 9-5 community college softball doubleheader sweep at International Falls.

Northland opened the first game with a 3-0 first inning lead and was involved in a 4-4 tie before Rainy River pulled out a 5-4 win in the bottom of the fifth (and final) inning.

The closely matched opener found the Voyageurs finishing with a slight 4-3 edge in base hits, while Northland topped the error figures 3-2.

Northland began the nightcap with another three-run first inning, but surrendered four runs in the third en route to a 9-5 setback.

Rainy River out-hit Northland 10-4 in the second game and the Northwomen picked up four of the game's [illegible] errors.

The losses dropped Northland's season record to 0-6, but coach Deb Jacobson said it was the best showing of the year by the Northwomen.

"I was very pleased with their play," said Jacobson, who had special praise for freshman pitcher Karla Reed of Thief River Falls who walked just one batter in the twinbill.

Northland begins Northwest Division play Friday with a 3 p.m. doubleheader at Brainerd. The Northwomen will be in Grand Rapids Saturday for a 1 p.m. twinbill against Itasca. Crookston will be in Thief River Falls Monday for a 3 p.m. doubleheader.

New Recruiter Assigned Here By U.S. Army

SFC Richard Krantz

U.S. army has opened a new recruiting station in Thief River Falls, and staffed it with a new recruiter.

Sergeant First Class Richard P. Krantz will be working in the new office at 311 LaBree av. N. Collect calls will be accepted at 681-3376. SFC Krantz replaced Staff Sergeant Charles Stroup who is now stationed in Omaha, Neb. Five counties make up the sergeant's recruiting area: Roseau, Kittson, Pennington, Marshall and Red Lake.

SFC Krantz joined the army at Detroit, Mich., in 1962. Since that time he has worked in postal management, helicopter repair, aircraft accident investigation and recruiting. His overseas duty includes 3½ tours in Vietnam.

His many medals, awards and citations include the bronze star, four army commendation medals, two awards of the air medal, Vietnam service ribbon with seven battle stars, the gold recruiting badge with sapphire star and many others.

A graduate of the army recruiting school at Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind., Sgt. Krantz is aware of the latest opportunities in army jobs and training. Prior to coming to Thief River Falls, he was an army recruiter in Elkhart, Ind., for two years.

Anyone interested in more information about the army or the army reserve should call SFC Krantz collect. He will be traveling through his five-county area on a regular basis and appointments can be made to visit with you at your home or any convenient location.

Cub Scouts Launch Bobcat Member Hunt

Boys who are at least 7½ years old and who will complete the second grade this spring are objects of a "Bobcat hunt" by the Northern Lights council, Boy Scouts of America.

The purpose of the "Bobcat hunt" is to encourage boys from 7½ to 10 years of age to join Cub scouting which is celebrating its 50th anniversary during 1980.

"Each Cub scout pack throughout the Northern Lights council will be looking for new members in April and May," according to Wm. A Malaski Sr., council commissioner. "By joining at this time, boys will be able to get involved with the pack's summertime fun and with other activities planned during this anniversary year."

Cub scouting is a family-centered educational program that offers boys effective character, citizenship and personal fitness training. Among the features of the Cub scout program are weekly den meetings, monthly pack meetings with families, an advancement plan, outdoor activities, and competitive events and sports.

For additional information about the program in the Northern Lights council, parents should contact the Grand Forks service center, 1701 Cherry St., or call 775-3189.

"The 30 millionth Cub scout will be registered during 1980, and naturally it is exciting to think that he might possibly be registered in the Northern Lights council," Malaski said.

Dear Dr. Bruno:

How do you determine how many chiropractic adjustments a person needs?

This is determined by the initial examination findings, the history of the problem, the x-ray readings (if taken), in addition to the patient's symptoms. Unfortunately, people sometimes confuse symptomatic relief with correction. In other words, if the problem is only symptomatically treated, it will come back. Correction is the elimination of all examination findings, excluding any permanency and specific spinal exercise follow up.

Dear Dr. Bruno:

How important is a good diet?

We are what we eat. It stands to reason if you eat dead and devitalized foods, we are building dead and devitalized cells. A diet with ample fruits and vegetables and a minimum amount of meat and refined food is best.

Interested in more information:

Our Spinal Care class is scheduled for every Wednesday. The classes are at 12 noon and 7:30 p.m. on alternating Wednesdays. If you would like to attend, please call our office.

ONE INCH, ONE LIFE, ONE PLAN

Our instructions read 36 inches. But one of the sides of our "do-it-yourself" bookcase measured only 35 inches.

"Why not just shorten the other side by an inch?" suggested my son, John. We did and ended up having to cut an inch off the back. It would have been better had we corrected rather than simply revised the plans.

Like the bookcase, our lives have a plan drafted by God. We often fall short, and rather than correct ourselves, we downgrade our other dimensions — our standards and aspirations. Thus, we fool ourselves into believing that we still measure up. The result is a life half-lived, filled with doubt, worry and often, regret.

Read of God's plan for you in the Bible; consult with him in His Church.
